There appears to be no general decrease in buying among American tourists this summer. In cases where discrimination has been necessary most holidayers have chosen the more "sensible" purchases and have denied themselves some of the little extravagances which accompany holiday shopping expeditions.

Brisk Clothing Trade

Clothing stores have enjoyed brisk business from the American tourist trade. Not only the women think of their wardrobes when on vacation. Men's clothing stores have been selling woollen shrits, sweaters, hunting jackets, shorts and bathing trunks in great numbers. One store keeper said that some tourists had been finding all the shorts sold by the time they arrived and had had difficulty in buying them. Can it be that men are becoming less self-conscious about unshapely legs or knobby knees?

Peterborough people who did their summer shopping early in the season are now seeing similar articles at bargain prices. Peterborugh clothing stores are already handling fall dresses and coats and are reducing prices of cotton dresses, bathing costumes and other essential summer garments in order to clear their shelves ready for the cooler season.

Summer Sales

Cotton dresses under $12 were scarcely to be seen in Peterborough stores at beginning of the summer and now there are many priced at $3 and $4. Silk dresses in the $30-$35 range earlier in the summer are reduced to $24.

These are merely seasonal reductions just as fur coats often sell for less in the summer than at Christmas.

O'Toole-Young Nuptials Held

In St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Young's Point, on Saturday the marriage of Marion Helen, daughter of Mrs. W. C. Young and the late Mr. Young to Gerald Francis O'Toole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Toole, Peterborough, was solemnized by the Rev. V. J. Masterson. The church was decorated with pink gladioli and the music played by Mrs. Elmer Johnston.

Given in marriage by her brother Mr. C. J. Young, the bride was gowned in white taffeta with inserted yoke of net with a bertha of taffeta forming cap sleeves, a peplum at the waistline and the full skirt falling to a slight train. She wore long mittens of the same material and a finger tip veil of net which fell from a pleated halo, and she carried a cascade of white gladioli. Mrs. A. A. Conlin was her sister's bridesmaid, gowned in blue taffeta with yoke of net and wearing blue lace mittens and a pleated headdress with shoulder veil. She carried a cascade of pink gladoili and fern.

Mr. Bernard O'Toole was groomsman for his brother and Lawrence O'Toole and Albert A. Conlin ushered.

The reception was held at South Beach Hotel where the bride's mother received in grey crepe with a hat of black mohair, black accessories and corsage of sweet peas and pansies. The groom's mother also chose grey crepe and a hat of natural straw trimmed with navy and a corsage of pink gladioli with roses.

The bride and groom are on a wedding trip to Montreal and points east, and on return will live on Walton St. For travelling the bride wore a grey flowered crepe dress, grey taffeta hat and navy accessories with a corsage of yellow roses.

Turcotte-Teatro Wedding Rites

In St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning the Rev. K. Malane said nuptial mass and performed the marriage of Helen Teresa Teatro and Harold Vincent Turcotte. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Teatro of Lindsay and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Vincent Turcotte of R.R. 3, Peterborough. The wedding music was played by Mrs. R. G. Aman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was in a gown of white satin with a long train edged with lace. Rows of matching lace formed a tiered underskirt which showed at the front where the skirt was caught up in gathers. The neckline yoke of sheer net was edged with an over-shoulder collar of satin, bordered with lace, and the sleeves were long with points over her hands. Her short veil of fine net was embroidered at the edge and caught to a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Hilda Larock of Peterborough as maid of honor was in blue organdy with a deep skirt flounce of matching net. The dress was styled with a wide neckline and collar edged with matching net, long torso fitted bodice and short sleeves. She wore a halo headdress of pink and blue flowers and a bouquet of pale pink roses. Miss Doreen Turcotte, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. She wore a similar frock in buttercup yellow organdy and matching net, and a shoulder veil of yellow caught to a halo headdress. She also carried pink roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Henry Gordon and the ushers were Ross Teatro, brother of the bride, and Clayton Gordon.

The reception was held at the groom's home where his mother greeted the guests in a grey crepe dress with navy hat and corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bride's aunt Mrs. Hosanna Gordon of Peterborough, who wore a black dress and picture hat of black straw and a corsage of red roses.

When going away for a wedding trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls the bride was wearing a blue taffeta dress, white straw hat with streamers of veiling and a corsage of red roses. The couple will live on Homewood Ave.

Robb-Pitt Wedding

In George Street United Church on Saturday, the wedding of Helen Ila Pitt and Mr. Paul Edward Robb took place, with the Rev. Dr. Jas. Semple officiating. The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Pitt and the late Gordon Pitt, Peterborough, and the groom a son of Mrs. Victoria Robb, of Buckhorn.

Lovely floral background for the ceremony was formed of baskets of gladioli and mixed summer flowers, banked with ferns. During the signing of the register Mr. Chas. Allen, organist, played "I'll walk with you."

The bride wore a street length dress of blue net over satin and embroidered shoulder veil of tulle gathered to a coronet headdress. She had long lace mittens to match and carried a white prayer book with satin streamers. Her corsage was of white and pink roses and snapdragons. She was given in marriage by Mr. Ira L. Outwater. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Pitt who wore yellow lace dress trimmed with yellow taffeta and yellow headdress. Her corsage was of pink roses and snapdragons.

Mr. Rolland Bonneville attended the groom and the usher was Mr. Douglas Pierce, of Toronto.

The reception which followed was held at Hooper's palm rooms. The bride's mother received, wearing blue silk flowered dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses, while the groom's mother, also receiving wore navy flowered crepe with navy accessories, and a corsage of red roses.

For a trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls the bride donned a grey gabardine suit with white accessories and a corsage of summer flowers. They will live in Peterborough.

Wants $5,000 For Injured Finger

WASHINGTON — (CP) — Mrs. Margaret D. Bugos says a splinter did her bowling finger $5,000 damage.

She filed suit against the National Amusement Company for what she says was a permanent injury suffered on one of its bowling alleys last March. Mrs. Bugos claims a two-inch wood splinter lodged in the middle finger of her right hand when it grazed the floor as she bowled.

She charged the company with negligence in not keeping its premises safe.

Of Interest to Women

No Infallible Marriage Test Man Knows Right Woman

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it so very terrible for a man to accept money from a woman In my case my fiance is one of those unfortunates who has been thrown out of a position due to economic conditions. Of course, he will land something eventually, but in the meantime why shouldn't I foot the bills for the entertainment we both enjoy immensely, as I am lucky enough to have an excellent position which pays a remarkable salary? Why, he even objects to driving my car if he can't buy the gasoline, and if I get theatre tickets we have a battle royal. Am I wrong in wanting to share my good fortune with him?

E.R.R.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: I think that under the circumstances your fiance is foolish, but it is the kind of folly that makes you want to take off your hat to him, because it shows that he is a REAL man.

Still, there is sense and reason in all things and a man can overdo independence. So I do not see why a youth, who knows that when he's back on the job and able to repay a girl tenfold for all that she had done for him, should not be willing to take things from her that under other circumstances he might refuse, especially when he reflects that he is depriving the girl as well as himself of a good time. It takes more generosity to receive graciously than it does to give.

Your fiance would gladly lavish anything he had on you. Tell him to realize that you are just as generous-hearted as he is and have just as much pleasure in making him happy as he would you and perhaps you can make him see the matter from a human instead of a strictly masculine point of view.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX: How can a man tell when he loves a woman enough to want to marry her? I am now 26 and have kept company with a number of young ladies always with the viewpoint of some day finding one that I will want to make my wife. These girls have been everything that a man should want in a wife, yet I have never felt that there was one of them that I would care to marry. What is the test of the love that a man should feel for a girl before he marries her?

C.C.C.

ANSWER: You'll know, C.C.C., when you meet Miss Right. She may be no bathing beauty. She may be no college graduate. She may be no Patient Griselda. She may not even be able to boil water without scorching it.

You may have known a hundred prettier, cleverer, more amifitted to make a man a good wife, but when you meet this particular maiden you will feel that life will be cinders, ashes and dust without her.

That is the infallible test of love with a man, just feeling that some particular woman is absolutely necessary to his happiness and that he can't exist without her. Unless he does feel that way about her, he doesn't love her, and that's all there is to it. It isn't a matter of logic or reason or suitability or any question of the woman's charms and virtues. It is just that some one girl makes his pulses leap and another one leaves him cold.

Still another test of love is whether you are willing to give up your bachelor freedom for a woman. Does the idea of having to punch the home time clock allure you? Are you fascinated with the thought of being put through a questionnaire on your outgoings and incomings? Do you think a quiet evening at home would be more exciting than stepping out to a night club? Do you look forward to spending your holidays doing chores around the house instead of playing golf? If you can answer "yes" to all of these questions, you are in love.

And another proof of love is whether you are willing to work for a woman. If the thought of her makes you want to roll up your sleeves and tackle your job with fresh vim, and if you would rather spend your money on her than on your own pleasures, then you are in love for keeps and it is safe to pop the question.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX: What do you do when you are tired of living, but are afraid to die?

QUESTION.

ANSWER: I have never been tired of living because I have always worked so hard and been so busy and had so many interests that I have kept on my tiptoes and enjoyed every day as it came.

Try thinking of other people and interesting yourself in other lives. It is the best remedy yet for that tired feeling. And you needn't be afraid to die. When the end comes, God gives us courage to meet it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Says Business Is Business Give No Regard To Sex

By RALPH H. HEPPE

SAN FRANCISCO, July 00 — (AP)—Claire Giannini Hofman, first woman director of the world's largest bank, doesn't believe in mixing sex with business.

Just forget the sex of participants in a transaction, she says, and stick to the best business principles.

That's the viewpoint she carried to the board of the Bank of America when she filled the vacancy caused by the death of her famous father, A. P. Giannini.

Mrs. Hoffman, who took her seat recently, isn't any novice in banking. She has been a sort of ex-officio member of the bank's staff for years. Her views were sought not only by her father and brother L. M. Giannini, president of the bank, but by other directors.

Her principal job as a director of the bank her father founded, she says, will be to see, in common with other directors, that father's policies are continued.

She will be the board representative of more than 50,000 women stockholders and of an estimated 2,000,000 women customers of the bank.

Proved Unpopular

Twenty years ago, Mrs. Hoffman recalled, the bank made an effort to offer service especially for women through a woman's department. It was unpopular, she said.

"The women showed us," she commented, "that they realize banking, whether for men or for women ,is business and should be handled as business, regardless of sex."

But Mrs. Hoffman also feels that many women expect more from men in business than from women. Therefore, they prefer to do business with men, especially in money matters.

Another of her viewpoints is that women are more conservative than men in financial affairs. This is desirable in the home, she says, where the housewife must conserve the family funds. But she believes it is a handicap in the larger world of financial enterprise where there must be more venture.

Helps Families

Mrs. Hofman's special interest in banking is in the administration of wills and estates for the benefit of widows and their children.

"Our bank has already gone to great lengths in developing this kind of service," she said. "I have no startling new ideas to propose but it is a most useful service which intrigues me and I intend to pay it special attention."

This tall, slender member of the Giannini family looks the business woman's part. She likes to wear tailored clothes. Her hair and eyes are dark. Deeply tanned, she uses no makeup ,not even lipstick.

For years she has not hesitated to accept the working jobs in community and charitable enterprises. She has been active for 23 years with the Telegraph Hill Neighborhood Association. It is concerned principally with settlement work in San Francisco. She administers its treasury and also works as a doctor's aide.

Social Situations

SITUATION: You are introduced to a young man by a girl who has had several dates with him and has talked about him a lot.

WRONG WAY: Say, "I'm glad to meet you as Judy has talked about you SO much."

RIGHT WAY: Remember that Judy probably doesn't want the young man to know that she has talked about him a great deal, so don't mention that fact if you don't want to embarrass her.

Towering Hats Seen for Fall Plume Goes 18 ins.

PARIS, July 27 (AP)—Women will look pretty tall next fall if they wear some of the hats now shown by leading French milliners.

High-crowned creations by Claude St. Cyr are molded to the head at back but merge into a halolike Norman arch in front. The towering effect often is produced by a brim which starts from nothing at the sides and develops into a beak which protrudes aggressively upward and outward in front.

The height of these hats is further accentuated by cock, egret or paradise feathers stuck on top.

Height also is obtained by turret crowns, but the tallest creation is a toque of gold satin stabbed with matching 18-inch-long spear garnished with the same length of pheasant plume.

Tough horsehair veils that stand up to wind, hail and rain are being shown by Albouy in his fall hat showing.

They are set on black velvet cloche and beret types in such a way that they stand several inches away from the face.

One of these, called "Carmen' is a black velvet bun-beret. It is worn wide-tilted with two huge crimson roses covering the right ear. The black horsehair is nose-tip length.

Top Quality Wheat In This Year's Crop

"We have been getting a top quality of Cornell wheat from this season's crop," Mr. Stewart Lockintgon, buyer at the Quaker Oats mill, told the Examiner today

"It has been averaging 58 to 61½ pounds to the bushel with the moisture content at 12½ to 13%. You can't improve that very much.

"Our company last year brought in a carload of Cornell-695 and we sold it at cost to grain farmers. It is now coming back to us 100-fold. We can definitely say that there is an evident increase in Cornell production this year over last. Farmers say they like this variety."

Mr. Lockington said there was a good sample of Dawson's Golden Chaff coming to market, and that was to be expected for the reason that the Dawson wheat has had a long monopoly of the fall planting in this area and generally throughout Ontario.

The observation in this harvest is that Cornell is increasing in qualiltq. Quaker purchases are from Windsor easterly.

Forbid Polish Priests Excommunicate Reds

WARSAW, July 27 (AP)—The Polish goverment today forbade Roman Catholic priests from excommunicating any Pole belonging to the Communist party. It denounced as an "act of aggression" against Poland the Vatican's decree threatening excommunication.

The government called the decree "a brutal violation of the religious feelings of believers" and said it can neither be enforced nor propagated in Poland because it contravenes national law and order.

The government statement was the first news given to Polish citizens by their newspapers and radio that the Vatican has threatened to excommunicate Communists.

Special Police Force

STRATFORD, July 27 (CP)—Mayor Harold A. Cook of nearby Mitchell said Tuesday a special force of 20 or 30 constables will be called to quell any future disturbances in the Mitchell area. The mayor issued the statement in connection with a fight in Mitchell Friday night in which some 20 Mitchell youths attacked a number of Stratford "zoot-suiters."

Says Euorpe Needs To Help Self More

NEW YORK, July 27 (AP) — Bernard Baruch, financier and long-time presidential adviser, came back Tuesday from Europe with these ideas on things in general:

The Marshall Plan is effective "but not as effective as it should have been."

"There's a heap of sense in the idea that Europe would help herself more if the United States helped her less.

Britain is spending too much time on nationalization and "not devoting sufficient energy to developing the country and its production."

There is no "slump" in the United States and "if we happen to lose a little money—and we've suffered this before—we'll tighten our belts and go ahead as we have done."

Gets 12 Years In Pen

MONT LAURIER, Que., July 27 (CP)—Found guilty of desecrating a Roman Catholic Church and theft of $1,400, Jean Claude Lacroix, 21, Tuesday was sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary. Police said Lacroix, who was arrested late Sunday afternoon, had broken into Our Lady of Sacred Heart Church at Maniwaki, Que., last Saturday night.

Grants Of $400,000 Go To Five Hospitals

TORONTO, July 27 (CP) — Health Minister Kelley announced Tuesday that new grants totalling nearly $400,000 have been made by the Ontario governments to five hospitals. The money is to aid hospitals enlarging their bed capacity.

Since the province started paying grants toward new construction approximately $7,750,000 has been paid out, Mr. Kelley said.

The latest grants go to: Royal Ottawa Sanatorium; Hotel Dieu Hospital, St. Catharines; Red Cross Hospital, Wierton; Smooth Rock Falls Hospital, and Kingston General Hospital.

The St. Catharines Hospital is planning a 63-bed addition. Grants in these cases are at a rate of $1,000 a bed.

Blue Baby Dies

OSHAWA, July 27 (CP)—Ronald Lawry Huston, seven-weeks-old blue baby who last week was given one chance in 1,000 of surviving, died in hospital here on Tuesday. The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Huston of Oshawa, was four weeks old before his malady was discovered. Taken to hospital in Toronto, doctors said he was "practically incurable."

Fire Still Burning In Seymour Swamp

BONARLAW, July 27 (ENS)—A serious grass fire was brought under control Saturday afternoon by more than 100 men, one mile north of Springbrook. It is believed that the fire was caused by a spark from a train. No damage was caused to buildings, but the fire spread rapidly. At 5 o'clock it was under control, but broke out again at 6.30.

The large swamp fire in Seymour township is still raging, but has not travelled any great distance. It is still confined to the swamp.

Find It's Job To Portray Bump On Screen

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, July 27 (AP)—Buxom blonde Marilyn Maxwell is faced with the task of portraying a "bump" on the screen.

For those not familiar with such things, I explain that a bump is a violent forward movement of the lower torso. This is a manoeuvre common among dancers of the burlesque type. It is also forbidden on the screen under section VII, parts 1 and 2, of the production code.

That's Marilyn's problem. She is playing a bubble dancer in "Key to the City" and she was puzzled on how to give a convincing performance sans bumps.

"I was in New York when I heard about the role," she said, "so I went down to Atlantic City to watch the girls in the burlesque houses. I got the walk down pretty well—they all walk the same.

Bored Bouncing

"They bounce around, bored and blase. One of the gals had a fascinating act. All she wore were little pieces of fruit at the strategic places. Every time she whistled, a cockatoo would fly across the stage and bite off a piece of fruit. It was fascinating."

Marilyn is billed as the atom-bomb dancer in the picture and her costume is a flock of balloons decorated with atomic symbols in sequins.

"Of course, it's established early in the scene that I'm wearing a scanty, flesh-colored outfit underneath," she added. "The Johnston office wouldn't have it otherwise."

Mystery Lake's Secret Revealed

FLIN FLON, Man.—(CP)—An old Indian legend that brought about the name of Mystery Lake in northern Manitoba has been solved, according to prospectors returning here.

In the legend an Indian youth is said to have returned to camp one day 25 years ago and told his tribesmen that his father was missing. The father never returned, so the lake in the area became known to the tribe as Mystery Lake.

It was on the shore of this lake, situated north of Thicket Narrows on the Hudson Bay railway, that prospectors searching for precious metals recently discovered a skeleton revealed in its grave by water that ate away the earth covering it.

Bones protruding from the mound of earth were noticed by a group of prospectors standing on the shore of the lake and when the mound was examined it revealed the skeleton of a man. A long knife carved from a saw blade, its point bent, was held between the spine's vertebrae.

Also found in the grave alongside the body was a pipe carved out of stone, a comb, and a short section of a file believed to have been used by the man for scratching flint to start a fire.

Government Delays Credit Repayments

LONDON—(CP)—The government is in no hurry to repay post-war credits deducted as a form of taxation during the war, Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons.

He said that a total of £800,000,000 ($320,000,000) has been collected in this manner. About £133,000,000 had been repaid since the war and another £18,000,000 will be paid out this year.

The existing law provides that only men over 65 and women over 60 may receive the credits.

When Sir Ian Fraser, Conservative member for Lonsdale, asked if the chancellor would consider "easing cases of hardship" by more generous payments, Sir Stafford replied: "We cannot afford to distribute any more purchasing power."

Everyone In The Act As Family Syncopates

SHERBROOKE, Que., July 27 (CP)—If you can't stand music—whether classical or popular—you better not come to this Eastern Townships city.

At least, she should avoid Antonio Garant, as a neighbor. Garant is the father of an eight-child family, and all of them, including papa and mama either sing or play a musical instrument.

The family is well known among Sherbrooke music lovers—so well-known that it is commonly called the "Garant Orchestra." Altogether, they play eight different instruments and sing the full scale.

Most of them have appeared as guest artists at different concerts here, and at the last festival of Quebec bands. Serge, a boy who handles the piano as well as he plays the clarinet and saxophone, was piano soloist in Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue.

The family, however, is at its best when it performs at home under the sharp ear of Maman Garant. It then really becomes the Garant Orchestra.

The father plays the trumpet, Claudette sits at the keyboard; Marie Paul handles in turn the piano and her 'cello; Yolande is the singing bird of the family; Serge alternates on the clarinet and the saxophone since so many already play the piano; Jean Paul is the violinist; Fernand doubles his papa at the trumpet; Gilles blows the trombone; and Camille plays the clarinet.

The mother alternates at the piano when necessary.

Ivy Chokes Off Bell Mute After 100 Years

HAMILTON, Ont. -- (CP) — Hamilton's oldest bell, at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, hasn't been rung since 1933. There is no indication it ever will be.

The bell, 115 years old, now faces the possibility of being completely covered by ivy that has nearly blanketed the belfry.

The bell was first rung in 1833 when it was bought by the congregation of the Church of Scotland. Some 20 years later the congregation built a stone church and the bell was moved.

On the 100th anniversary of the Church of Scotland here, the bell was tolled once again. It has hung silent since.

Steel Union Demands 30-Cent Hoist

Murray's Demands Also Include Pensions, Insurance

NEW YORK, July 28 AP)—President Phillip Murray of the United Steelworkers (CIO) announced today his union wants a package increase of 30 cents an hour in their current dispute with the steel companies, including a fourth-round wage increase of 12½ cents.

Murray revealed the demands for the first time at the opening session of the fact finding board appointed by President Truman to avert a strike in the dispute.

Murray was the first speaker for the union before the board.

The demands also include 11.23 cents an hour for pensions and 6.27 cents an hour for social insurance.

The union says that the current average basic wage rate of steel workers is $1.65 an hour. In the previous three rounds of post-war wage increases, the union got 18½ in 1946, 15 cents in 1947, and 13 cents in 1948. The figures for the last two years include some fringe benefits.

Studies Pensions

As the hearing opened the fact-finding board ruled that it would consider evidence on pensions for steel workers along with the two other issues at stake.

This was what the steelworkers had asked at a preliminary meeting on Tuesday of the three-man board set up to hear the case for and against a fourth round wage increase.

The companies, led by the United States Steel, had asked that the Board hear evidence and then decide whether the pension issue was a proper matter for consideration.

The fact finding board, set up by President Truman to head off a threatened strike July 16, will hear evidence for 16 days.

The board must take its recommendations to President Truman at least 15 days before the union's new strike deadline of Sept. 16.

Strikes Train Truck Burns

TORONTO, July 28 (CP)—A heavy truck, loaded with cement blocks, was destroyed by fire today when it collided with a westbound, seven-passenger train at a crossing in suburban Weston.

Frank Kazimer, of Burlington, driver of the truck, jumped clear moments before the collision. The train struck the truck, carrying it eight feet along the track before it was strewn for yards along the right-of-way.

A baggage car also caught fire from the truck but the flames were extinguished before much damage was done.

Kazimer said that when he approached the crossing he saw K. M. McKaig, a coal-car workman, standing beside the through-track waving his arms.

"I thought he was a switchman waving me through, so I started across," he said.

Deep Gutter Waters Drown N.J. Woman

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, NJ, July 28 — (AP).— A violent and freakish thunderstorm Wednesday swept a woman down a gutter and into a sewage culvert to her death.

Witnesses said the unusual drowning occurred when Mrs Edna Michel 54, tried to cross a deep torrent of water in a gutter.

The speed and depth of water were enough to knock her down and carry her for two blocks downhill into a drainage culvert.

Horrified spectators told the police the woman struggled against a swirling current four feet deep.

Persons who rushed to the rescue were unable to catch her or to release her body until it had been wedged in the culvert for a quarter of an hour, police said. By that time she had been drowned in the pouring rainwaters.

Vikings Storm Britain, Warm Welcome

BROADSTAIRS, Kent, England, July 28 (AP) — A boatload of blond, bearded Vikings stormed ashore in Britain today—just as their warrior forefathers did 1,500 years ago.

The ceremonial landing of 53 sword-swinging Danes, clad in the horned helmets and leather tunics sported by Vikings of old, ended a 10-day sea crossing from Denmark in a dragon-headed replica of a Viking ship.

Thousands of British seaside vacationers overran the official welcoming party, which included Prince George of Denmark and Viking chief Erik Suell Kiersgaard said: "We had a good voyage, but it was hard going, moving over the North Sea. We are looking forward to a good time."

The invading Vikings ladled out samples of mead, an ancient drink made from honey, to the welcoming Britons.

Police Deny Holding Man For Boardwalk Murder

TORONTO, July 28—(CP)—Inspector John Nimmo denied today reports police are holding one man in connection with the bludgeon-slaying of Leslie Hern, 38-year-old dining car steward whose battered body was found Wednesday stuffed under an east-end beach boardwalk. Inspector Nimmo said police had uncovered no clues which might lead them to the identity of the slayer.

Tracing Hern's movements from the time he left his home Tuesday, Police said he went swimming with an acquaintance Tuesday night and later met a older man in a downtown hotel. Hern "probably" met his slayer somewhere in the east-end before going to the beach.

When found on an east-end beach, Hern's body was clad only in a shirt. Trousers and a green bathing suit were found nearby, but Hern's relatives said the bathing suit did not belong to the slain man.

Used Blunt Instrument

An autopsy showed that Hern was killed with a "blunt instrument" or bludgeoned with a brick, police said. Investigators said it was possible that he was robbed.

Not far from the body, police found Hern's automobile, a big, expensive sedan. One window was smashed and there were signs that the car had been rifled.

Hern had lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Hern; his sister, Isobel, and a brother, George. A cousin, Lulu MacMillan, described him as "a little fellow who acted like a millionaire."

Two men and a woman from Montreal discovered Hern's body. They said they had been sleeping on the beach and about midnight saw a man lying on the boardwalk. They thought he was drunk or asleep. Nearby stood a man, twirling some keys. When the trio drew near, the man with the keys told them:

"Go away. He's my friend, Tommy. He's drunk."

A few hours later, they saw the man still lying on the boardwalk. They looked closely at him and saw that he was dead.

Cocaine Smuggling Jumps All Across United States

WASHINGTON, July 28. — (AP). — "Extremely disturbing" increases in the smuggling of the drug cocaine into the United States were reported today by the Narcotics Bureau.

Up to now, it said, there had not been any considerable traffic in cocaine, or the use of it, in this country.

In a report on "Traffic in Opium and Other Dangerous Drugs" during 1948, the bureau said:

"Quite reliable information is at hand indicating that cocaine is available in large quantities in Peru, Chile nd Bolivia, and that American seamen are smuggling it regularly to the United States.

"In the Harlem district of New York City there appears to be sufficient cocaine available to satisfy demands in the illicit traffic, and it is indicated that a portion of this cocaine is smuggled from Peru to out-of-the-way ports in South Carolina and Alabama and then transported overland to New York."

The United States recently got from Peru a promise that steps would be taken to control the cocaine factories in that country so the drug would not be diverted into underworld channels in the United States.

Shanghai, Rangoon, Calcutta and Singapore were described in the report as "hotbeds of narcotics activities" on the basis of advice the bureau said it obtained from incoming merchant seamen.

In detailing an increase in heroin seizures, the bureau observed there is "definite indication that the Far East is again a sources of supply of heroin."

Nanking Staff May Be Reduced

OTTAWA, July 28 (CP) — Canada's strained relationship with the Communist government in China may cause a reduction in the Canadian Embassy staff at Nanking, it was learned today.

Steps also may be taken, in consultation with the United States, to evacuate from Communist territory some of the 800 Canadians, Americans and others who decided to remain behind when evacuation plans were made some time ago.

Out of a total of 800 Canadians that had residence in the war-torn country, about 300 have been evacuated. Of the remaining 500, some 250 are believed to be in the Communist-held area of northern China.

Some of these, it is understood, have found their activities hampered by the Communists. These include business men and missionaries.

Canada has an Embassy staff of five in Nanking, including Ambassador T. C. Davis. Mr. Davis likely will remain, but some officers may be moved from Communist territory.

Can't Ignore Russ Menace Congress Told

Believes Strong Army Will Deter Reds From Acting

WASHINGTON, July 28 (AP) —State Secretary Dean Acheson told Congress today the United States should begin promptly to help rearm western Europe because "the possibilities of direct military aggression" by huge Russian forces cannot be ignored.

Leading off the administration's drive for Congressional approval of a $1,450,000,000 arms aid program, Acheson pictured western European countries as living under the shadow and constant fear of Russian armies which are the greatest the world has known in peacetime.

He also suggested that Russia is approaching a crossroads in its policies toward the west where it may have to choose whether to continue trying conquest by political means or to resort to "military means."

Acheson appeared before the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee to make his plea for the arms program, already under attack by influential Congress members.

Psychological Effect

Acheson said "the mere presence" of the large Russian forces "has had a psychological effect that has been damaging to recovery and stability, and has been a major influence in the loss of freedom and self-determination in important areas of Europe."

Acheson repeatedly told the committee that if the United States would back up the pledges of the North Atlantic treaty with military assistance he believes peace would be secured and no aggressor would dare take on the whole combination of western powers.

"The fundamental pledge of the treaty, that an attack on one signatory will mean an attack on all, closes the door to piecemeal aggression," Acheson said.

The bulk of the proposed arms aid would go to pact countries. basis will be of "considerable arms on a cash reimbursement

A provision for procurement of value" to Canada, Acheson said.

Union Officials Meet Company

TORONTO, July 28 (CP) — Union representatives met today ronto's Massey-Harris farm implement plant in an effort to settle a dispute which resulted in 4,500 production employees walking out last Tuesday.

There was no indication when the meeting would end.

Employees, members of Local 439 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), quit their jobs over dismissal by the company of the local's president, Steve Anco. Anco said he was fired because he refused to order men to work overtime when the company was laying off wrkers because of lack of business.

Company spokesmen said Anco told two union members to disregard orders given them by management.

Chinese Reds Seize New Areas In Hunan

CANTON, July 28 (AP) — Chinese Communist troops seized new areas of Hunan Province today. Nationalists conceded the Communists were astride the Canton-Hankow railroad between Changsha and Hengyang.

An official dispatch acknowledged loss of Chuchow, 25 miles south of Changsha, capital of Hunan and a central China strongpoint. In taking the rail town, the Reds not only severed Nationalist communications between Changhs and Hengyang but gained control of the entire Chekiang railroad.

Chuchow is the junction of the two railroads 315 miles north of the refugee Nationalist headquarters in Canton, which the Communist High Command has ordered captured by August 15.

Pair Plead Guilty

KIRKLAND LAKE, July 28—(CP)—Leo Martial, 24, and Victor Desmarais, 23, of Noranda, Que., pleaded guilty in court today to charges of armed robbery of the branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada at Larder Lake, 18 miles east of here. The two, who previously had elected trial in a higher court, were remanded one week for sentencing.

Must End Strike Before Talks CSU Ultimatum

OTTAWA, July 28.—(CP).—A seven-man delegation of the Canadian Seamen's Union today was told by Arthur MacNamara, Deputy Minister of Labor, that the union must end its four-month shipping strike before the Department could again consider entering discussions.

The Deputy Minister said in an interview that he had advised by telegram Wednesday that he saw "no good purpose" in the delegation coming to Ottawa unless there was a change in the strike situation.

However, he allowed the delegation an audience after Charles MacDonald of Cornwall, leader of the delegation said the telegram had not been received.

Mr. MacDonald and his delegation, representing the "rank and file" of the allegedly Communist-dominated union, placed before Mr. MacNamara proposals for ending the strike.

The proposals, which included an offer to call off the strike if C.S.U. members were returned to their jobs without discrimination, previously were rejected as unfeasible when presented by Harry Davis, president of the C. S.U., and T. C. McManus, secretary-treasurer.

MONTREAL, July 28 (CP) — The Canadian Seamen's Union announced Wednesday it has turned over to its rank-and-file the thorny task of negotiating a settlement of its turbulent, four-month dispute with Canadian shipowners.

In a prepared statement, the union said "as a genuine move to overcome all obstacles that will lead to a conclusion of the strike, the national officers have voluntarily stepped out of the picture and recommended that the rank and file membership carry on negotiations."

The statement said this action was taken because the shipowners stated they would not negotiate with the union's present leadership.

Up To Employers

Spokesmen for the Shipping Federation o fCanada here would not be reached for comment but labor sources in Ottawa intimated that no matter how the government receives the latest proposal, it would still be a matter of what the employers want to do.

The Shipping Federation had previously announced that it considers its contract with the SIU "a firm contract which will not be broken."

The owners also claim that most of their ships now are sailing normally with SIU crews, which, they say, include seamen who deserted the CSU and went over to the rival SIU.

D.P. Hero Blown To Bits But Heroism Saves 10 Miners In Blast

2 Men Light Dynamite Fuse To Clear Rock When Slide Kills One; Pole Carries Dynamite Out Of Range

VAL D'OR, Que., July 28—(CP)—A Polish miner, who came to Canada from an European Displaced Persons Camp, blew himself to bits Wednesday saving the lives of several workers in a dynamite explosion at the East Sullivan Gold Mine at nearby Bourlamaque. Another miner died earlier in an underground rockslide.

Watsik Koltan, 28, picked up a charge of dynamite about to explode and ran with it out of range of a group of about 10 men. The charge exploded after he had raced about 15 feet.

The other men were knocked down by the blast but suffered only minor injuries.

Maurice Boucher, 20, was killed in the rockslide earlier.

The explosion occurred shortly after Boucher and Koltan went underground with the dynamite charge. They were to explode a piece of rock construction obstructing the second level.

Boucher, in charge of the work, had just lighted the fuse when he was crushed under the rockslide. He was believed to have died instantly.

Koltan ran to summon help. Then, apparently remembering the lighted fuse, he dashed back.

Rescuers saw him running away with the dynamite sticks in his arms, with the trailing fuse fizzling. The explosion occurred seconds later. The charge contained 12½ pounds of dynamite.

No fire followed the explosion and mine officials said little damage was done.

Koltan arrived in Canada from Europe only about three months ago. He could scarcely speak English or French. It was not known if he was married. Boucher was single.

A coroner's inquest Wednesday night found the deaths of both men were accidental.

Get Year In Jail For Carrying Guns

BARRIE, July 28—(CP)—Three Barrie youths, charged with breaking and entering, theft and carrying concealed weapons were each sentenced Wednesday to one year.

The trio, Elmore Corbett, 17, Elmer Wright, 19 and Carl Matthews, 19, were arrested last July 18 carrying guns concealed under their arms. Police said a search of their homes revealed a cache of revolvers, rifles, ammunition and clothing stolen from a downtown Barrie sporting goods store

Injured By Team

PICTON, July 28—(CP)—Mrs. Henry McClennon, 67, was severely injured Wednesday while driving a team of horses alone in a hayfield. She was found unconscious by her daughter. There was no indication of what had caused the accident in which the elderly woman suffered fractured vertebrae, broken ribs and severe head injuries. Taken to hospital, she regained consciousness for only a short time today.

50 Swimmers Escape Freak Storm

THREE RIVERS, Que., July 28 (CP)—Trees were uprooted and rooftops of several homes ripped off during a freak storm with gale winds reaching up to 75 miles an hour in Three Rivers and district late Wednesday.

There were no casualties, but damage was expected to run into thousands of dollars.

The sudden storm, accompanied by torrential cloudbursts which flooded the cellars of numerous homes and business establishments, affected Three Rivers, near-by Cap-de-la-Madeleine and several small parishes within a five-mile radius of the city.

A large structure, representing a ship with funnels and masts, was demolished at the Three Rivers exhibition ground, endangering the lives of 50 bathers in a public swimming pool. The structure fell into the pool.

A power black-out followed the storm, and crops in the area were reported ruined. There also was hail.

The Tallyho, a British submarine, dropped anchor about a mile from Cap-de-la1Madeleine as the storm broke, but port authorities here said it was not affected by the blow. Several small yachts broke from their moorings in the port.

A frame scaffolding built for repairs to the belfry of the Roman Catholic cathedral here was ripped from the church, falling in pieces to the ground back of the bishop's palace.

Will Call In 1940 War Bonds

OTTAWA, July 28—(CP)—The Finance Department today announced it will call in the 1940 issue of $324,945,000 worth of war bonds next Oct. 1—three years before they are due to mature.

The issue, second of its kind floated during the early war years before the Victory Loan drive started, bears an interest rate of three per cent. Payment will be made at par.

The first war bond issue, bearing interest of 3¼ per cent, was for $250,000,000. It is being called in through gradual stages.

Raid Gambling House Get 160 Men, $40,000

MAPL ESHADE, N.J., July 28. —(AP).—Police arrested 160 men and confiscated $40,000 today in a raid on an armed gambling house.

Despite an armored lookout station in which police said they found a revolver and pistol, the 18 raiders captured every occupant of the one-storey concrete block building without firing a shot.

Listed officially as a plumbing warehouse, officers found the interior to contain "several gross" of dice, several cartons of playing cards, scratch sheets, blackboards listing every major race track in the United States, a ticker-tape system with an underground wire, and slot machines.

Police said most of the players came from Philadelphia and Camden—only 10 miles away—and there was evidence that a limousine service had been bringing many of them here.

$75,000 Blaze Sweeps Sudbury's Main Street

SUDBURY, July 28 (CP) — Sudbury firemen fought a battle today in the heart of downtown Sudbury with stubborn flames raging in stores in the St. Joseph building on Elm St. W. Breaking out shortly before 6 a.m., the fire was brought under control shortly after 9 a.m. Damage is expected to run into at least $75,000, but a complete estimate cannot be made until firemen are able to get into the building.

For three hours, the central section of the city was covered with a thick pall of smoke that hindered firemen in their efforts. All off-duty firemen were called to the scene, and were bolstered by reserves of off-duty policemen.

No one was reported injured in the fire, and no smoke effects were suffered by firemen.

Heaviest damage was suffered by City Drug Store, which was gutted. A photograph studio on the second floor was completely burned out, while T. M. Palmer jewellers, and Fashioncraft men's wear suffered extensive smoke and water damage. Nearby stores, including S. S. Kresge and Co., also suffered smoke damage.

Eight lines of water were played on the building as firemen strove to locate the heart of the blaze.

Occupants of several apartments were forced to flee the building in night attire as smoke and flames rushed through the building. All were evacuated safely.

Fire Chief William Andrews said, during the height of the fire, that the new aerial ladder, recently purchased by the city, "paid for itself" in working on the blaze this morning.

Atom Victory Scored By Congress

Won't Share Secrets Unless Permission Granted By All Groups

WASHINGTON, July 28. — (AP).—Congress members appeared to have won a major victory in the hot dispute over their right to help decide whether atomic secrets are to be shared with other countries.

Lawmakers greeted with obvious satisfaction the presidential olive branch held out Wednesday at a closed-door meeting of State Department, Military, Atomic and Congressional policy makers.

President Truman told the Senate-House of Representatives Atomic Committee through State Secretary Dean Acheson that he feels any action on the share-the-atom issue must have the support of both Congress and the Executive Branch of Government.

A vital factor in the question of sharing the United States' atomic-bomb secrets with Britain and Canada is the fact that the United States is largely dependent on those countries for its supplies of uranium—the material that makes atomic weapons possible.

Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (Rep. Iowa), ranking Republican member of the joint committee, said he understood Acheson's plan to mean the United States would not divulge any atomic secrets on a "higher level" than at present. And this level, he told a reporter, is "far below" that involving bomb and industrial information.

Won't Forfeit Lead

Hickenlooper earlier had declared that the United States must not be allowed to forfeit its lead in the atomic field by giving its know-how on weapons to any other country.

The question of the president's right to enter into atomic arrangements on his own with Britain and Canada first was broached at a hush-hush conference here last week. Truman reportedly did not press the point after it met bitter opposition.

During the Second World War both Britain and Canada had full access to atomic secrets. They helped to develop the weapon used on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and in the Bikini tests.

But the Atomic Energy Law passed by Congress in 1946 ended this co-operation.

Dollar Crisis Hits Farm Prices

OTTAWA, July 28 (CP) — Spears of the international dollar crisis are cutting holes in Canadian farm prices.

The Agriculture Department, in its current economic survey of agricultural conditions, notes that the "intensified" exchange problem and "weakening" United States prices for some farm commodities have resulted in lower prices on the foreign market for Canadian farm products.

These factors also have influenced foreign demand for Canadian produce, but continuing high income of Canadian workers was keeping domestic demand strong.

Peak for Canadian farm prices was reached last August. Prices have declined gradually since then. In August last year the farm index, calculated on the basis 1935-39, equals 100, was 264.2. In April this year it was 251.3.

EYE TOPICS

EASY ON THE EYES

The easiest-on-the-eyes reference book in the world is the daily used telephone directory. This is no happy accident. To reduce eye-strain, intensive research was made before designing the type and choosing the paper.

Telephone directories in large cities had been growing fatter. To keep the directory of a city such as New York or Chicago from becoming too cumbersome, something had to be done.

Could the type be made more legible without enlarging it? Was the paper the best for seeing? Could the directory be made thinner? These and many other questions were presented to type experts, paper chemists and eyesight specialists.

After much experimentation, type was made more legible by opening up the inside of letters so that more white space would show through. Fine cross-strokes, called "serifs", were dropped from the type used for subscribers' addresses. The result was a new type face which looked larger and sharper than the old, although it was exactly the same size. More than 700 telephone directories are now set in that type.

There is a lesson in this. When a great corporation studies the findings of ophthalmic science to protect the eyes of the public, it brings home again the truth that man's eyes are among his most priceless possessions. Industry is making a real effort to protect them for him, but can do only a part of the job. The individual has an opportunity and a need to apply present-day ophthalmic science to his own requirements, under the guidance of a qualified professional man.

Cave-in Buries Toronto Worker

TORONTO, July 28 —(CP) — Tons of sand fatally smothered Salvatore Bartucci, 60, last Wednesday while his employer and a fellow workman dug desperately to free him from the excavation he had been digging in front of a group of new houses in suburban Scarboro township.

Bartucci had been working alone in a 12-foot-deep excavation dug to make water connections with two new houses. The cave-in occurred after his employer, Alfonso Damico, head of a contracting firm, and Nick Baccangelo had handed materiad down to him.

A district resident who saw the accident gave this account of it:

"They (Damico and Baccangelo) had just turned their backs when there was a slide of sand. The other two men started to dig for the old man who was down in the hole, but the sand kept sliding back in again."

It took nearly an hour to recover Bartucci's body. Artificial respiration was tried to no avail Bartucci had no relatives in Canada and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Katzman, with whom he boarded, said he spent most of his time at his work.

Shocked, Concussed Builder At Civic

Still dazed and suffering concussion, a Toronto worker, Gordon Stanfield, 49, is in Peterborough Civic Hospital recovering from an electric shock and the effects of the resulting fall, received while working at the new Civic Hospital about 3.30 Wednesday afternoon.

Reports of what happened were conflicting, but Dr. J. E. Howse said burns on the man's hand seemed to indicate he had received an electric shock.

A nearby worker said Stanfield had been hit on the head when a jack he was working slipped. Stanfield is a worker with a Toronto crane company which was installing a new boiler.

Superintendent L. D. Cumming said he didn't see how the man could have received a shock.

Farmers Hold Wheatland Day

LANGSTAFF, Ont. July 28 — (CP)—Some 3,500 western Ontario farmers Wednesday compared different varieties of wheat at the province's first wheatland day.

Sponsored by the York County Crop Improvement Association, the show also featured an exhibition of farm implements—combines, swathers, rakes and plows. Nearly 20 acres of wheat on the farm of Gordon Leitch was used for demonstration purposes.

For farmer Leitch it was a field day. The wheat crop was cut by combines, and plows and discs followed up. The field soon was ready for next year's crop.

Competition entered the picture in neighboring fields of Dawsons and Cornell 595 wheat. In early reaping, Cornell led with 37.4 bushels to 31.5 and, in addition, yielded more than a ton an acre more straw.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy, W. H. Waddell of the Ontario Agricultural College and Dr. H. H. Love of Cornell University were also present.

Fletcher Barred By N.Y. From City Stage

Bramwell Fletcher, star of the Broadway stage, will be unable to appear in Rebecca, Peterborough Summer Theatre's next week's production, Michael Sadlier, the company's producer, announced Wednesday.

Mr. Fletcher was scheduled to take the part of Maxim DeWinter, the role created on the Broadway stage and played in the United States two years. Plans had to be changed when the American Actors Equity, an American actors' guild or union, of which Mr. Fletcher is a senior member, put its foot down.

The ruling is that senior members of Equity are not allowed to appear with companies which do not come under its jurisdiction. The Peterborough Summer Theatre is not connected with American Equity, which heard about Mr. Fletcher's appearance in Angel Street here three weeks ago. Peterborough people who saw his fine performance as Inspector Rough in Angel Street will miss seeing him perform again.

"I am bitterly disappointed that the closed shop rules prevent me from acting in Peterborough, but for the rest of the season I will offer all the assistance Mr. Sadlier and his company might use, without appearing on the stage," Mr. Fletcher said.

35 Farm Helpers Come From West

Thirty-five farm workers from the Prairies have been ordered by the local National Employment Service, manager William Mellis said Tuesday These are only a small portion of the 1,500 farm workers ordered by the National Employment Service offices in Ontario. Last year about 40 farm workers came from the Prairies to help on the farms in the Peterborough area.

Mr. Mellis said he expected that the workers applied for this year will arrive in Peterborough some time next week. Last year, he added, the workers from the west were in Peterborough June 24 and 25. The pay this year varies from $75 to $100 a month with board. The workers pay their transportation from the west here and back which amounts to $21.50. They will be met at the railway station by the farmers and the officials of the National Employment Service.

Fred J. White, regional superintendent of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, said in Winnipeg that in some parts of the Prairies "minor shortages of farm help have occured but generally it would appear that the supply is sufficient to allow us to help Ontario."

Workers who go east from Manitoba wil be required to return home between August 17 and 31 to help with the western grain. Those from Saskatchewan and Alberta will return between August 23 and 31.

The weight of the United States effort must be brought to bear in those European countries most vital to the United States security and where the threat of aggression is most immediate, he said.

"Nevertheless, there are other areas in which an increase of defensive strength is highly desirable in the interest of our own security. We are bound with our American republic friends and neighbors in the Rio pact of mutual assistance. Under this program we intend to help them in procuring equipment.

On Cash Basis

"Equipment will be made available to them on a cash reimbursement basis in accordance with a provision....especially designed to help meet the procurement problems of the American republics and certain other friendly countries.

"The legislation would authorize the president to enter into contracts on behalf of the United States for procurement of such equipment upon a firm undertaking that the recipient nation will make reimbursement before delivery.

"This provision will also, of course, prove to be of considerable value to Canada. In addition, we are continuing to exchange with the Canadians vital information on weapons and plans common defense, and we are going forward with such important matters of mutual interest as standardization of arms and equipment."

Dollar Deficit Higher Than Expected

LONDON, July 28 (Reuters)—Britain's warning that her dollar deficit in 1949-50 will be greater than expected met with a mixed reception in the press today, though most agreed that the news was no surprise.

The Independent Times of London warns that "this drastic revision naturally raises some important issues."

The paper says it must be asked what hope there is of obtaining the agreement of the other European countries participating in the organization for European economic co-operation to the increased share of Marshall aid which Britain was implicitly seeking; whether in any case anything like $1,518,000 could possibly be obtained; and whether the probable amount of aid could be sufficient to safeguard the sterling area's dollar position for another year.

British treasury officials Wednesday night announced that the latest dollar-deficit estimate for 1949-50 is $1,518,000,000. This figure, $404,000,000 more than was estimated three months ago, was sent to OEEC headquarters in Paris.

Saying that American public opinion had been led to expect that the four years of the Marshall Plan would see Europe able to dispense with dollar aid by the middle of 1952, the Times warns that "the risk of disillusionment must not be lightly weighed."

The Liberal Manchester Guardian charges the government with "stirring up righteous indignation on the continent" with the announcement of its increased dollar estimate.

The Financial Times says the British estimate was not a new or startling development. It was not a "Cri de Coeur" for more dollars at the expense of the other Marshall countries. The main object was to get the record straight.

Rebecca Drama Takes Stage Next Week

Drama and mystery return to the stage of the Peterborough Summer Theatre at the Queen Mary auditorium with the production of Rebecca beginning Monday night.

The play is a dramatization of the novel by Daphne DuMaurier which was also made into a film starring Sir Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine. Bramwell Fletcher, who is directing the play, directed and starred in it in its two-year run on Broadway and across the United States.

The play also had a two-year run in London with Celia Johnston who starred in the British films Brief Encounter and In Which We Serve and others playing the leading role of Mrs. DeWinter.

Return Appearances

In the Summer Theatre's production, Jeri Sauvinet will play the childish second wife of Maxim DeWinter, embittered rich Englishman, with the versatile John Primm taking the part. Mr. Primm is thus maintaining his record of having appeared in all six plays thus far put on by the company. Miss Sauvinet has been winning many fans with her roles as Frankie in George and Margaret, Ruth in Blithe Spirit and Elaine in this week's Arsenic and Old Lace.

The role of the sinister and menacing Mrs. Danvers will be handled by Margot Christie, who is playing the very different part of Martha, one of the spinster aunts in Arsenic and Old Lace.

Brenda Davies is cast as Beatrice Lacey, county woman of the horse set and sister to Maxim. Mrs. Davies has performed admirably in Fortune My Fe and as the spirit medium in Blithe Spirit. Giles Lacey, her bumbling husband, will be played by Frank Perry, Dr. Einstein in the current "Arensic," the visitor in George and Margaret and the newspaperman in Fortune My Foe.

New Maid

Other regulars in the line-up will be Bill Needles, Michael Sadlier, Paul Horton and Gerry Sarracini. Joan Fowler, an apprentice who has been working at the company's secretary, will be cast as the maid. No newcomer to drama, Miss Fowler has considerable experience in radio plays in Toronto.

With Rebecca, the Peterborough Summer Theatre is presenting a type of play not yet seen on its stage. Peterborough theatre-goers are being treated to wide variety and from the steadily increasing number who are making it a point to attend each of the plays, they apparently like it.

Receives Gold Cross

WARSAW, July 28 (AP)—Captain Jan Cwiklinski of the Polish liner Batory has been awarded the gold cross of merit for "outstanding devotion to duty" in opposing the seizure of Gerhart Eisler, aboard his ship. Eisler, a German Communist, stowed away on the Batory in New York while free on bail on a charge of making false statements on a passport application. He eventually made his way to Russian-occupied Germany.

Bride's Father Shoots Minister

TAMPA, Fla., July 28.—(AP).—A Baptist minister was shot to death Wednesday—a month after he married his 15-year-old former church organist. Police said the bride's father admitted the slaying.

Police reported Ward C. Cornelius, 52, said "Thank God for that" when he learned Rev. John P. Lane, 35, was dead. Cornelius, a railway baggage employee, was held on an open charge.

Lane ran away with Ann Cornelius to get married in Ashburn, Ga., June 14. She was a high school sophomore. Her parents bitterly opposed the marriage.

Police gave this account of the slaying:

Lane was stopped in his auto for a traffic light.

Cornelius drove alongside, tried to talk to Lane, then dismounted from his car and attempted to enter the minister's car. An argument led to the shooting.

Cornelius fled, but later related to police he began shooting when he saw Lane "start reaching for something." When officers went to arrest him in his son's apartment, Cornelius told them: "Well, I did it—is he dead?"

Lane, who had been married before, resigned his pastorate at the Florida Ave. Baptist Church shortly before his elopement. While preaching, he had doubled as boys' secretary at the YWCA here. He returned to the YMCA job after coming back from his honeymoon.

At War 35 Years Ago

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia, July 28—(AP)—Thirty-five years ago today the First World War broke out as an indirect result of a double slaying in this ancient town. On July 28, 1914, Serbian student Gavrillo Princep fatally shot Archduke Francis of Austria and his pretty young wife. Result: Austria declared war on Serbia. Germany invaded France. Russia invaded Germany. Then a British Expeditionary Force landed in France.

Labour's Voice In Municipal Affairs

The Allied Labor Council has weakened its influence by sending letters to the City Council which reveal a lack of accurate information about local affairs. The A.L.C. presses that work begin on the new federal building; the Council replies that builders are unable to get enough men for the work they have on hand. The A.L.C. urges the Council to build 1000 cheap houses; the Council replies that builders are unable to do so. The A.L.C. expresses worry about fire protection of the South End; the Council replies that the Fire Marshal, the insurance underwriters and the householders are satisfied that all is well in that respect. The A.L.C. failed to score with any of its suggestions.

* * *

If the A.L.C. had taken the trouble to do a little investigating before hand, it would not have asked needless questions. Such a body should have known whether there were any builders unemployed in Peterborough, and what their prospects were, before exciting itself about a job which has been hanging fire for years, and will undoubtedly hang fire for many years to come. A question to the City Clerk in private would have revealed that the City has no authority to build cheap houses. And a few questions in the South End or at the Fire Hall could have settled the question of fire protection. The Council does not exist for the purpose of answering questions put to it by bodies which are not ready to find out whether the questions make sense or not.

* * *

We are strongly in favour of labour having a voice in civic affairs, if that voice has anything to contribute to the general welfare. For some years we have pointed out at municipal election time that the Allied Labour Council has a chance to put one of its men on the City Council, if it can get him enough support. But merely asking questions, the answers to which are already well known to great numbers of people, is no contribution to local government.

Truly Canadian Food

From time to time we have made a hullabaloo in these columns about the bad food which is too commonly met with in Canadian hotels and restaurants. We have cried aloud not only for better food, but for different food — some imaginative departure from the cuisine which as reached Canada from France by way of the United States. We have campaigned against embalmed chicken, petrified beef, and pies made out of cheap jam encased in cardboard. We are delighted, therefore, to receive a small cookbook from the Junior Chamber of Commerce in which recipes are given for a special dish from each province of the Dominion. Here they are:

British Columbia: Lion's Gate pancakes
Alberta: Beefsteak pie.
Saskatchewan: Baked macaroni and cheese.
Manitoba: Popovers supreme.
Ontario: Blueberry crisp pudding.
Quebec: Laurentian family soup.
New Brunswick: Peticodiac baked beans.
Nova Scotia: Annapolis apple pudding.
Prince Edward Island: Charlottetown clam chowder.
Newfoundland: Corner Brook cod with pork scrapples.

In addition there are five recipes representing "the culinary art of France" as practised in French Canada.

We have examined these recipes with the eye of a practised trencherman, and if we have a criticism, it is that they err on the side of plainness. Not, mind you, that we have anything against plain food; but to make a plain dish well a very good cook is needed, and there is plenty of ghastly evidence that the cooks of Canada are not of the best. We can imagine Lion's Gate Pancakes being very fine indeed; we can also imagine them turning out like bootsoles.

However, it is not our wish to carp, but to commend. The Junior Chamber has taken a step in the right direction, and we hope that it will distribute this small but distinguished cookbook very widely. We hope that Canadian cooks will use it, and that it will form a nucleus for a larger book. There is no reason in the world why we cannot have good food, and distinctive food, in Canada. All that is needed is the determination.

Conservatism And Socialist Measures

The Conservative Party in Britain has established the platform with which it will appeal to the electorate in the next General Election—this autumn or early next year. The platform is of the kind we have come to expect of the Conservatives, both in Britain and Canada; it will not revoke any of the nationalization of industry which has already been accomplished, it promises new measures of social security, and yet it attacks the men who have brought about the present measures of nationalization and social security, and Mr. Churchill declares that "never before in the history of human government has such great havoc been wrought by such small men". Does this make sense? No, it does not, but it illustrates the paradox which afflicts Conservatism today.

Many times in these columns we have stressed the fact that virtually all governments in civilized countries today are socialist governments in some degree. The electorate can only be caught by promises of new benefits; talk about hard work, austerity, greater production and more careful spending is distasteful. A great part of any electorate is incurably childish, and what it wants from politicians is not a sober appraisal of fact but a promise of miracles. Conservative parties can no longer offer an alternative theory of government to the electorate; they can only offer a change from radical governments, and they can only hope for victory if they can outbid radical governments, and play upon the dissatisfaction which grows up around any government that has been in power for some time. The theory of conservatism is, for the present, dead or at least in a coma.

If Mr. Churchill's party is elected in Britain it will not attempt to return the railways, the coal mines, the gas works or the electrical supply companies to private ownership. It would be possible to do so, and we think that some measure of restitution—we are thinking of the railways in particular—might be a popular move. (Nobody, we think, would want to see the coal mines returned to private ownership, for they were notoriously ill-managed). But the Conservatives have no intention of trying the experiment; they fear, no doubt, that it might make them appear "reactionary"; nowadays any sort of change is accepted as an "advance", and to admit that a mistake has been made and to return to a former condition is labelled without thought as "reactionary".

The platform of the British Conservative party is not an inspiring one. It is, in fact, socialism-and-water, as most political programs are today. Fortunately it is personalities, rather than programs, which win most elections.

More About Poison Ivy

A few days ago we published a letter from a reader who had suffered from the stinging rash of poison ivy; we asked if there was any way of getting rid of this noxious plant permanently. We have received a letter from a gentleman in the district who, wishes to remain anonymous, who says that he has had complete success in destroying the plant with a substance called 2-4D; a solution he says, sprayed on a patch of poison ivy, will destroy it completely in about three weeks, killing the leaves first, the vine, and finally the roots. The substance is not injurious to grass, and its use does not involve any cutting or grubbing.

Another informant tells us that medical science now has a number of treatments which alleviate the pain of poison ivy rash, and that people who are especially susceptible to it can be treated with a serum early in the year, which is usually effective in guarding them against annoyance during the season.

There are several weeds which thrive in this district which cause great annoyance. Poison ivy is one, and ragweed(which is the cause of hay fever in many cases) is another. Anyone who destroys these pests does a good turn to the rest of mankind.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"France Bans Demoralizing Literature" says a headline. For fear of competition with the native product, we presume.

The Kingston Whig-Standard says that it once tried to laugh at its troubles, but the troubles laughed right back. Yes, and trouble has an awfully loud laugh—almost rude.

A zoo reportes a hippopotamus which is 46—apparently a great age for a hippo—and "has never had a romance". A few romances would at least have helped to pass the time.

Opera In England

By STEPHEN WILLIAMS

LONDON has probably had more opera since the end of the war than at any other period in living memory. The English provinces have not been quite so fortunate. True, the Covent Garden and Sadler's Wells companies visit the principal provincial centres for a few weeks in the year, but early in the century there were three or four companies which concentrated on the provinces and hardly bothered about London at all. Today the only company of this kind is the seventy-six-year-old Carl Rosa which, although it relies mainly on a "safe" repertory, has recently staged a new production of Wagner's The Flying Dutchman and given the first performances in England of Smetana's The Kiss.

✧ ✧ ✧

LONDON, however, has opera nearly all the year round.. Sadler's Wells Theatre re-opened in June, 1945, with Britten's Peter Grimes, Covent Garden at the end of 1946 with Purcell's The Fairy Queen, and they have presented opera and ballet, with only short absences, ever since. In addition, there was the New London Opera Company, which gave us two years of almost continuous opera at the Cambridge Theatre, only a few minutes' walk from Covent Garden.

✧ ✧ ✧

COVENT Garden, which like Sadlier's Wells receives a grant from the Government, may fairly be described now as England's National Opera House. The Covent Garden Trust was formed to rescue the theatre from its inglorious bondage as a dance hall during the war. The Trust ransacked England and other countries for the best singers available and although it naturally encouraged native talent it did not make the insular mistake of barring foreigners because they were foreigners. The Covent Garden Trust productions have included representative works by Mozart, Beethoven, Verdi, Puccini, Moussorgsky, Strauss, Bizet and Wagner. Kirsten Flagstad sang Brunnhilde in the Valkyrie and Isolde in Tristan and Isolde and Hans Hotter, the German baritone, appeared in The Mastersingers, the Valkyrie, Tristan and Siegfried. The rule is that, this being England's National Opera House, the works shall be sung in English; but this rule has occasionally been broken for the convenience of foreign singers who have not had time to learn the English version. It was better, for instance, to hear Flagstad's Isolde in German than not to hear it at all.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN the Trust's prospectus for this summer's season there appears beneath the titles of the two cycles of Wagner's "Ring" and the two performances of Tristan and Isolde the curt announcement "sold out"; and this is typical of the tremendous revival of interest in opera since the war. There is, in fact, a new public, young, earnest and eager to learn. And Covent Garden has recognized this new public by making drastic changes in its whole artistic outlook.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE policy now is to preserve a more or less resident company of singers, conductors and producers who know each other's ideas and capacities and can therefore work together in a team spirit. And although it would be manifestly absurd to cast an artist of international stature like Flagstad for one the Rhinemaidens or the Norns it is nevertheless true that the old "star" system is no longer encouraged. In the old days it was a case of Melba (or Caruso) is singing at "The Garden" tonight, and nobody troubled much what the opera was. Nowadays people don't go to Covent Garden to hear a particular singer, they go to hear the opera. Consequently far greater care is bestowed on production, acting, scenery and general effect. Sometimes this goes too far: the productions of Boris Godounov: and Carmen for instance suffered from "fussiness," excess of "business," the producer's over-anxiety to keep things moving and give the singers something to do all the time. But it is a good fault.

✧ ✧ ✧

The team spirit is of course even more evident in the Sadler's Wells company, since this is essentially and wholly a native enterprise, employing British artists and giving all performances in English. Besides the customary popular repertory this company has staged a number of less familiar operas including Rimsky-Korsakov's Snow Maiden, Wolf-Ferrari's I Quattro Rusteghi under the title of The School for Fathers, Vaughan William's Sir John In Love (a version of Shakespeare's The Merry Wives of Windsor) and the first performance in England of Verdi's "Simone Boccanegra," composed in 1857 and revived with many touches of Verdi's later style in 1881. A new production of Gounod's Faust with many admirable and a few questionable innovations revived interest in the old masterpiece and also caused violent controversy. But violent controversy is good for opera; it keeps it alive. I am unchivalrous enough to think that, generally speaking, the men at Sadler's Wells reach a higher standard than the women. James Johnston, a young Irishman, is as fine a tenor as can be heard anywhere, and outstanding among the basses and baritones have been Howell Glynne, Arnold Matters and Roderick Jones. Sadler's Wells is not and never was a fashion parade. It is in a dingy and unfashionable part of London, its prices are lower than those of Covent Garden and it has always had, on the average, a younger public, a public of the "student" type.

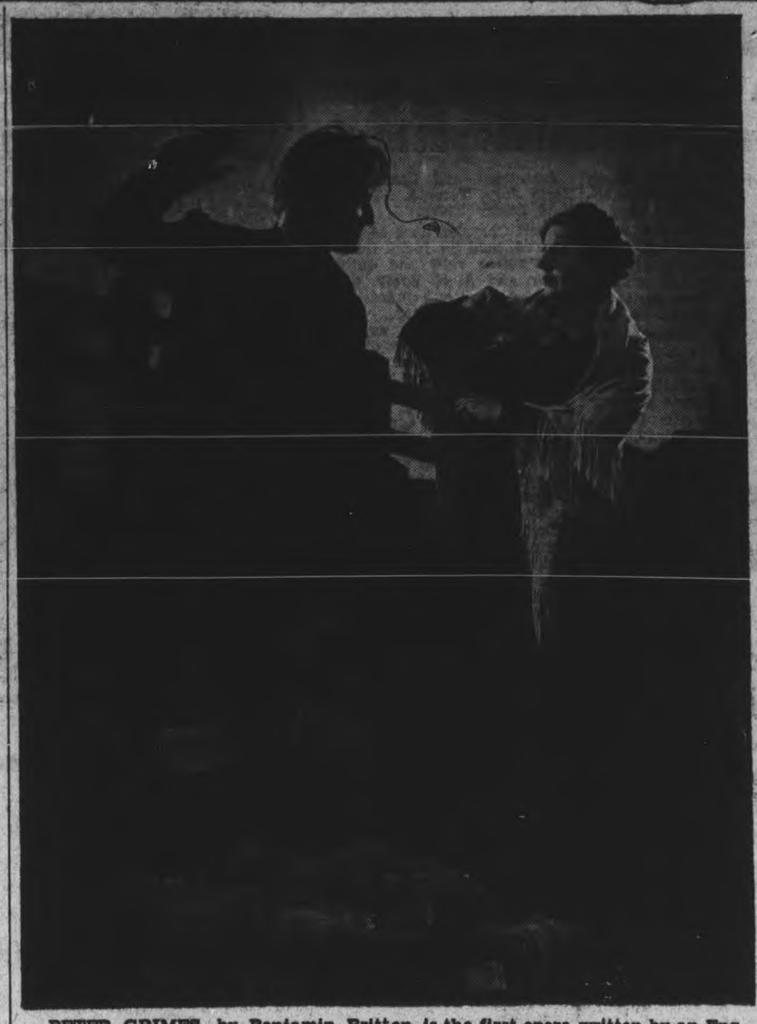
PERHAPS one of the most striking features of post-war opera in England has been the rise to world fame of Benjamin Britten, the most prolific, most successful and perhaps most brilliant of England's younger composers (he is still under forty). The first opera that put Britten on the map of the world, and which some think is his best, was Peter Grimes, a setting of a verse story by George Crabbe (1754-1832) who, like Britten, was a native of Suffolk in eastern England. Many people found the story—that of a morose fisherman who illtreats his boy apprentices—rather distasteful, and certainly Britten did not superficially sweeten it with his music, which was uncompromisingly modern. But there was no question of the power and brilliance of the score, and Peter Grimes set the world on fire. It was first produced at Sadler's Wells in 1945, has been revived there and at Covent Garden and has also been performed in America and many European countries. Britten then gave us The Rape of Lucretia to a translation of Andre Obey's play and later Albert Herring, a comic opera—almost a burlesque—based on a short story by De Maupassant. He has also shocked the more sentimental among the musical world by an audacious rescoring of The Beggars' Opera, which was first produced in 1728 and revived in 1920 when Frederic Austin rearranged the traditional airs with much charm and grace. Britten's version, strident and dissonant, is of course startlingly different. Britten is now engaged on a further opera and indeed there seems no end to his industry and resource. But the world is still waiting for him to produce a genuine masterpiece, that will appeal to the heart as much as to the brain.



PETER GRIMES, by Benjamin Britten, is the first opera written by an Englishman since the time of Purcell to command the respect of the whole musical world. In this picture the tenor Peter Pears is seen in the role of "Grimes", with Joan Cross as the schoolmistress, Ellen Orford. (See Third Column article on Opera in England).

Letters To The Editor

FAIR PLAY FOR TEACHERS

Sir,—We are pleased to notice, in a recent issue of your paper, a pupil take up the cudgels in the teachers' interests. It is so easy to blame the teacher and shield pupil and parents. We have found that the teachers are always anxious to help those who are willing to help themselves. After all, if the pupil ever expects to make anything of himself, now is the time to lay a good foundation. He will be able to build on this as he goes through life.

In our own case we wish to pay tribute to one long passed away. We were only a comparative handful of pupils in the little red country school. Our teacher was one who believed that our best was never too good. She studied, and took her B.A. degree to teach us. When I stand before her grave in Little Lake cemetery, I remove my hat in honor and loving memory of such a teacher.

FAIR PLAY.

ATTACKS ON THE ORANGE ORDER

Sir: Kindly allow me permission to reply to our Keene critic "One Who Knows". His feeble attempt to create a bit of humour re the Orange Order and certain alleged statements reported at Exhibition Park in Toronto July 12, deserves a challenge. Has this "wise man" from Keene any proof that such statements were ever made? Furthermore why didn't he contribute a letter to each of the three large Toronto dailies; the same replica of this one in the Examiner? He would have given Mr. Murphy ample opportunity to know what's cooking. I do know that the Rev. Henry Matthew of Davenport Presbyterian Church, Toronto, addressed the Hamilton Orangemen that same day and his address was juggled so badly by some cockeyed reporter that Rev. Matthews was forced to reply and state what he really did say. I can prove this because I have his letter cut from the Telegram. I also notice that some reporters always make it a point to take a slap at the Orange Order too.

Let me ask our Keene critic just who helped to deliver the Roman Bull (Rome) from the Nazi gnat in 1945? I'll tell him. It was the Protestant Allied Soldiers who made up the bulk of the American, Canadian and British Army of Invasion. And a great majority of these were Orangemen, thousands of whom did not return. I wonder if some know they were there. Ask some returned men who fought in Sicily. Outside of fighting for the cause of Right, was Sicily worth fighting for? Sixty thousand Orangemen, enough to make up 60 Battalions, comprised the old C.E.F. in 1914-18 and 6600 didn't return. I wonder if Roman France and Belgium knew they were there? Tell us who is going to strangle the Communist octopus now engulfing Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Finland, China, etc.? Tell who is going to release Cardinal Mindzenty of Prague likewise thousands of other Protestant and Roman Catholic ministers of Christianity from Soviet prisons? Sooner or later I am sorry to admit we will be engulfed into a third dreadful terrifying mailstrom. Roman Catholic and Protestant and Orangemen soldiers will stand shoulder to shoulder to fight for Christianity's cause. I have no desire to become embroiled in any nasty argument but when the challenge is offered I have the courage to reply and sign my name. As one who has belonged to the Orange Order for 27 years I could also use that nom de plume too, "One Who Knows" what he is talking about. Thank You.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples. And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth. Give us day by day our daily bread. And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil . . .

And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent? . . . If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him? (Luke 11:1-4,9-11,13).

Now when Jesus was come into Peter's house, he saw his wife's mother laid, and sick of a fever. And he touched her hand, and the fever left her; and she arose, and ministered unto them. (Mat. 8:14,15).

Uses Of Leisure

Lethbridge Herald

In the old days there was no such thing as retirement. People worked because they had to work to live. Then came machinery and retirement became possible. But there are still a lot of people who are not happy in retirement. It may be that in time we will learn to develop a hobby or other interests outside our work to enable us to keep busy when we retire.

We have not arrived at that stage yet so far as the mass of the people are concerned. Until we do retirement is feared by many people who feel they would be better off doing at least some work until the end. The truth is that we still have a lot to learn about leisure.

Robin Cuts Power

APSLEY, July 28 (ENS)—One day recently the power and lights suddenly went off at one of the local power stations. The operator got in touch with the trouble man. Upon examination he found the fuse in the transformer destroyed. Thinking it might be the work of a bird he made a search at the foot of the pole and found a blue robin had been killed. It was badly cut from beak to tail and the tail was burned. The robin had built a nest in the bird house and became pets at the home of the operator.

Mimico Mauls St. Kitts In 22-4 Triumph

By The Canadian Press

Mimico Mountaineers jumped into a second place tie in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior race with Owen Sound Crescents in suburban Mimico last night, when they licked St. Catharines Athletics 22-4. And Hamilton Tigers, playing on home ground, edged nearer fourth place, defeating Weston Lions 13-10 before 600 spectators.

The Mountaineers hopped into a 7-3 lead in the first session and moved ahead 14-3 and 19-3 by quarters, to snap Athletics' win string at six games.

Play Sluggish

At Hamilton, play was sluggish except for the occasional solo spurt. Led by Jack Dorney and Merv McKenzie, who scored four and three goals, respectively, the Tigers jumped into a 4-0 lead before Weston notched its first marker at the 11-minute mark of the opening period.

Tigers maintained their margin of ease in the second session, scoring three goals to Weston's two, for a half-time tally of 7-3. But Lions came back in the second half. At the end of the third period they had moved to within three goals of the Hamilton crew, but their attack was checked in the final stanza.

Top men for the Weston squad were the two Downers, Ted scoring three goals and Harold two.

Young Petes Wallop Colborne 10-3

By FRED MAYBEE

McGuinness' Young Petes soundly defeated Colborne intermediates 10-3 last evening at Riverside to wind up their home schedule, prior to playoffs.

Art Pagett's scrappy young squad who have made a remarkable showing in the Lakeshore Baseball League this year, will play in Trenton, Monday, August 1, to conclude their road schedule. They will later enter junior playoffs.

Led by Speed Curry, Corkery and Teeter Collins, the locals banged out 13 hits off the combined offerings of Bill Ball and Cec. Hall to defeat the loop leaders handily. The game was fairly close for five innings but the locals scored five in the sixth on hits by Curry and Sullivan, a walk to Thomson and successive safeties by Corkery and Millar, an error on Collins' smash and Pagett's hard double to right.

Great Show Final Five

George Sullivan relieved Ward to start the third and turned in a great effort for the final five innings of play. He held Colborne to three hits, fanned three, walked one and allowed no runs in another good display of versatility. His mates afforded him fine support afield. Millar, Pagett, Thomson, and Stewart all showed up well in this game, with every man giving his best.

For Colborne, the Clarey brothers played will with Haynes and Rowson also good in defeat.

Campbellford Whips Wooler

TRENTON, July 28. — Campbellford moved to within half a game of the league-leading Wooler nine by handing them a 16-2 defeat in a Trent Valley League fixture played under the lights at Bayshore Park Tuesday night.

It was a 2-2 deadlock until the top of the fifth frame when the visitors broke out with no fewer than eight runs. They added a trio in the seventh and again in the ninth, while holding Wooler scoreless after the second.

Big Bruce McComb on the Campbellford rubber was in rare form, allowing but four hits while claiming 10 on strikes. Barney McColl went well for the homesters until the fatal fifth when he gave way to Buck Stacey. When Stacey failed to retire the first three batters, McColl came back and finished the game. McColl claimed an even dozen batters on strikes.

Harrington with a double and single paced the visitors, with Holmes, O'Sullivan, Robinson and Blake each having a pair of singles. Buck Stacey was top hitter for the homesters with a triple and a single while Redcliffe and McColl each banged out doubles.

B.C. Swimmers Break Records

VANCOUVER, July 28—(CP)—Canada's mermen and maids kicked, stroked and dived their way to places in the Dominion's British Empire Games swim team here Wednesday night, breaking one more and likely two records on the way.

Although it will be a day or two before the official competitors are announced the judges lost no time in scribbling marks opposite at least two names.

These were Vancouver's blue-eyed speed queen, Irene Strong whose time of 1:13.4 set Canadian record for 100 yards breast stroke and Pete Salmon of Victoria, B.C., who made a clear sweep of the same event for men as well as the freestyle finals.

Miss Strong set the former record in the breast stroke, clocking a time of 1:02.1.

In the team events the Vancouver Amateur Swiming Club, led by Miss Strong, churned up the pool for a record in the 400 yards freestyle relay with a time of 4:26.2. This mark officially noted as a "club team" record, will probably be announced as official Friday.

Jack Guest Jr. Scores A Win

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., July 28 (CP)—A crowd-pleasing program of eight finals, featured by the pay-off event in the junior sculling singles, was on the program today as the 67th annual Royal Canadian Regatta moved into the second of its four-day card. The big attraction is 16-year-old Jack Guest, Jr., of Toronto Dons.

The youngster, son of the famous Jack Guest who won the prized diamond sculls 19 years ago and the regatta singles championship 20 years ago, will be on trial. Experts figure he has it on the ball to be a world-beater and his showing today will be a big yardstick on which to base their opinions.

The six-foot four 182-pound sculler, competing in his first regatta, came up with the high school singles final to start the Henley off Wednesday and followed with a second place to qualify for the junior singles title. This is the second event on today's program—and it should be a lot tougher than the high school race.

He will be up against Tom Brophy of the Fairmount Athletic Club of Philadelphia who beat him to the wire in 8:22 in a junior singles heat. Another finalist is Rudy Poschl of Hamilton Leanders who covered the distance in 8:18.0 to win his heat.

In the tune-up match at London Wednesday, with the pros, the British amateurs lost eight individual matches, won one and halved another. Tuesday they lost three and won two foursomes, finishing behind the pros, 11½ to 3½.

Montreal Golfer Ends Reign Of Stranahan

RIVERSIDE GOLF AND COUNTRY CLUB, SAINT JOHN, N.B., July 28 (CP)—Whipped into a turmoil of excitement by the upset of Dominion Champion Frank Stranahan, the Canadian amateur golf championship entered the quarter-final round today with seven Canadians and one lone American in a scramble for the relinquished title.

It fell to chubby little Tommy Riddell of Montreal Wednesday to end the Toledo muscle man's reign of two years.

Tommy outgamed and outclassed Stranahan to win one up at the first extra hole of a match packed with drama.

Wednesday's two 18-hole rounds took a swift toll in Canadians and Americans alike.

Two other upsets were overshadowed by Riddell's sensational accomplishment.

Laurie Roland, 16-year-old junior champion of British Columbia, knocked off John Kraft of Denver, Colo., one up in the morning round to the surprise of the former trans-Mississippi champion, and then blasted Cliff Soberg of Saskatoon, 7 and 5 in the afternoon.

Kesselring Out

Big Mike Pidlaski, of Winnipeg eliminated Ontario's amateur champion, Jerry Kesselring, of Kitchener, in the morning, 4 and 3, and then took a close fight from Ollie Kay, Stranahan's Toledo friend, by one up in the afternoon.

In the midst of all the hubub, Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver was called by the experts as the likely Canadian to reach the finals Saturday with Dick Chapman of Osterville, Mass., as his opponent.

The Riddell-Stranahan match had the gallery's nerves worn to a frazzle before it was hardly under way. The Quebec amateur champion and the debonair Toledo heir to millions put on a dog fight all through the first nine holes.

The turn was all-square. They played it carefully at the 17th and 18th, where either could have won the match with birdie putts.

At the extra hole Riddell was on the green in two and Stranahan was just short. Pitching to the pin was nine feet short. It was an easy two-putt par for Riddell and Stranahan missed his nine-foot bid to keep the match alive.

A's Take New Lease On Life Knock Off Doubleheader

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Maybe Connie Mack was right when he said his Philadelphia Athletics still had a chance in the American League race.

They laughed when he spoke with optimism in St. Louis as his A's floundered close to the second division. They had lost 12 of their last 14 on a sorry road trip.

When he let Carl Scheib pitch the entire nine innings at Chicago last week, absorbing an 18-hit, 12-0 drubbing, many figured Mr. Mack was conceding. That drab evening the Mackmen fell 10½ games behind the leaders.

Then the A's turned. A double-header sweep over the White Sox Sunday and now three straight over the wobbly St. Louis Browns and they have a new five-game win streak. Furthermore they are only 7½ back of the leading New York Yankees and only a half-game behind the sizzling Boston Red Sox.

To cap this turn-about-face, Scheib went the route again Wednesday night, despite a five-run first inning assault by the Brownies.

Roy Sievers and Dick Kokos hit homers in that first inning and Bob Dillinger smashed a triple. After thta frame, Schieb alowed only two more hits.

Take Opener

Philadelphia won the opener of a twilight-night double-header for Lou Brissie, 7-3, with a four-run spurt in the fourth when Eddie Joost cleared the bases with a double.

The only runs off Red Munger came from homers by Buddy Blattner and Willie Jones.

Brooklyn ended its longest losing streak at four games by routing the Chicago Cubs 7-3. Starting pitcher Don Newcombe failed to last the route. Manager Burt Shotton brought in Erv Palica to retire the side in the ninth.

New York Giants saved fifth place by trimming Pittsburgh, 8-3, on the flashy relief pitching of Kirby Higbe. Wes Westrum's three-run homer in the seventh was the big blow of the game.

Marv Ricket bashed a homer with a man on in the 13th inning for Boston's 9-7 triumph over Cincinati. Bob Elliott accounted for four earlier runs with two homers before he was run off the premises by Umpire Frank Dascoli.

The A's pulled the second one out of the fire for Scheib on a two-run rally against Red Embree in the eighth inning for an 8-6 edge. A walk and two singles loaded the bases. Sherm Lollar's error on a double steal attempt yielded one run and two more walks, one intentional, shoved across the second.

Mel Parnell, the solid man of Boston's suddenly-potent pitching staff, held the Chicago White Sox to three hits in a 6-0 victory. It was his 14th victory and his 17th complete game in 21 starts.

Washington finally broke its 11-game losing string by edging Detroit 7-6 in the first of a twi-night doubleheader but the Tigers smothered the Senators 11-0 on Freddie Hutchinson's four-hit pitching to break even. Johnny Groth led the Tigers' 15-hit blast on Joe Haynes, Lloyd Hittle and Al Gettel in the second game, with four hits, including a double.

Rain postponed the second game of the New York-Cleveland series with the score tied 4-4 at the end of four innings. The crowd of 47,596 fans waited for an hour and 57 minutes before the game was called off.

Cards Run Wild

St. Louis Cards continued to run wild in the National League, preserving their 1½ game margin over Brooklyn, by smashing Philadelphia Phillies 7-3. It was their seventh straight victory in a string, interrupted by Monday's tie at Brooklyn.

Russ Derry Sparks Rochester Wings To 10-2 Victory Over Newark Bears

By The Associated Press.

Stan Musial, a menace to the Brooklyn Dodgers? Yes. But take a look at what Rochester's Russ Derry has done to the Newark Bears.

When Musial faced the Brooks in the recnt series in Flatbush his routine was hit...hit...out... hit...out. A .600 average.

But this Derry. In three games with the Bears it seemed he never made an out.

But, being human, the International League's leading home run hitter did go down—once in 10 tries at the plate.

Derry's nine hits consisted of five singles, two doubles and two home runs. He scored five times and batted in six runs.

Wednesday night the 31-year-old outfielder capped his performance with three hits in four at bats, including a three-run homer. The blow, his 28th, came in the sixth inning and enabled the Red Wings to overcome a 2-0 Newark lead.

Never Headed

Thereafter, the Wings were never headed. They scored five runs in that inning and added five more in the seventh to win handily, 10-2.

Righthander Tom Poholsky was the benefactor of Derry's lusty hitting and picked up his 13th victory. He has lost only five.

The triumph kept Rochester 3½ games behind the league-leading Buffalo Bisons, who defeated Baltimore 8-6.

Saul Rogovin gave up only five hits—two of them homers—in pitching his tenth triumph for the Bisons. Ken Wood and George Binks touched Rogovin for the round-trippers. Cosker Triplett, who had three safeties, hit a home run for the winners.

Johnny Hetki hurled the Syracuse Chiefs to a 6-1 victory over Montreal Royals. The Chiefs treated Hetki to four runs in the first inning and his 12th victory was easy.

Westclox Take Ashby; Lindsay Takes Westclox

Westclox edged the Ashby team 4-3 in the first game of the double-header in the Girls' Softball League fixtures Wednesday night in Riverside Bowl in ten innings. A hit by Hawthorne, a walk and an error brought the two runs across for the Westclox lasses. Westclox girls were turned back in the second game by the Lindsay girls 9 to 5 on the nine scattered hits allowed by M. Owen, while the Lindsay girls were banging out 16 safeties which included two homers by M. Chase.

In the first game the score was tied two-all at the end of ten inning of play. Ashby's counted one but the Westclox girls shoved two runs across in their half of the tenth. Westclox got their first two runs in the second inning when J. McIntyre hit a homer with one aboard. Ashby's counted in the second and fourth

M. Downer with her fine five-hit pitching was the star of the game, striking out six batters. J. McIntyre led her team in fielding as well as having two for four. M. Hawthorne had three for five at bat.

For the Ashby squad J. Reynolds led the batting parade with two for five while D. Callan was the standout in the fielding department. B. Reid pitched a good game but lacked the fielding support to win.

Defeated By Lindsay

Lindsay had no trouble in turning back the Westclox girls. M. Chase had two homers as did J. McIntyre who had hit on in the first game. The Westclox lasses scored a single in the first, a single in the fourth, three in the sixth to account for their five runs. Lindsay counted two in the eighth and two in the ninth inning on four hits, an error, a walk and a fielder's choice. They had previously scored a single in the first, three in the fourth and one in the sixth.

P. Graham and H. Deyell led the Lindsay team with their play in the field. Four players had three hits each, Chase, Deyell, Richard and Wilkins. For the Westclox team M. Hawthorne and B. Morrow were the choice of the fielding, while D. Westlake led the team at bat with four for five.

The Ketch Valkyrie out of Marblehead, Mass., and skippered by John MacDonald Wednesday was announced winner of the 366-mile Marblehead-to-Halifax yacht race.

The Valkyrie was first over the finish line—the breakwater at the entrance to Halifax harbor—a few minutes after midnight on Monday. Total time was just 57 hours from start of the race Saturday and the handicap gave Valkyrie a corrected time of 53 hours, 16 minutes and 17 seconds.

In second place in Class A was J. P. Maddon's yawl Brenda out of Danvers, Mass., with a corrected time of 58 hours, four minutes and 26 seconds.

The navy's sloop Grilse led the seven Canadian entries with a time of 63 hours, 47 minutes and 38 seconds. The Grilse was skippered by Captain E. W. Finch-Noyes, commander of the navy's Shearwater base in Halifax.

At Riverside Golf and Country Clbb, Saint John, N. B., the Royal Canadian Golf Association executive Wednesday decided to pay the Professional Golfers' Association of the United States the $1,500 golf clinic guarantee withheld last month at the Canadian open championship in Toronto.

Disappointed at the failure of the PGA to supply promised players for the pre tournament, the RCGA held up the cheque pending assurance that the clinic wouldn't suffer similarly in the future.

There was no comment by the executive on Wednesday's decision.

The Canadian lawn tennis championships, being held in the Maritimes for the first time this year, is expected to get under way with approximately 150 starters, tournament officials said at Halifax Wednesday night. Among the starters for the week-long event, Aug. 1-6, is the Hon. Robert Winters, Federal Minister of Reconstruction.

Battling on a rain-soaked Toronto field, Hamilton Westinghouse Wednesday night won the Eastern Canada soccer title by defeating Montreal Stelcos 6-3 in the final game of the best-of-three series. Montreal won the first game 1-0 and Hamilton the second 5-0. Westinghouse now will meet Winnipeg Scottish in the Canadian semi-final.

Bobby Locke, of South Africa, the tournament favorite, ended up one stroke behind the leaders on Wednesday in the first round of the Irish open golf championship at Belfast.

Locke, who detoured to the tourney when the United States PGA banned him from competing in its tournaments, shot a 71.

Harry Bradshaw of Ireland and Flory Van Donck of Belgium shared the lead with 70. Tied with Locke were three British professionals—Sam King, Alf Padgham and E. C. Pope.

Toronto Boxer Gets Decision Over Caravaggie

The card was sponsored by the Rotary Club and the proceeds are for community service work.

Bruce Deacon of Toronto won by a technical KO near the end of the third round from Jack Menzies of Havelock. Reg. Lavack of Toronto lost to Chic Hogan of Hamilton and Norm Thompson of Toronto got the unanimous decision of the judges over Aldo Carravaggie of Peterborough, in a hard-fought bout.

BEAT RED TAPE—Frank Morland left the Old Country eight months ago intending to bring his son, Frank, Jr., from Scotland as soon as possible. He forgot one thing—international air regulations require an adult accompany any child of 12 or under. Friends came to his aid, however, and the Overseas Scots' Reunion Club provided foster parents for the trip. In fact, they supplied a whole plane load. Frank is shown in this Trans-Canada Air Lines photo with his father and mother as he arrived at Montreal.

2 Cities Fight For Title Of Oil Capital

EDMONTON, July 28 (CP). — It's a good thing Edmonton and Calgary are 180 miles apart or who knows what the long distance squabble over which city is Canada's oil capital might develop into.

Never on the best of terms, the two cities have been eyeing each other more askance daily since oil was discovered almost inside Edmonton's city limits.

Calgary, whose Turner Valley fields were the first oil fields to be developed in Alberta, fired the first gun of the current dispute in a letter to the Regina Chamber of Commerce.

The Regina Chamber wanted to know whether Calgary or Edmonton could be considered Alberta's oil capital. In a letter, the Calgary Chamber's secretary, Eric McGreer, promptly claimed the honor.

He said that headquarters of most of the oil companies and the Stock Exchange are located in the foothills city. In addition, he said, a 16-storey, $3,000,000 oil centre building will be built in Calgary shortly.

Deny Claim

Edmonton Chamber of Commerce men and civic officials had no sooner read reports of Mr. McGreer's statements that their hackles rose. They loudly denied Calgary's claim.

Executive Secretary Don McKay of the Edmonton Chamber said Calgary may claim oil company buildings, but Edmonton is definitely the centre of the producing area with such vast fields as Leduc, Redwater, and Golden Spike within easy driving distance.

Calgary, without oil or expansion of oil development, cannot claim oil supremacy, he added.

But the most indignant protest came from Edmonton's city fathers who commented:

"That cowtown might as well say it is the diamond capital of Canada, too, because they probably sell diamonds in Calgary, and that is about as close as they come to being an oil centre—by selling Edmonton oil in their filling stations."

Junk Capsizes

MONTREAL, July 28—(CP)—The lake freighter City of Kingston and the cruise ship Island Queen collided in Lake St. Louis Tuesday night but there were no casualties and no apparent damage to either vessel.

The Island Queen had just left her berth at Lachine wharf with 75 passengers aboard when she was sideswiped by the freighter which was moving abreast of her.

The passenger vessel was pushed out of the channel and ran aground, but Captain Sydney Robinson brought her back into deep water and returned to the wharf. The City of Kingston continued on her course.

There was no panic among the Island Queen's passengers.

Declare Police In Quebec Soon To Be Second To None

VALLEYFIELD, Que., July 28.—(CP).— Police in Quebec are making such progress in scientific detection and co-ordinated effort "that the time appears not far off when we will be able to boast that our police departments are second to none," Det.-Ltd. Emil Joyal of Montreal said today.

Joyal made the statement during the course of his presidential address to the fifth annual meeting of the Canadian Brotherhood of Policemen. The convention brought delegates from 25 Quebec municipalities to this St. Lawrence river industrial city of 12,000.

The Brotherhood president attributed the progress to "a new dignity, born of proper organization and advanced wage and working standards."

He claimed that the reported progress was "closely linked" with improvements in salaries and working conditions of policemen. Since the Brotherhood was organized five years ago, the weekly wage of a Montreal constable grew from $35 to $55, he said.

"We are at long last professional men in the real sense of the word," Joyal said. "Whereas policemen once worked without much hope of getting anywhere, even when they exposed themselves to danger, they now feel they are in a respected, competitive profession where they can look forward to adequate reward for initiative and hard work."

Referring to "constant attacks" made by government authorities "so as to weaken the union by cutting its membership, the Brotherhood Union recommended "prudence tempered with firmness."

"We are a dignified profession," he said, "and we must at all times employ dignity in the struggle for our rights."

Hope Inquiry Will Improve Hospital Care

OTTAWA, July 28—(CP)—The Ottawa Citizen says today that Judge G. A. McDougall's judicial inquiry into Ottawa Civic Hospital "will have served a useful purpose" if it results in improved conditions at the hospital.

"To the extent that Judge McDougall's findings are accepted by the public, confidence in the civic hospital will be restored. . ." the Citizen says editorially.

The editorial comments on Judge McDougall's findings that complaints of inefficiency in the hospital are "not substantiated . . ., and do not exist in fact." The inquiry was ordered by Ottawa city council after a series of editorials in the Citizens, containing complaints of former hospital patients.

The paper says the former patients who testified at the inquiry had "two strikes against them."

It notes that Judge McDougall reported there was always a possibility "that their physical and nervous system would be so upset as to make it difficult for them to form reasonable conclusions."

"It would appear, therefore," the editorial says, "that it would be difficult if not impossible for former hospital patients to establish before a judicial inquiry, proof in a form satisfactory to the presiding judge, of conditions they experienced or saw. For it is obvious that their testimony would be heavily discounted in advance by any member of the judiciary who holds the opinion expressed."

The Citizen says it still disagrees with Judge McDougall's contention that the newspaper should have presented evidence to substantiate the allegations.

"Once the city council ordered a judiciary inquiry it was the duty of those in charge to make the investigation and gather all the available evidence. As matters developed, all but one or two of the 50 witnesses who complained of conditions at the hospital submitted their information to the Citizen, instead of to the commissioner or the commission counsel. In every instance, where such information was not given in absolute confidence, it was turned over to the inquiry, together with the name of the informant."

Steel Union Lines Up With Taft Labor Act

NEW YORK, July 28 (AP) — The United Steelworkers Union (CIO), agreed Wednesday to bring its million members into compliance with the Taft-Hartley Labor Act by signing non-Communist affidavits.

The union announced it had reluctantly come to the conclusion that the Act would not be repealed by the present Congress and that it must avail itself of the law's election procedures and other provisions. This it could not do without signing the affidavits.

The international executive board of the union voted unanimously to direct union officers to comply with the Act after hearing a speech by the union president, Philip Murray, at a closed session.

Lead Prices Increase Twice During The Week

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

A day's business news is made up of a lot of things. Here is a resume of a few of them from the last 24 hours:

Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., Ltd., announced a ¼c a pound increase in lead, the second increase this week, to bring it to 14½ cents, a boost of 2¾ cents since May.

Iron Age, Cleveland's metal-working trade weekly, notes a pick-up in steel orders in the United States, and thinks the possibility of lower prices on major steel products has been pushed back.

Latest available index figures on Canadian farm products prices and the general wholesale level, those for April, would seem to forecast a drop in the price of food. Both were down from their 1948 peaks.

Trade and Projects

Israel's consular officials in Ottawa say she wishes to buy such Canadian products as timber, farm machinery, and building supplies.

The third Canadian International Trade Fair will be held in Toronto next May 29-Jnue 9.

In New York General Motors Corporation reports net sales and earnings for the quarter ended June 30 at the highest point in the company's history.

Defence measures hasten opening of Canadian North. The latest: Canadian and United States Army and Air Force units will conduct exercises along the Yukon stretch of the Alaska Highway in February.

Britain seems to have scored with the distance passenger plane of two or three years hense. Her de Haviland all-jet-propelled airliner which made its maiden flight Wednesday, is expected to travel from London to New York in six hours, or about half present time-schedules.

Meanwhile, Canada's first all-jet airliners, built by Avro-Canada, is expected to be tested in August at Malton, near Toronto.

WASHINGTON, July 28 (CP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson said Wednesday there is danger the Chinese Communists may treat as hostages some 4,000 Americans who have failed to leave the country. In a new appeal for those who can do so to depart, the secretary acknowledged that under existing conditions the United States government is unable to provide protection.

Mother of a three-year-old boy, she has come out of semi-retirement to try for a spot on her third Empire Games team. Although she hasn't competed since 1938, her coach, Percy Norman, says "she's just as good as ever".

500 Take Part In Pageant At Millbrook

MIDLAND, July 28 (CP)—Three hundred years ago eight Jesuit Fathers met death at the hands of the pagan Iroquois Indians. For the next four nights their torture-deaths will be re-enacted on the spot where they fell.

The first production of "Salute to Canada," was given Wednesday night as 500 actors, musicians and dancers unfolded the pageant on a picturesque hillside of Martyrs' Shrine—the highlight of summer-long celebrations for the famous Jesuits.

Some 7,000 spectators sat in a large amphitheatre and watched scenes from the dawn of Canada's history as colored spotlights took the glittering story in sequence on four stages, one above the other.

The famous Fort St. Marie, the Jesuit "abode of peace," was destroyed before the onslaught of the Iroquois, who also set the torch to the Huron village.

Patriotic Spectacle

Although religion takes its place in "Salute to Canada" it is not a religious pageant but rather a patriotic spectacle.

The Volkoff Ballet, the Canadian Little Symphony, the Madrigal Singers, took important roles in the presentation, along with soprano Louise Roy of St. Boniface, Que., and internationally-known Canadian tenor Joseph Victor Laderoute, formerly of Sault Ste. Marie.

A high spot of the production came with the climax of the first act with the appearance of St. Michael and an introduction of a chorus portraying the eight martyrs. Their names rang out dramatically — Brebeuf, Lalement, Chabanel . . . they echoed back from the hillsides as the cast, representing early settlers and Indians, knelt in reverence.

For the theatre-minded Rev. Daniel A. Lord of St. Louis, Mo., it was a personal triumph. He produced the masque and wrote its scenario and the words and music for 18 of the songs.

Many bobby soxers, former school mates of Joyce, were among the courtroom crowd of 200.

"I was really worried until I heard the verdict," Joyce said as she embraced her mother. "I feel wonderful. It is a wonderful surprise. I have never stopped praying in four months."

Joyce, 17 pounds lighter after her four months in jail awaiting trial for the slaying of Carl Reeder, a school clerk, said she was uncertain about her future. She said she may become a missionary or, perhaps, a professional softball player.

Her mother, Mrs. Edna Schumaker, said the family will leave Waukegan so her daughter can start life anew and finish high school. She quit attending Waukegan high school, where she met Reeder, last September and worked in a towel laundry.

Defence Attorney Sidney H. Block in his closing statement to the jury, termed Reeder a "moral degenerate, a big brute, a pure moral leper." He said Joyce was an "emotional happy-go-lucky kid of 16 before Reeder entered his life."

Joyce testified she had sexual relations with Reeder during her early courtship with him, before she learned he was married. She said Reeder pursued her despite her repeated demands that they end their affair.

Wanted To End Affair

Joyce told the jury that on April 4 she drove with Reeder and a girl friend, Joyce Kirkpatrick, 17, to the lake front "to see if she could persuade Reeder to leave me alone."

She said she pointed an empty gun at him and then loaded the pistol with three cartridges. She said Reeder took the gun away from her and when Miss Kirkpatrick asked for it he returned it to Miss Schumacker.

"I held the gun loosely in my hand," she testified. "He grabbed it. I could feel the pressure of the gun on his body and the gun went off."

She then told how she drove Reeder to a hospital where he died shortly afterward. She surrendered to police.

Wants Religion In Labor Unions

VALLEYFIELD, Que., July 28 (CP)—A Montreal priest today called for more religious spirit among labor unions and urged the Quebec government to kill private bills preventing policemen of "certain municipalities" from joining the Independent Canadian Brotherhood of Policemen.

Rev. Pierre Trudel, chaplain of the brotherhood which is bargaining agent for 2,050 policemen of 25 Quebec municipalities, told the union's fifth annual meeting that only with the help of the church's social doctrine "can all employer-employee problems be justly and durably solved."

The priest did not refer by name to the municipalities involved in the private bills, but brotherhood officials said there had been four instances of private bills being approved by the Quebec Legislature. They said the bills either forbade policemen to join the brotherhood or forced them to withdraw from it.

Father Trudel quoted from Papal encyclicals "upholding man's natural rights of association" and said that mayors, municipal secretaries and chiefs of police had not only been permitted but encouraged to form provincial unions for their common good.

Doukhobors Plan Celebration

GRAND FORKS, B.C., July 28 (CP)—A 50-year span of residence in Canada—much of it troubled—will be celebrated by 5,000 orthodox Doukhobors here July 31-Aug. 1.

Since the religious sect migrated to the Dominion from Russia in 1899 in an escape from persecution, they often have flouted Canadian law as "man-made." The Doukhobors themselves have splintered into rival groups.

Climax of Sunday's program will be a cavalcade of 18 groups, each showing some period of the 50 years in this country. Monday will finish with a drama showing the Russia where first the group underwent persecution for refusing to bear arms.

Provincial and Federal dignitaries have been invited to attend the celebration along with the Russian envoy at Ottawa. Several hundred Doukhobors from California and Mexico will attend.

But a schism in the sect is exemplified by this statement from the celebration committee:

"This celebration has nothing to do whatever with what the Sons of Freedom (or Spiritual Community of Christ) may do, as we (the Union of the Spiritual Communities of Christ) do not intend to have them on the grounds; nor will they have any part in the cavalcade aside from our showing what damage they did to our property and the discrimination they have brought against our group as a whole."

Explosion an fires causing damage estimated in millions has rocked the interior in latter years following earlier periods of nude parades aimed as signs of protest against Canadian law.

Find Alaska Highway Major Defence Route

OTTAWA, July 28 (CP)—The Alaska highway, long, strategic road that runs from Dawson Creek, B.C., through the Yukon and into Alaska, is shaping up as a major factor in joint Canadian-American planning nd training for continental defence. It would be a key route in an enemy invasion of the north.

With airborne assault manoeuvres, Canadian and American forces are going to stage their biggest joint peacetime military exercise along the Yukon stretch of the highway in February. Small advance elements of the U. S. Army already have started moving into place to prepare accommodation and make administrative arrangements.

Army and air force units of both countries will participate in a mock operation that will constitute a follow-up to "exercise Eagle" Canadian land and air forces are staging over 120 miles of Northern Alberta and British Columbia early in August. Results of the August exercise, embracing the first 50 miles of the highway, will play a part in the winter aftermath.

Two Aldermen Go On Tour To Find How Other Cities Coordinate Parks, Works

By HARRY THEOBALD

Ald. Herb. Young, chairman of the parks committee, and Ald. Hurrell Dodds, chairman of the board of works, are leaving Tuesday morning to visit four or five cities of Peterborough's size to enquire into methods of coordinating the parks and streets departments. This is a perennial problem here, and it often shows its head in other municipalities.

The question involved is broadly: where does parks responsibility end and board of works responsibility begin? The average ratepayer would imagine that all the council has to do is settle the matter and go on about the city's business. But, then when he got into the council and became chairman of one or the other committee, his attitude would undergo a radical change.

This is one of the anomalies of municipal administration for which the onlooker is unable to find explanation.

Whose Responsibility?

Who should cut down the trees? Parks or board of works? One answer to the question is to appoint a parks commission with limits of authority fixed by provincial statute and leave the streets department to its own affairs.

Some aldermen have said from time to time that the board of works should have charge of all the outdoor operations, including the parks. But, that is something said after the first meeting in January when a parks committee has been appointed with a chairman who becomes suddenly conscious of the entity and worth of his department.

City council used to say they "wanted no part of a parks commission" because that commission was empowered to requisition the council for at least one mill in the tax rate. Eventually, the parks committee was spending more than the mill, and by a wide margin that worried the treasury deparment. So far, there has not been the slightest disposition within the council to set up a parks commission.

This difference of opinion about the scope of the two departments goes on from one administration to the next. The simple-minded taxpayer would probably suggest that it sounds like a simple matter, easily adjusted and also efficiently.

But, here is the bare fact: after years of occasional discussion, and not entirely infrequent, either, the city council is sending two of its aldermen to visit some other cities and enquire from them how they harmonize their parks and streets department. If you think this is something easy to handle—in Peterborough—get yourself elected to the council, and learn a little chapter of experience and observation of quirks of administration, and just basic human nature.

Florida Prices Not High By Comparison

A comparison of Peterborough prices with those prevalent in Florida shows that the local ... wife is paying more for the ... brand names in many cases. ... in particular are higher ... as much as 10c a pound on ... roasts, sausages, weiners ... bacon. Small spare ribs are ... much as 25 more here. The one exception is a prime rib roast, which sells at almost the same price both sides of the border.

In the staples, sugar is selling for 5c to 6c less for five lbs. in Florida, flour is at the same level. One brand of shortening that sells at 3 lbs. for 79c afound St. Augustine is retailing for 38c a lb. here. A variety package of cereals selling here for 39c can be purchased in the south for 28c. The cheapest margarine here, uncolored, is 35c, and "Mrs. Filbert's colored oleo" goes for 25c in the Florida heat.

Soaps, like Tide and Oxydol, sell for 37c in the Peterborough stores and bring 10c less in the Florida food centres. "Sea herring sardines" are advertised at 7c per can, while the cheapest brands here sell for 9 or 10c.

Cigarettes, of course, are much cheaper. They are advertised as selling for $1.99 per carton, any brand, about $1.50 less per carton than ours. Beer and ale are 2 bottles for 25c, and a fifth of Puerto Rico rum goes for $2.85.

Fresh vegetables are comparatively the same price on both markets.

The final jolt is that a quart of Canada Dry, selling here for 20c, plus deposit, retails for 10c in St. Augustine.

There has been a recent marked decline in U.S. food prices lately, and the Florida prices reflect it. The trend has not yet affected Canada noticeably.

Too Shallow Water Diver Smashes Face

Diving in too shallow water, Don Motherwell, 21, of 99 Rubidge St., smashed his face on the bottom and was taken to Peterborough Civic Hospital Wednesday evening about 7 p.m. He fractured his nose and his teeth were driven through both lips. Officials report his condition as fair.

It is believed Motherwell was swimming near a cottage on Chemong Lake where his brother, Ken Motherwell, was holidaying. The youth worked at the CGE.

Telphone Man's Thirty Years Tracing Lines

Whenever there is a fault in local telephone communications the Bell Telephone Co. knows it can with confidence call on David White, of 341 St. Joseph St to rectify it. Today he will have completed 30 years with the company as repair man.

Mr. White, a 54-year-old Peterburian, has worked on communications since before 1914, being employed with the Michigan State Telephone and the Alberta Government Telephone. And during both the World Wars he has gone overseas to use his technical knowledge in defeating the enemy: in the First World War with the 1st Division Signals, and in the Second with Canadian Army Signals.

While in Great Britain during recent hostilities he was lent by the Canadian Army to the Southern Railway and the GPO for telephone and signal work.

Began 1919

In 1919 he began his employment with Bell Telephone and, apart from his service overseas, has remained with them since. He began as a lineman and two years later became a cable splicer.

That he is an enthusiastic workman is indicated by the fact he lumps his job of cable fault location together with fishing as among his favorite hobbies.

DAVID WHITE

Apart from his war service, four years in Western Canada and some time in Michigan, he has spent 54 years in the Peterborough district. He was born in Harwood.

His elder son Jack is with the Ontario Provincial Police at Kenora and his two other children live at home—Joan, a PCVS student, and Billy, age eight, a pupil of Queen Mary School.

Mr. White is a member of the Charles Fleetwood Siso Chapter, Telephone Pioneers of America. Membership is gained after 21 years of service.

Fish Hook Jabs, Eye In Danger

Caught in the eye with a fish hook, Larry Robinson 45, of 54 Aylmer Street, was taken to the Peterborough Civic Hospital on Wednesday evening. The hook was removed, but hospital officials are unable to determine yet whether or not Mr. Robinson will lose the sight of his eye.

Mr. Robinson and his friend, Arthur Davies, 106 Cameron Street, were casting in Lake Katchewanooka between Lakefield and Young's Point. In some manner Mr. Davies' plug caught Mr. Robinson. Both are experienced fishermen and have been fishing together for years.

They had gone out fishing for the day. Mr. Robinson was on holidays from his job in the Maintenance Department at the CGE.

Marriage Registration Form Change Monday

A change in the manner in which marriages are registered in Ontario for statistical purposes will take effect Monday, August 1, which was brought about through representations made by many clergymen throughout the province, including at least one from Peterborough.

Last April a new form was introduced which the ministers were required to fill out in its entirety. As a result many protests were received from among their number complaining about the large amount of additional work thus entailed. There are 29 questions on the form in all.

The government paid heed to the compiaints and have now printed a new form which the newlyweds themselves will be required to fill out after the marriage license is issued by the district registrar, who is City Clerk E. A. Outram in Peterborough. The forms will be supplied by the registrar along with the marriage certificate form.

Bar Photographers

MILAN, July 28 (CP)—Italian police hurled stones and used threats of arrest to drive away photographers who tried Wednesday to get pictures of Winston Churchill taking a swim. Churchill is vacationing at Gardone, on Lake Garde in Northern Italy. He has requested privacy. A similar request was made where Princess Margaret visited Italy last April but pictures of her in a swim suit got into print.

SOAKED AND GETTING WETTER every second were these two boatmen caught out on the regatta course at Bewdley, Wednesday afternoon. Bewdley Races Run Despite Heat, Storm

Boats came to the rescue of the Bewdley regatta officials Wednesday afternoon. Mother Nature out in full force with thunder, lightning, rain, heat and even sunshine held up the opening of the regatta for an hour with rain chasing hundreds of people from the water's edge. For two hours the storm hovered around Rice Lake. With each black cloud over the bay came more rain.

But despite the rain the races went on. In pouring rain the open race for 85 h.p. and under was run off. The winner of the event, Don Dermo, said he could hardly see the flags marking the mile and a half course.

In the open race for 22 h.p. and under outboard, two hydroplanes from Peterborough were entered, the Gizmo 77 and the Sandy 13. These two craft zoomed around the course well out in front of their competitors. The Gizmo 77 conked out starting the second lap. The other three boats passed him. Finally when they were about 500 feet ahead the driver got the motor running again. Three-quarters of the way around the track he again took possession of second place. The Sandy won the event easily by three-quarters of a mile. Bob Rehdar finished third in this event.

Thompson Trophy

The Thompson Trophy event was won by Danny Martin of East Liverpool, Ohio. He led all the way, finishing half a lap ahead of second place Don Dermo. Jack LaFayye, Cobourg, placed third. A fourth craft, Merd Perrin's, failed to finish, having trouble on the first lap.

A special hydroplanes event finished the boat races. Only the Gizmo and the Sandy were entered. The Gizmo took the corners wide while the Sandy cut the corners sharp to take the lead. But the Gizmo in taking a wide turn began to cut close to the flags to edge back the Sandy. The Gizmo won by a boat length.

Jack Holland, one of Canada's leading snow and water skiers, put on a demonstration of water-skiing. He was pulled by the cruiser of Ed. Martin. While in the rain in his first appearance he was blinded on a curve and fell. The second appearance a large swell from the cruiser throw him for a spill while skiing with one ski. The third time the rope broke. Together with Bob Williamson of Port Hope, on a surf board, Jack put on a dazzling performance of water skiing. They cris-crossed behind the speeding boat. When he stopped, he let the rope go and skimmed across the water to the Government wharf where he slowly sank into the water up to his neck.

Canoist Demonstration

Herb Cardwell of Wallace's Point demonstrated the art of canoeing. He tipped, righted and did everything that would be dangerous to the ordinary canoer. The crowd were thrilled when he jumped his canoe over a second canoe being a foot or a foot and a half off the water.

Feature of the swimming events, which were poorly attended, was the Girls 14 years and under event. Only two girls were entered in this event with Joan Smith taking first place honors. Second place was won by pint-sized Joyce Smith for the effort she put into the race although she didn't finish the 300 feet course.

Of the seven canoe events on the program only two were run off, the Men's single and the Mixed Tandem. Others were cancelled because of rough water conditions.

All proceeds of the regatta were for a community hall at Bewdley.

Summary of Events

Highest Marks Of Two Peterborough Girls Win Them Provincial Conservatory Medals

Two Peterborough girls have received the highest marks in the province in their respective musical grades. They are included in the list of silver medal winners announced today by the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto.

Best of their grade in the province are Miss Elaine Osborne, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Osborne, 559 Aylmer St., for Grade III piano; and Miss Helen Hajnik, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hajnik, 159 Montgomery St., for Grade X singing.

Both students of music received their awards while studying music at St. Cecilia's Convent.

Double Honors

For Elaine Osborne, about to enter PCVS, today brought a double triumph. She learned that she was a silver medallist and in the same mail came the news she had passed her Grade IV piano examinations with honors.

In February she passed Grade III with first class honors; her Grade IV exams are successful, and now she will be entering Grade V. She has been studying piano for two years under the tutorship of Sister Inez Marie.

The youthful pianist has not yet made up her mind, however, whether or not she wants to follow a musical career.

Seeks Musical Career

No such doubts lie with Miss Hajnik. She told the Examiner today she definitely wanted a musical career, and was willing to go as far as her vocal ability would allow her.

"I would like to be a concert singer or do radio work," she said. "But my ultimate ambition would be to sing at the Met.—if I could."

Although she has been studying voice for only four years—two of them in Peterborough after coming from Regina—Miss Hajnik has an impressive list of accomplishments.

Once before she won a Conservatory silver medal. That was when she topped the list of Grade-VI singing students in Saskatchewan. Also while in Regina she won two radio scholarships. And last year in Peterborough she took the Grey and Bruce Scholarship for merit, valued at $50.

She also studies at St. Cecilia's. At the moment she is working on her ATC (Voice), but she may have to go to Toronto to complete it.

Lakefield Chief, Provincials Make Round Up

Lakefield's Chief of Police Garnet Samis and Provincial Constables Emmett Crough and Ray Pope traced five men in Toronto Wednesday, who they believe were responsible for break-ins Friday morning at Lakefield and Bridgenorth. The men who were arrested with the assistance of Toronto city police, are being held there to face other charges and will later be charged in Peterborough with at least three offences.

In the early hours of Friday Nicholl's barber shop and pool room at Bridgenorth was entered and a clock, two wrist watches, three billfolds, three lighters, two pipes, two jacknives, a flashlight and $5 in copper stolen.

Looters' Work

A few hours later Fife's grocery shop and snack bar at Lakefield was entered and the cash register, valued at $500, was stolen. Wednesday Chief Samis and Clifford Fife found the safe in a swamp near the Drive-In Theatre, Highway 28. The bottom of the register was broken.

The third charge will be breaking and entering Jerry's snack bar.

Arrested Wednesday were Victor Carroll, Joe Barrow, James Allen, Robert Seyler, who will be charged, was already in Don jail on another charge. All the men are from Toronto. The fifth arrest in the case is imminent.

Truck, Train, Car Crash, 4 Hurt Downer's Corner

Four people were rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital Wednesday afternoon with fractures and abrasions after a car, truck and CNR train collided at Downer's Corners. Although the front of the truck was demolished and the left rear corner of the car was caved in, none of the injured people is in critical condition.

The accident occurred, according to City Police Constable Andy Dalton, when the truck ran into the rear of the car which was waiting while the train went over the crossing. After hitting the left rear corner of the car it swerved to the left and collided with the train.

The driver of the truck, Glen Jacques, Campbellford, suffered a broken right wrist and both hands were cut. His two passengers, Rose Quinn, 16, and Ida Curle, 19, both of Campbellford are the only two still in hospital. Miss Quinn has a sprained left knee and minor fractures to the left wrist. Miss Curle is suffering from abrasions on right knee and cuts on her face.

Both girls had been hitch hiking and got a lift in the truck from near the Locks bridge.

The other person to receive hospital treatment was Cyril Lee, 274 Westcott St., driver of the car who had scalp and face lacerations and was suffering from severe shock. In the car with him were his wife and two young children who escaped injury.

Drs. J. C. C. Dawson and R. K. Magee attended the injured, who travelled to hospital in Bellegem's ambulance.

Truck Driver Remand

Joseph Harvey, truck driver from the Toronto area, charged with assaulting Gwen Martin, RR 2, Peterborough, was today remanded in city police court by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, until Aug. 4. Harvey is charged with assault occasioning bodily harm. He decided to reserve his plea, after telling the magistrate that he could not remember everything about the alleged incident.

Miss Martin was struck on the head by a truck driver Tuesday evening on Highway No. 7, after refusing a lift in the truck.

BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings in Peterborough for the past week amounted to $2,276,448, a decrease from the preceding week, the figure for which was $2,714,662.

FLORAL NOTE

The homely, platter-faced sunflowers are flourishing in this midsummer heat, especially with the help of recent rains. In late afternoons their big leaves were drooping, but they have been standing up to the sun this week.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Jack F. Richardson, president-elect of the Peterborough Y's Men's Club, will leave by car next week for Minneapolis, Minnesota, where he will attend the annual convention of the International Association of Y's Men's Clubs as official delegate of the local club. The convention dates are August 14 to 20.

IN TOP BRACKET

Peterborough joined the ranks of Ontario's traditionally hottest cities yesterday when the mercury zoomed to an official high of 90 degrees. The weatherman offered no hope of a let-up in the scorching heat for at least two days. Four other Ontario cities also had high temperatures of 90 or over, as follows: Windsor 90, London 90, Toronto 93, Ottawa 96, Montreal "enjoyed" a high of 92.

YOU CAN'T MISS JUPITER

The new moon of last Monday will reach its first quarter Wed., Aug. 3. Jupiter is brilliant in the southern sky these nights, following the ruddy Antares in the summer constellation of Scorpio. Arcturus is north of the meridian in Bootes, easily located in an arc projected from the handle of the Big Dipper. Venus is to the north in the sunset glow, dominating the western horizon.

A BIT COOLER

The present spell of hot, humid weather continues No. 1 subject when local people meet for a quick chat. Wednesday's storm seemed to cool things off somewhat but those occupying second or third storey bedrooms still found it uncomfortable for sleeping. At 9 a.m. today the official temperature was 77 degrees, and by noon it still had not touched 80. Most people hailed this as a sign of relief.

MASS PRODUCTION

The assembly-line technique of mass production seems to have invaded one of the last citadels of individual workmanship—the barber shop. Today two rusty-haired youngsters, John Paul, 6, and his brother Harry, 8, both of McFarlane St., sat side by side in the barber chair at Smith and Freeman's, Simcoe St. One big apron was stretched across the chests of them both, and Harold Freeman slipped the busy shears from one to the other without a wasted second. The lads remained poker-faced during the ear-lowering ceremony while adult patrons looked on and chuckled.

Outlook Bright Crops Better Than Estimated

For all the parching of Ontario agriculture this season, the crop returns and outlook are not so depleted as was estimated a few weeks ago.

This is the impression in the provincial department on the basis of information this week from county agricultural representatives.

Brant reports up to 50 bus. of wheat per acre, pastures in excellent condition, prospects for fruit crop excellent. Perth county mentions 48 bus. to the acre "and grain dealers advise us that the quality is high with weight per bushel running from 60 to 62 pounds. Where late frosts were severe, yields were reduced to as low as 15 bus.

Second Growth Alfalfa

The wheat average in Lincoln is estimated at 25 bus. Many yields in Middlesex exceed 30 bus. to the acre. The new crop has been rolling to market. Price has dropped from $2 to $1.65. A lot of the western Ontario wheat was sold at $1.80. York county says second growth alfalfa is making wonderful progress.

Muskoka, one of the marginal spots, say "spring lambs are going to market at record prices of $28 to $30 per cwt." Weanling pigs in Dufferin are selling at $13.

Turnips Failure

Table turnips are a complete failure as a result of aphid infestation, in the Stratford area. Waterloo says: the turnip crop is very seriously injured by aphids. Similar turnip trouble is reported from other sections of the western end of the province.

As evidence of the quickly recuperative quality of Ontario's soils with favoring circumstances, Norfolk says: "We have had nothing less than phenomenal growing conditions during the past week. What looked like a slim crop of tobacco is now likely to turn out a heavy crop. Corn and tomatoes never looked more promising. Fruits are doing well."

Some of the Oxford wheat weighed 62 pounds a bushel. Prince Edward oats are light, but threshing of the early varieties brought yields averaging 50 bushels. In Haldimand the wheat yield is higher than was expected, Yield of 40 to 45 bus. have been common and some farmers report 50 or more.

And this is from Lambton: "Local grain elevators are working 24 hours a day taking in fall wheat. Yields are reported around 45 to 50 bus. an acre."

"COMMODORE" OF THE KAWARTHAS, Harold (Keeler) Knapman, relaxes at his summer cottage, near Mount Julian, Stony Lake, to talk about fresh-water sailing. Two of the many sailing pennant trophies, on his living room wall, won by his famous 24-foot lake sailing skiff, the CYGNET, indicate the number of years he has been sailing. He is current president of the Stony Lake Aquatic Association which will hold its peak season sailing event on Sunday, July 31st. —Examiner Staff Photo

Sailingest Sailor of Stony Is Veteran Harold Knapman

Harold Knapman of Lower Stony Lake borrowed Keith Russell's "Spree" the other evening to take some friends from his island near Mount Julian to their car at McCracken's Landing. You might think it odd for a man to borrow another's boat but when the borrower built the craft and was as well-known as "Keeler" Knapman it was a commonplace matter.

Back in the cockpit with one sure hand on the tiller and the other holding the main sheet, Keeler heeled the 24-foot "sailing skiff" well over in the stiff west wind. As he watched the luff of the billowing mainsail above and the black water gusts ahead he noticed a strange boat tacking aimlessly near the Burleigh Channel, and hailed it by coming about.

Hospitality

He was correct in assuming they were strangers in strange waters and motioned them to follow him to his island cottage. The strangers were J. L. Hurst and his wife Dorothy of Toronto in a new Lightening class boat, launched that very afternoon at the factory in Lakefield. They were bound for Balsam Lake. Though they were complete strangers to Keeler and his wife Bernice, they were extended a warm invitation to stow their gear at the cottage and spent the night, which the Hursts gladly accepted. This casual little incident shows what sort of people the Knapman's of Stony Lake are and why hundreds of holiday people think they are just about tops. There are many who have konwn them for only a few years but there are many more who have known Keeler and his family at Stony Lake since the year 1900.

He was born in Peterborough, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Knapman and his father had the first sailboat on Chemong Lake, in 1895, the year Keeler was born. The family moved to Stony Lake after a couple of seasons, first to Breeze's Island, then to Moore's Island, later to Webb's and in 1903 to the island where they now stay. It was originally owned by Charlie Grills of Lakefield but it is plotted on Trent waterways charts as Knapman's Island.

Famous Cygnet

In '03 Mr. Knapman Sr., purchased two sailboats, known at that time as "skiffs." The more famous one, the Cygnet, was 24 feet overall, 16 feet at the waterline with an eight-foot beam. Three years after purchase, it won Lake Ontario sailing championship in her class, the Walker Cup pennant at Chemong and one at South Beach.

Talk got around to trophies and Keeler went to a handsome burled walnut sideboard in his living room and came up with bundle of pennant trophies, just about all he could carry. They were all colors of the rainbow and dated each year for the top Stony Lake event from 1907 to 1921 with a liberal sprinkling of Chemongs and Sturgeons thrown in for good measure. To think that cups and suits of oilskins went with each pennant, it would seem as though a special room should have been built to display them all. The Knapmans are not like that, however; Keeler thinks there must be a few trunkfuls of cups around somewhere," Toronto, Picton.....

The famous Cygnet was given to Keeler on his 12th birthday which means that most of the trophies for sailing skill were won by him since about 197. This alone, coupled with the statement that there were "always boats around" leaves little wonder as to why sailing and sailboats are his very life.

His younger days at Stony must have been a series of mischievious escapades, judging from some of his droll reminiscences. Some of them are worth noting.

Youthful Pranks

When family steamboats were the rage a few of them, well-loaded with worshippers, would chuff to the Juniper Island pavilion for divine services. The younger attendants had a legitimate excuse to disappear occasionally to put more fuel in the fire boxes. Was it accidental when a whistle was tied down to scream during a perion of silent prayer? It was hardly likely.

Then again, there were those mysterious "fires" on Juniper Island. In the days when the store was lit from a carbide plant it was an easy matter for small boys to pinch some dry carbide, sprinkle it in the cracks of rocks in the dry brush and add enough water to send up great clouds of carbide fumes. The cry of "Fire" drew man volunteers in a hurry who heartily cussed the pranksters when they found the cause.

How many shoppers at the store counter, arms filled with purchases, had the end of the counter twine roll stuffed somewhere in their loads as they left for the wharf? A line of string would trace their paths as innocent-looking Keeler and his buddies looked the other way.

Lifetime of Sailboats

But it has always been sailboats with Harold Knapman. When he wasn't building them, he repaired them and dreamed about new designs at night. And the old Cygnet was his pattern for many well-known boats, among them Keith Russell's Spree. Gordon Matthew's Skidley was built by Keeler one winter in a cold unused space down at the Canada Packers plant with Frank Gillespie's help, at nights. The old flagship got into an accident a few years ago when the Knapmans rented their cottage. The tenants, who were told specifically that they must not use her, did so, upset her and loosened the deck beams. Although it was still serviceable, she was beached at the cottage in the fall of '48 and is in the process of a major repair job.

Absence of the Cygnet does not put Keeler on the beach this sailing season, however, for he crews and ships on various craft on invitation. He is in great demand. Mrs. Knapman is regular crew and handles the jib sheet with great skill, and their two daughters, Dorothy and Harice, before they entered school and professional lives, were also competent sailors.

Full Time

Engaged in businesses of various kinds Harold spent his spare time sailing and tinkering with boats and their appeal was so strong that he finally gave them all his time. He says quite definitely that he does not go after business at any time but that he has more to do than he can handle.

He was a member of the Parkdale Yacht Club and treasurer of the Picton Yacht Club and as member of the Canadian Yacht Racing Association has attended conventions in Hamilton, Rochester and Gananoque, as delegate. Harold skippered Sir Ellsworth Flavelle's "Alameda" twice at the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto.

Sunday will see him heading the season's major sailing events off Juniper Island as president of the Stony Lake Aquatic Association and it is a safe bet he will also skipper some craft over the finish line for a win.

Holiday Weeks No Boom For Movies

Holidayers in Peterborough have taken the advice of Omar Kayyam and stretched out under a shade tree, or have packed up and left town. In any case they have not spent their leisure going to the films.

Workers of the C.G.E. DeLaval and other companies have been on holidays for more than a week, but attendance figures at the local picture houses have dropped slightly, or at best held their own on the average.

Theatres which feature westerns have had their full quota of small fry in the matinees. One other theatre has noticed more adults coming to matinee performances lately and attribute the increase to holidayers.

Tourists, both American and Canadian, patronizing the films in considerable numbers, bolster the size of the audiences. But apparently when Peterborough workers relax, they relax with a vengeance. "Pass me another mint julep, Mabel."

Triple Immunity In One McGill Doctors' Device

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

MONTREAL, July 28 — McGill University scientists have given children three kinds of immunity mixed together in a single hypodermic needle.

They are diptheria, whooping cough and tetanus. This combined shot is given twice. It replaces six needle pricks and extra trips to the doctor required by ordinary vaccinations.

The triple shot multiplied the effectiveness of the diptheria immunity by about 16 times. The other two were not weakened. The combination took no more of each kind of vaccine, in fact a little less.

These results offer a welcome relief from a long-held belief that each kind of immunization must be given separately.

The McGill group are Donald S. Fleming, M.D., associate professor of bacteriology and Louis Greenberg, Ph.D., now at the Laboratory of Hygiene, Ottawa. They back their work with a world-wide survey of literature showing that both for children and adults various kinds of double or triple immunizations have been effective.

Other combinations are typhoid and diptheria, tetanus, typhoid and paratyphoid, and all four of these at once. As in the McGill experiments, it sometimes happens that one immunizing substance enhances the good effects of another.

In the offing are many other kinds of immunization. Yellow fever already is established, flu, cholera and common cold vaccines are used to some extent. Yearly some progress is reported toward a vaccine for infantile paralysis.

The combination of several of these in one needle will save time, probably money and certainly discomfort.

Seek Noah's Ark

LONDON, July 28 (Reuters)—The Turkish government has changed its mind and granted permission for an expedition under Dr. Aaron Smith to search for remains of Noah's Ark on Mount Ararat, Ankara radio said Tuesday night. Permission to carry out the search was refused July 15 because Mount Ararat lies in a "prohibited military zone" along the Turko-Russian border.

Civil Defence Hard Against Atom Attack

LONDON, July 28—(AP)—A study group of British scientists has decided there's little that can be done in civil defence against an atomic-bomb attack.

"The likely number of casualties caused by an atom bomb is so large that to save even a few per cent of them is an objective worth considerable effort," their report says.

The report on civil defence in atomic warfare, prepared by scientists from Birmingham University, was published today in the Atomic Scientists' News, organ of the Atomic Scientists' Association.

They estimate a single atomic bomb dropped on a British city would cause 100,000 casualties. They assume one-half would survive.

The scientists say their studies showed "the magnitude of the problem created by an atomic attack is such that civil defence measures are quite useless unless they include preparations on a very large scale, and unless details of the situations liable to arise are carefully thought out in advance. . . ."

Dollar Crisis Worry Puts Cripps' Health On Rocks

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, July 28—(CP)—When the world's greatest buyer runs short of money, the man responsible for the buying naturally feels the greatest strain. And the strain has been so great on Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, that he has gone to Switzerland for treatment of a stomach ailment.

Before he left, two weeks ago, nobody in Whitehall was surprised when Sir Stafford showed signs of edginess. Beneath the bittersweet smile he habitually wears in public, Sir Stafford has been frankly worried.

Sir Stafford doesn't deal in petty cash. As keeper of the financial keys for what is loosely called the sterling bloc, he has final say on drawings from the sterling pool by Burma, Iceland, Ireland, Iraq, and all Commonwealth countries except Canada.

His worries are sharper now because the reserves are down to £400,000,000 ($1,600,000,000), and about £100,000,000 below safety level. He has to find a way out.

Donkey and Carrot

He is usually cool but civil at press gatherings. He indicated that newspaper men aren't his favorite people, but he manages to do it without offending.

Lately his manner has been more abrupt.

"How do you account for the fact that the dollar drain has doubled in the last three months?" a reporter asked at a recent conference.

"I don't account for it, because it hasn't happened," said Sir Stafford, proceeding to reel off the figures. "According to my arithmetic, that isn't double."

Asked whether his statement on the dollar problem wasn't a trifle optimistic, he answered crustily:

"The answer is no, or I should not have made it."

One touch of tart repartee enlivened the conference.

Using the fable of the donkey, the carrot and the stick, a correspondent wanted know whether Sir Stafford's remedies for the financial crisis weren't really the same stick and the same carrot as before.

"I should say no," the Chancellor replied.

"A larger stick or a larger carrot?"

"I think you must ask the donkey to answer that."

"Aren't we all part of the donkey?"

"Put yourself where you like."

LONDON (CP). — A Canadian flying the Berlin air lift is Flt. Lt. J. Cattley, Winnipeg, who has made more than 240 flights to the city. He is a navigator on board a York aircraft and joined the RCAF in 1942, transferring to the RAF two years ago.

Killed In Row

CHICAGO, July 27 (AP) — A packinghouse worker was killed Tuesday in a violent dispute over the "immorality" of wearing underwear indoors during the hot weather. Alex Funick, 47, was killed. Funick's roommate, Karl Moizrini, 74, was held without charge. He told officers he struck Funisk in the mouth with a coffee cup during a fight which started after he told Funick to "put some clothes on."

WA Plans Play To Aid Fund Raising

MOUNT PLEASANT, July 28—(ENS)—Mount Pleasant W. A met at the home of Mrs. Donald Hayes, the president, Mrs. H. H Lowes presiding. Mrs J. Fee read the scripture lesson and Mrs. Lowes read a paper on "Church Going."

It was decided to enterview the Bethel Play convenor to see if it could be presented here soon.

The W. A. plans a pie and ice cream social in connection with the play.

It was agreed to contribute $25. towards the minister's salary. The president reminded the memoers to have an article ready for the November meeting, also to have a parcel ready for Britain by the fall.

The program consisted of readings by Mrs. H. H. Lowes, Mrs. Don Hayes, Mrs. W. H. Lowes and Mrs. M. Jones. Mrs. J. Fee conducted a contest.

Bad Cheque Charges

D. R. Tyler, 543 Water St., faced two charges Wednesday in police court of offering bad cheques to Irwin's Drug store and Zeller's. Information for a third charge was laid by Harvey Strubb of Tem Travel Agency.

Zeller's claim that Tyler gave them a bad cheque for $20; Irwin's Drug store say their cheque was for $15.03 and the cheque to the travel agency is said to be $20.

Won't Change Policy Mrs. Roosevelt Says

HYDE PARK, N.Y., July 28—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told Francis Cardinal Spellman today in answer to his charges of "anti-Catholicism" that she would "continue to stand for the things in our government which I think are right."

She told the Cardinal in a letter:

"I have no bias against the Roman Catholic Church."

She added:

"I have no intention of attacking you personally, nor of attacking the Roman Catholic Church, but I shall, of course, continue to stand for the things in our government which I think are right.

"They may lead me to be in opposition to you and to other groups within our country, but I shall always act, as far as I am able, from real conviction and from honest belief."

Board Condemns Newsmen Taking Government Job

WASHINGTON, July 28—(AP) American Society of Newspaper —The Board of Directors of the Editors today condemned the acceptance of state government jobs by some Illinois newspaper men between 1941 and 1949.

In a unanimous report, the 15 members of the board said there is substantial evidence of a long-standing custom in Republican and Democratic administrations in Illinois of rewarding certain citizens by giving them jobs involving little or no service to the public.

Then the board said:

"We deplore this practice by any government as an improper use of public funds.

"We condemn the acceptance of such funds by newspaper men as unethical and as contrary to the public responsibilities and obligations of the press."

The board commended the Chicago Daily News and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for exposing the fact last April that 51 newspaper men were on the Illinois state payrool during the eight-year Republican administration of former Governor Dwight H. Green.

It said this exposure should lead newspapers and newspaper men throughout the United States to examine their own practices and the political practices existing in their own localities.

It said the failure of the three large wire services promptly to relay the story on their wires was "due not to any considered intent to suppress the news of the exposures but to faulty news judgment" in their Chicago or St. Louis bureaux.

Envied Cat's Graceful Walk Now Tops Bill as Cat Girl

NEW ORLEANS—(CP)—Ever watch a cat stretch and walk gracefully away?

Lilly Christine did—and what she saw has made her the recognized challenger of the long reigning specialty dancers of the United States.

It was about a year and a half ago when the beautiful blonde from Buffalo, noted the charm of a cat's grace. She decided to build her dances around a feline theme.

Now billed as "The Cat Girl," she is packing them into night clubs over the country.

The tawny, 21-year-old dancer uses a slow, provocative rhythm that has brought her rave notices in newspaper reviews and trade magazines and more than a thousand cat figurines from fans all over.

Lilly is no stripper. She wants that understood. She begins with the minimum, so there isn't anything she can remove and stay within the ounds of the New Orleans law which requires at least a bra and G-string.

Watching the fortunes of other specialty dancers who have reached the top, Lilly hopes to fare even better than most of them.

For one thing, she and Leon Prima, brother of bandsman Louis Prima and owner of a New Orleans night club, plan to open three night clubs in Miami, New York and New Orleans as the beginning of a Lilly-cat club chain. These, she says, are to open in the fall.

With the night club trade in a seasonable slump, she is using her time now to plan for them after Concluding a successful return engagement a Prima's 500 Club here.

Anglicized Name

Summer sports are good for her figure, although she has little trouble retaining her present proportions: five feet 6½ inches, 128 pounds, 35-inch bust and hips and 24-inch waist.

Baptized Lilliana Christina, the girl who anglicized the name given her by parents of German, Swedish and Italian extraction, prefers dancing in night clubs to working in films or on the stage.

It was fun working in "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Two Guys from Texas" in the movie and with Bert Lahr on the stage in "Burlesque," she says, but night clubs are much better.

"The audience is smaller and closer. I feel nearer to the people and can get their reaction," Lilly says.

Lilly tells you she doesn't smoke and she doesn't drink, but she has had a drink named for her.

It's called the Lilly cat-nip and the recipe is secret, but it contains about everything you could put in a mixed drink without giving the customers an enforced cat nap.

After all, who wants to nap when Lilly Christine dances

THE ENQUIRY COLUMN

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I wonder if it would be possible for you to send me real English recipes for crumpets, also suet pudding, either plain or Roly-poly with jelly, and another with raisins and molasses. They are tied in a cloth and boiled—my mother used to make them. After all of these years I would love to make some. I always look for your recipes in the paper and enjoy them very much. I am leaving this city and would love to have them if possible before I go. I hope I am not asking you too much. Wishing you every success.—Mrs. J. A. W.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER:

English Crumpets

Mix 1½ cups lukewarm water with ½ teaspoon each of salt and sugar, and 1 teaspoon melted butter. Dissolve one-quarter of a yeast cake in this mixture. Into this stir enough bread flour to make a very stiff batter. Beat this for 10 minutes, adding enough lukewarm milk to make batter just stiff enough to pour—add this milk during the beating period. Grease shallow muffin rings and place them on a soapstone griddle or well-seasoned iron griddle or heavy aluminum frying-pan. Pour the batter into the rings to the depth of ⅛ inch. Bake at 300 deg. Fahr. baking until bottom side is brown, and then turn over for just a few moments until other side is golden. Serve hot. Or if served later, split and reheat by toasting.

Quick Suet Pudding

One cup molasses, 1 cup milk, 1 cup finely chopped suet, 1 cup raisins, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon each salt cloves, allspice, nutmeg, 3½ teaspoons flour, 1 teaspoon each vanilla and maple flavoring. Mix together the first four ingredients; then add them to the sifted dry ingredients; stir well then add the flavorings. Pour into greased 2-quart mould or two 1-quart moulds and steam 2 hours or a little longer if large mould is still a little moist at end of 2 hours. This is best served with Lemon Sauce made by mixing ⅞ cup sugar with 3 tablespoons cornstarch, and adding grated rind and juice of 1 large lemon. Add 2 tablespoons butter and 1½ cups boiling water and stir until thick—this should be done over boiling water, and then cooked covered over boiling water until it is clear. For change in color you mad add up to 3 tablespoons apple or currant jelly to this. This is an excellent all-purpose pudding sauce.

Roly-Poly Pudding

This is an English recipe and all ingredients are weighed: 8 oz. flour, 4 oz. finely chopped suet, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, about ½ cup any preferred jam or jelly or use raisins which have been boiled in a little sugar syrup.

Mix the flour, suet, baking powder and salt very well—rubbing the suet into the flour with the finger tips. Moisten this to a stiff paste with a little cold water. Roll out into a large piece about ¼ inch thick, spread on jam or jelly or raisins to within 1 inch of edges and moisten sides and far end with a little water. Roll up lightly, seal edges, wrap pudding in scalded pudding cloth and tie with string. Ends should be sealed in by rolling pudding in cloth diagonally so that 2 layers of the cloth cover ends Boil from 1½ hours to 2 hours (or this may be baked 1 hour at about 375 deg. Fahr.)

"Bug Girls" Search Passengers At La Guardia

NEW YORK, July 28—(CP)—The passenger boarding a plane at La Guardia Field needn't be alarmed when "searched" by a pretty young miss wearing a beret bearing the initials "USDA."

No, she's not from the United States District Attorney's office. She's one of the four "bug girls" employed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Working under the department's division of entomology and plant quarantine, the girls are paid $48 a week to help prevent Japanese beetles from leaving the airport for Western Hemisphere regions not yet afflicted with the bronze leaf-eating insects.

Their job is to see that planes, passengers and baggage leave the airport uncontaminated.

All four girls are college students on vacation. Their counterparts—all men—are doing the same work at 42 other airports within the beetle quarantine belt, which extends north to Maine, south to Virginia and west to Ohio.

They are on duty during the beetle season which runs from mid-July to mid-September. At first, men were employed as bug-hunters, at La Guardia. But they were replaced by women after some female passengers objected to search by males.

Beetles aren't active until the dew is off the grass and they retire before sundown. So the girls work from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

In addition to plucking stray beetles off passengers—the bugs go for pastel colors—the girls see to it that the luggage compartments of planes are fumigated with DDT.

Britain Invites Mrs. St. Laurent

LONDON, — (CP) —Since the Canadian general elections Britons have been asking when Mrs. Louis St, Laurent is coming to London, says "The Londoner's Diary" in the Evening Standard.

The writer notes that although the prime minister has been a frequent visitor to Britain, both as a cabinet minister and as a lawyer appearing before the Privy Council's judicial committee Mrs. St. Laurent has not been here in recent years.

"Now it is believed she will be with him on his next visit," the article adds.

Double-breasted, it can be worn as a dress or coat. Centre, foggy blue crepe frock made with separate pleated panels in front and back of skirt with pocket effect at hips and highly placed on bodice. Right, a wool jacket dress in wild currant shade featuring lapels on both dress and jacket and cuffs are edged with black braid. These have all been styled by a Montreal designer.

British Bride Who Can Pay Again Has Lavish Wedding

LONDON, July 28 — (CP) — Glamor has returned to British weddings. With the ending of clothes rationing it's a "white wedding" summer.

Color concentration is in the bridesmaids' dresses. It is no longer fashionable to have them all the same.

One recent bride had 10 bridesmaids with dress colors ranging from the pale shell-pink of the tiny trainbearers, through blush and rose pinks, to the deep clover of the last two.

A bride in white lace has bridesmaids dressed in flowing tulle—two musroom pink, two golden yellow, two sea-green, two cafe-au-lait.

The vogue for "separates" has greatly helped brides who want to use their dresses afterwards.

A wedding dress by Pemberton is composed of ivory satin skirt with waistlength jacket held by a wide belt of self-material. The jacket is embroidered in tiny pearls and fastens down the front with single pearl buttons. Satin gloves and Juliet cap of satin embroidered with seed pearls and a tulle veil complete the ensemble. Alternately the jacket can be made of lace over satin with lace cap to match.

After the wedding the skirt can be used for evening wear combined with decollete lace blouse or top of gold or silver lame or brocade, while the jacket makes it into a dinner dress.

Three-purpose Dress

A bridesmaid's dress by Pemberton has eau-de-nil skirt of taffeta and separate bodice top, with gloves of pink and grey silk damask and belt of grey taffeta. It makes a charming dinner or evening dress and can be combined with high-to-the-neck velvet jacket for colder days.

One of Princess Elizabeth's bridesmaids, Lady Elizabeth Lambert, has her wedding gown, designed by Clive Duncan, in "mushroom bloom" angel skin with a draped wreath neckline and hip drapery gathered at waist-back to form a long cascading flared train. The tulle veil is held by side bunches of orange blossom.

Her sister, Lady Joanna Lambert, has a bridesmaid's gown of peony-rose-pink chiffon. The circular skirt is cut from a front V and falls into soft folds. A three-tiered fluted frill at each elbow matches the frill trimming of the square neckline.

The general trend in headdress is towards simplicity. The elaborate halos of pearls and orange blossom are being replaced by little circlets of flowers, dainty caps or single rows of diamante.

Modernist Lamps Displayed in U.S.

NEW YORK, July 28 — (CP)— Aladdin's magic lamp may have been able to do more but the lamps on display in a current showing are much more attractive.

Perhaps goaded by a remark of Marcel Breurer, architect, that he could find no suitable lamps with which to furnish his Museum of Modern Arts exhibition house, lamp designers and manufacturers have gone all-out to prove their inventiveness and versatility.

Some of the designers have approached abstract art in their manipulation of ceramics in lamp bases.

One in this group, called "The Big Catch," has a shade in a printed fish motif, overlaid by netting. The base is a ceramic fish on a wooden block.

Use Angles And Curves

An interesting corner - table lamp has a base of pickled walnut, in the form of a right angle. Curving brass tubes at each end of the base support cylindrical fibreglass shades. Or it can be obtained with one continuous right-angled shade.

Two floor lamps have rolled steel shafts, fibreglass shades and wooden bases. The base of one looks like a wooden dumbbell.

Some of the floorlamps have curved stems in order to allow the standard to fit under a desk or chair and still obtain the maximum lighting effect.

A shade, designed in the shape of a Shaker bonnet—longer at the top than the bottom — has the lamp bulbs concealed from direct view.

There are attractive versions of the popular shapes — torsos, leaves, masks and horses heads—with brass and copper bases.

London Hair Styles Include Males

LONDON, July 28 — (CP) — A day when all men's hair-cuts will be by appointment "so more time can be given to individual styles," is foreseen by Irving Platt, 26-year-old London barber.

Irving is trying to entice his customers away from the hackneyed "'short back and sides" to new styles, such as the Regent Military (long at the sides) Regent Long (parting at the nape of the neck, almost like rudimentary pig-tails), Chester (wavy style), Manchester (straight back) and the Argent (severe style for businessmen).

"Barbers should be more enterprising," he said. "They could do much more to interest their customers in the new styles. I'm now running an intensive campaign and it's meeting with some success."

Customers who cling stubbornly to the old-fashioned "short back and sides" and decline to be interested in news gents' hairdos are called "rough-heads" in some quarters of the barbering profession.

"'Most men think it is effeminate to pay any particular attention to their hair style," Irving said. "Yet if they will look back into history they'll find plenty of sword-thrusting he-men took trouble with their hair."

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Likes Superiority Wants Less Intelligent Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married about a year to a husband who dislikes intensely my love for good literature and studying, but until last week there has been no great dissension about it. I do all of my housework and cooking and help him in his business for a few hours every day, but my evenings are left alone, as he does not return from work until 11 p.m. So I decided to take up a small college course of two hours on Tuesday and Thursday nights. This angered my husband so much that he refuses even to speak to me.

Dorothy Dix

What must I do? This is not the fifty-fifty marriage of which I dreamed. Am I to be this man's slave? May I not have for my own, to use innocently, four hours out of the 168 in a week? My husband's conduct is killing my love and making me hate him.

TROUBLED WIFE.

ANSWER: Your husband's conduct is inspired by jealousy. His egotism makes him desire to be superior to you in every way, to pose before you as an oracle, and so he cannot bear for you to study and read and make yourself his intellectual superior. Very many men take this attitude toward their wives. It is really the explanation of why so many clever men marry fools. A man always wants to look down on his wife instead of up to her.

So, injudging your husband, bear this in mind and realize that it is his distorted love for you that makes him want to keep you in his own intellectual class. He feels that the only way he can keep you is to fetter your mind. that the very method he is tak- He is not wise enough to know ing defeats its own end that that nothing he could possibly do would drive you away from him so surely as this unreasoning and petty tyranny.

If your taking the college course angers your husband so much, possibly you will be wise to give it up in the interest of peace and harmony. But don't give up your reading and studying, for the world of books is going to be the place of refuge to which you will have to flee when you find life with a small-minded husband almost impossible.

But why did you marry a man whose tastes are so uncongenial and unsympathetic? How was it possible not to find out before marriage your fiance's attitude toward the things that meant so much to you?

If only young people, who think they are in love with each other, would stop asking each other about the state of their affections and would put a few searching questions about their tastes and habits and opinions, how many unhappy marriages could be prevented!

DOROTHY DIX.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been keeping company with a wonderful girl for the last six months. She is beautiful, does not pet, drink or smoke and is a wonderful little cook. But here is the hitch. She will not accept any gift from me, though I would like to get her everything. If we go in for even an ice cream or a soda she insists on paying her own check. The other day we got on a street car together and she paid her fare and two of my friends who saw it razzed me about being a cheap skate and asked me if I needed a nickel. This made me mad and I asked the girl why she wanted to put me in such a humiliating position. She considered that rude and since then has had nothing to do with me and I am heartbroken. What can I do?

BILL.

ANSWER: Give her a little time and she will get over her mad, particularly as she will find out that every other decent-feeling chap takes the same position on that subject that you do.

For every man who is in love with a woman wants to do things for her. He wants to give her things. He wants to feel that he is taking care of her, making life a little easier and pleasanter for her.

Why, that is what men for. That is what they make money for, to spend on women. It is to give women good times and pretty clothes and jewels and luxuries that man toil. There is precious little that their money buys for themselves.

And a girl knows little of masculine psychology who doesn't let a man spend something on her, for the more a man does for a woman ,the more he loves her.

Also, men are far more conventional than women. It is expected that the man will pay the bills when he takes a girl out and when he doesn't do this it puts him in the attitude of being a male gold-digger or else a cheap skate and both positions are humiliating and make him ridiculous in the eyes of other men.

It is fine for a girl to be independent and not to be a gold-digger, but she has to have enough discretion to know when to open her pocketbook and when to keep it shut.

DOROTHY DIX.

Man Climbs Down Women Do the Job

SLAIDBURN, Yorkshire, Eng., —(CP)—Tom Walker, 78-year-old chairman of the county education committee, delayed business at a recent meeting to apologize publicly to the opposite sex.

It had taken him a long time to change his mind, he said, but he finally had come to believe that women could be useful in public affairs.

When he started out in public life and saw increasing numbers of women "muscling in" he predicted "no good will come of it." Not that he was against the sex generally—he married and has four daughters.

After acknowledging that work done by the three women members of his committee had helped him change his mind he said:

"It's been preying on my mind lately. But I'm not so proud that I won't admit it now—I was very wrong."

Thanked by one of the women members for saying "I'd like to see more women serving the council," the elderly chairman confided publicly "You know, I feel much better now."

Comfort First Modesty Second In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG—(CP)—If Winnipeg is an indication, western girls dress more casually than their eastern sisters.

It's not unusual here to see girls dressed in slacks and jackets—or even shorts—strolling along Portage avenue, the city's main street.

Miss Doris Griffiths, assistant manager of one of Winnipeg's largest store's teen department, says "it's all a matter of comfort."

"The girls here, particularly teen-agers, are great addicts for slacks, shorts and bathing suits during the hot weather."

However, women do dress for heavy dates, parties and shows. When time comes around for stepping out with their beaux, dainty cool cotton dressees do the trick in the summertime.

"They dress plainly, without much jewelry, and often dispose of stockings in favor of a good leg-tan, "Miss Griffiths said. Ankle socks are strictly out with most girls.

Shoes Colored

Shoes are usually in the category of loafers. Flaties, rather than high ankle shoes, are the rule. Colored shoes, to match their dress, are usually worn.

In wintertime, ski slacks and jackets are favorite day-to-day wear.

"They are very style-conscious," said Miss Griffiths, "but do not go in too much for frills."

Miss Griffiths thinks the casual-wear fashion mode was set many years ago, and is not just a recent whim taken up by the new generation.

Girls read fashion magazines extensively, she said, and turn out in large numbers for fashion shows in the city. At teen-age fashion previews the girls themselves model clothes they will probably be wearing the coming season.

Fur Flies Wildly Top and Bottom For Fall Warmth

LONDON, July 28 — (AP) — Dress designers for the well-to-do have started to show sweltering buyers what women will wear when its much, much cooler.

At a week-long fashion show which opened here Monday Norman Hartnell and Molyneux featured extremes between almost too much collar on top and hardly any top at all. Coolest number of Hartnell's show was a tea dance frock titled "Don't Dress". It looked as though the mannikin had taken it seriously.

The fur flew wildly during the rest of the Hartnell show. He had it on everything, top and bottom and on the sleeves.

Molyneux's new features were huge collars that sloped down over narrow shoulders from the back of the head, and street-length evening dresses with cape-like overskirts that dragged over half the floor.

Molyneux's originals could be had for as little as 45 guineas ($189) or as much as 150 guineas, "depending on what you want."

Hartnell went in for detachable fur collars and capes. Molyneux showed swirling coats with checked wool linings made of the same material as the suit underneath.

Everything had pockets in it, some for putting things in and others puffed out at the hips to give women some odd shapes. One of Molyneux's pockets was stuffed with a big bunch of artificial roses.

Most of the Parisian's hats looked something like chimney pots with feathers pouring out the top. One had a whole bird on it.

ACCESSORIES — Matched hat, shoes and handbag in new suede-like fabric said to be spot, stain and shine resistant.

Fashion Makers Plan London Club for Buyers

LONDON—(CP)—To put London "in the forefront of the fashion world," a Fashion Industries Club is to be set up in Mayfair.

It will aim at entertaining foreign buyers and providing them with a "nation-wide network of contacts" in British fashion production.

"Though the club has the moral support of the government, it will be run as a private enterprise by representatives of leading textile and fashion industries," said secretary Hugh Robinson.

"If we are to encourage foreign buyers, we must receive them in the right way. The club will not try to compete with hotels, but will welcome visitors in attractive surroundings, offer them good food and immediate information on any merchandise that interests them."

Membership will be open to anyone connected with Britain's fashion trade. There will be six entertainment rooms and a secretariat where guests and members will be able to deal with correspondence.

Chairman of the club is Lord Hollenden. Directors include Norman Hartnell, Viscount Templetown and Lord Barnby.

But you can give your eyes a quick rest with MURINE when they feel tired from overwork or the effects of sun, wind or dust. Just put 2 drops of Murine in each eye. Instantly they feel refreshed and rested ... for Murine's 7 ingredients blend perfectly with natural eye fluids, cleansing and soothing delicate eye tissues as gently as a tear. When your eyes feel rested, chances are you'll feel better all over ... so keep a bottle of Murine handy and use it regularly!

Bothered By Summer Heat? ... well, here's a "hot-weather" trick that will make you seem to be cool as a cucumber! Protect your daintiness and your clothes from underarm perspiration — with NONSPI! Yes, a refreshing bath on a hot Summer day is fine for washing away perspiration ... but Nonspi is the best way I know to give yourself clock-around protection! You see, this effective liquid anti-perspirant actually stops perspiration before it begins! And it's skin-safe — fabric-safe! Just follow the directions in the booklet that comes with every bottle of Nonspi! Nonspi has the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval! Try its sure protection soon!

Where, Oh Where, Does The Money Go? A great deal of it, as you know only too well, goes for feeding your family. That's why it's specially important right now to get full value for your money. That's why I recommend LIBBY'S EVAPORATED MILK for your cooking! Use half Libby's Evaporated Milk and half water in any recipe calling for milk. Where cream is called for, use Libby's undiluted. You see, Libby's is fine, country-fresh milk with all the original cream left in and half the water removed when it goes to the evaporator. And it's irradiated with Vitamin D ... the sunshine vitamin! Yes, Libby's is more economical than ever now ... and it gives you such a wealth of goodness for your money!

It's A Shame To "Waste" Even Part of a beautiful Summer evening washing dinner dishes! So here's a trick to make dishwashing twice as quick — no effort at all! Soak pots, pans 'n dishes as you finish with them ... and be sure to soak them in VEL! Then, when dinner's over, wash them in hot water 'n "Vel" ... and — wonder of wonders! — you won't have to dry them! Just let them stand and they'll drain sparkling clean. For, you see, "Vel" really eliminates grease — even in the hardest of water! And "Vel" makes short work of roasting pans. Simply pour a little Vel into the pan when you take the meat out, add warm water and leave to soak till you're through dinner. You'll be amazed to see how easily even cooked-on food washes off. There are hundreds of homemaking uses for "Vel" — cleaning woodwork — washing mirrors — and light laundry, to mention just a few.

Travel With A Light Heart ... and a carefree mind, unworried by money problems ... with your funds extra-safe in Travellers' Cheques. Issued by the BANK OF MONTREAL, they're cashable at banks everywhere in Canada and come in convenient amounts of $10, $20, $50 and $100. Travel-wise folks much prefer them to cash because they're useless to the thief or finder, if stolen or lost. You sign each B of M Travellers' Cheque on top when you buy it and on the bottom when you cash it — right in the presence of the teller. And you're the one person in the world who can sign your name your way under those circumstances. That's why B of M Travellers' Cheques will help you enjoy a worry-free vacation. And B of M branches will get you special cheques for travel abroad.

The Hotter And More Trying The Weather ... the more important it is that the meals you serve should be extra-tempting — most refreshing — yet very easy to prepare! That's why so many wise cooks make any one of the delicious HEINZ CONDENSED SOUPS the one, important hot dish in a cold meal! Delicious! Try this taste-test and see for yourself:—Buy a can of Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup and compare it with any other brand. Serve half helpings of each to your family, calling them No. 1 and No. 2. Then get the verdict! I'm sure it will be the beginning of a long friendship between your family and the House of Heinz! Yes, Heinz Soups are truly flavour-packed! No wonder that, in a recent "Taste Test" — 46 clubwomen out of 52 voted Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup first choice!

Warm Weather Specialties ... ideal to serve on the porch or lawn ... are "all-in-one" supper plates. And perfect for such a meal as this is JELL-O in any of the seven delicious "locked-in" flavors. Simply place individual moulds of Jell-O garnished with whipped cream, a few assorted sandwiches, a crisp cookie or wedge of cake on each plate. Serve with tall frosty glasses of iced coffee. What could be nicer! With sparkling color ... refreshing flavor, Jell-O Jelly Powder desserts and salads are year-'round favorites.

"Land Sakes Alive, but this is good!" Grandma will approve of your choice of HARVEST MARGARINE for a spread on bread ... for an extra dash of flavour on meats and vegetables! And your husband will beam about the fine state of your budget when you "save" with nutritious "Harvest"! Just wait (but don't wait long!) 'til you taste that grand "Harvest" flavour! Here's a "pet" of a popover recipe ... when you clip it make this note to yourself — "Serve with Harvest Margarine"

Put muffin pans or thick custard cups into a hot oven (450 deg. F.) to heat just before you mix the popovers. Then simply mix 1 cup flour with ¼ tspn. salt. Beat 2 whole eggs until very thick and add ¾ cup milk. Beat for three minutes. Add ½ tspn. melted Harvest Margarine and pour into the piping hot, well-greased pans and bake for 30 min. Lower the temperature to 350 deg. F. and bake 10 min. longer.

Home-Made CHOCOLATE TOPPING!

For topping hot-weather desserts — ice cream, puddings, left-over cake — keep a jar of chocolate syrup, made with Fry's, in the ice-box all summer! Easy to make — good for you!

You'll find the recipe for this delicious home-made chocolate syrup on the Fry's Cocoa tin.

Port Hope Man Decorated DFC

William R. Cornell, former RCAF Flying Officer and a Port Hope resident, Wednesday received the DFC from Lieutenant Governor Ray Lawson. The ceremony was performed at the RCAF station, Mount Hope.

When the aircraft in which he was a gunner was returning from an atack on Osnabruk in December, 1944, it was attacked by a Junkers 88. Then a PO, Cornell opened fire and managed to drive off the attacker after inflicting considerable damage.

The citation reads in part: "Throughout many operational sorties, this officer has displayed a fine fighting spirit and outstanding enthusiasm to engage the enemy whenever possible. His cool determined manner has done much to inspire confidence in his crew . . His work has at all times set a sterling example to the rest of the squadron."

Mr. Cornell has been on the staff of the Royal Bank in Port Hope for more than a year. He went overseas on 1943 and served as an air gunner with 431 Squadron.

After being discharged he returned to Kitchener, his native city, and later took up residence in Port Hope with his wife and young son.

Edward Feely Buried

Pallbearers at the funeral of Edward Feeley, Cameron St., who died at his residence Sunday were Bruce Johnston, Alphonse and Leo Feeley, Joseph Bell, Henry Laplante and Pat Meraw. The funeral was from the Duffus Funeral Home to Sacred Heart Church of Requiem Mass, Wednesday morning, Father Cahill of Buffalo, a cousin, being the celebrant. Burial was in St. Peter's Cemetery where the graveside service was also conducted by Father Cahill. Relatives were present from Toronto, Buffalo, Oshawa and other local centres.

TYPHOON AT OKINAWA—Here is the first picture to be released by the U.S. Government showing the havoc caused when a typhoon struck Okinawa Island in the Pacific a few days ago. Above is the wreckage of a guest house at U.S. Army Headquarters on the island where property damage has been placed at $20,000,000. Although the casualty list has not been completed it is known that two lives were lost and scores of Americans and natives seriously injured.

Big Parade Planned Prelude Legion Picnic

"It's the Labor Council that goes to Riverside on Labor Day," said Ald. H. Dodds today. "The Legion picnic is at Nicholls Oval and that's on Civic Holiday."

"We have afternoon and evening programs, and if the weather is sunny we should have a big show and a big crowd. Our parade in the afternoon will have a lot of floats. It will also have 30 to 40 horses. That sounds almost like a horse show. The best float in the parade wins the Gordon Fraser trophy."

Ald. Dodds said there was nothing political about the Legion and its invitation to Ontario's new government leader, Premier Leslie Frost, from neighboring Lindsay, to attend the picnic. He will speak from the Oval stand in the afternoon.

Jet Plane Test Very Successful

LONDON, July 28.—(CP). — Aviation correspondents for London newspapers enthused today over Britain's "top secret" airliner, although none of them watched the first trial flight of the de Havilland Comet, the world's first all-jet passenger liner.

De Havilland invited more than 100 newspaper men to watch the Comet's first taxiing trials at Hatfield airdrome Wednesday. The four-turbined plane made two 500-yard hops, rising no more than nine feet off the ground.

Not until after the newspaper men had returned to London from the Hertfordshire airfield did officials decide to give the liner her first real flight.

"This was a last-minute decision," a de Havilland spokesman said. "We thought it unwise to fly the Comet before preliminary taxiing tests had been made. These proved so satisfactory, however, that later we decided to give her a trial flight."

The Comet was flown by Group Captain John Cunningham, de Havilland's chief test pilot. He soared to a height of 8,000 feet and continued flight for 31 minutes.

"The flight was entirely successful" Cunningham said later. "She was very nice to handle."

Building Barracks To House RCMP

BRANTFORD, July 28 (CP) — Construction has begun on the new barracks for RCMP, stationed on the Six Nation Reservation at Ohsweken. The building will replace the frame structure which has stood on the outskirts of the village for the past 25 years.

The old structure has been moved from the original foundation will be used to house personnel at the Lady Willingdon Hospital, Lt. Col. E. P. Randle, Superintendent of the Six Nations and Mississaugas of the Credit Reservations, said today.

The work is being done by Brown and Hurley Construction, Hamilton, and is expected to be complete by late fall.

The new quarters will house unmarried officers and officers on the lower floor. Married non-commissioned officers in charge of the detachment will occupy the top floor.

At the present time, five officers are stationed on the reservation.

London Girl Beauty Queen

COBOURG, July 28 (ENS) — Miss Margaret Bradford, 18, of London, Ontario, was adjudged the winner of the "Miss Northumberland" contest held in connection with the annual Baltimore field day yesterday. She will be crowned Queen of the Cobourg Civic Holiday celebration Friday evening later next month will compete in the "Miss Canada" pageant in Toronto.

Second place in the "Miss Northumberland" contest was won by Norma Curtis of Fenella and third place by Laura Wilson of Port Hope. The judges were Mrs. R. Earle Drope, Harwood; Miss Lorene Mann, Baltimore, and Robert Emeler, Hamilton.

The field day was sponsored by the Baltimore Fire Department and was held in the Community Centre there.

"Miss Northumberland" will receive a cash prize and have her expenses paid both during the Civic Holiday week-end celebration and to the Toronto pageant, the winner of which will receive a $3,000 scholarship.

The runners-up to "Miss Northumberland" will be her maids-of-honor at the Civic Holiday celebration. They will also receive cash prizes and have their expenses paid.

$55 Bad Cheques Pleads Guilty

Dennis Fitzgerald, manager of Zeller's, M. D. Irwin, Irwins' Drug Store and Harvey Strubb, manager of Tem Travel Agency, told Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, today in city police court how they had each cashed cheques for D. R. Tyler, 545 Water St., against which there had been no money in the bank.

Tyler pleaded guilty to obtaining a total of $55 fraudulently from the three stores.

Mr. Fitzgerald said that when Tyler told him that Mr. Zeller, Jr had been his commanding officer in the army, he had cashed a cheque for $20. He later was asked to hold the cheque but by that time it had gone to the bank

Mr. Irwin said he had chased a cheque for $15.03 which had been returned by the bank and Mr Strubb had cashed one for $20

Tyler was remanded for a week for sentence.

D. J. Henry Funeral

Pallbearers at the funeral of David Joseph Henry, Park St., who died Sunday in hospital, were William Grady, Joseph Grady, Oscar Hallihan, Harry Donoven, Herbert Condon, and John Torpey. The funeral was from the Duffus funeral Home to Sacred Heart Church for Requeim Mass Wednesday morning. The Rev. Raymond Garvey was celebrant and the Rev. G. F. Sullivan officiated at the graveside service. The Right Rev. Monsignor J. J. O'Brien was in the sanctuary. Burial was in St. Peter's Cemetery. Relatives were present from Chicago and Toronto.

Ask Suit Dismissed

NEW YORK, July 28 (AP) — The Ford Motor Company Wednesday asked dismissal of a $251,100,000 federal damage suit brought against it by Harry Ferguson, Inc. Henry Ford II, president of the automobile firm, filed a 62-page answer and counterclaim to the suit which he called "one of the largest civil actions in history." The answer denied Ferguson's claim that Ford infringed on patents in a conspiracy to destroy the Ferguson tractor firm and seize its business.

Will Build Diesel Plant Near London

Expect New Industry To Employ 1,000, Big Railroad Boost

TORONTO, July 29 — (CP)— A new diesel-electric locomotive plant, costing an estimated $5,000,000, is to be built at London, Ontario. The large-scale production will provide what officials term "a tremendous step forward for Canadian railroads."

Construction of the 226,000 square-foot plant, to start immediately, was annohuced Thursday in Detroit by C. E. Wilson, president of the General Motors Corporation. The plant will employ about 1,000 persons.

Officials said options had been approved covering a 210acre tract of land on the eastern outskirts of London, in the vicinity of Crumlin. The plant will have a capacity of one diesel locomotive a day and will construct locomotives for all classes of railway service.

Commenting on the annonucement, Planning Minister Griesinger of Ontario said Thursday night:

"....The new diesel locomotive industry will mean new and varied employment for the skills of our people and thousands of dollars a year in orders to hundreds of Ontario companies .. More than 20 municipalities will benefit by work for their local industries. For instance, radiators will come from one part of the province, steel from another, and so on."

He added that gradual conversion by railroads from steam locomotives to diesel power is opening a tremendous market for Canadian oil and should lead to the saving of millions of dollars annually in coal imports.

Carry Umbrellas, Raincoats to Coax Rain

Waynesburg Tries All Tricks Of Trade, But Not A Cloud In Sky

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 29. —(P).—The good people of Waynesburg looked in vain this morning for the rain that tradition says almost always falls on July 29. But die-hards were not giving up util the final moment.

Blue skies and a brassy sun hung over the Western Pennsylvania town as residents resorted to all the tricks in folklore to bring on even the slightest drizzle.

Members of the fire department were fining motorists 25 cents if they hadn't washed their cars today. It always rains when they do that, you know.

Many carried umbrellas. A few had raincoats and some wore rubber boots. Here and there a pretty miss was attired in a snappy bathing suit.

But there wasn't a rain cloud in the sky over this Western Pennsylvania community. The weather man wasn't co-operative. His best prediction: A slight possibility of a brief thunder shower.

But a thunder shower, no matter how brief, will be okay with John Daily.

He's the official "rainmaker" in Waynesburg, you see, and a lot of folks take stock in what John says. If he says it'll rain on July 29, that's good enough for them — they'll bet more than the hat which John wagers each year.

"Just look at the records and you don't have to worry about your money," John told the early birds who helped him with his vigil. "Why, it's failed to rain on July 29 only five times in the past 72 years."

Trees Down Across City, Car Ditched

House In Smith Twp. Hit By Lightning Ask Peterborough Aid

Peterborough waited a long time for its rain and when it did come it more than made up for lost time. As a result of the semi-cloudburst, power and telephone lines in Peterborough and district were reported down in many sections, trees were toppled, and an undisclosed amount of damage caused by flooding.

In 35 minutes .15 inches of rain fell, and driven by a strong west wind it played havoc with trees, overhead wires, and basements.

Storm sewers throughout the city found the sudden rush of water too much for them and they began to back up. Pedestrians caught in the storm were wading ankle deep through rushing rain water at the northeast corner of George and Simcoe. CSars splashed along up to their hubcaps in the torrent.

Wires Down

Hydro wires were down on Union St. and a maple tree was blown down in front of Kaye's Funeral Home, George St. There were no specific reports on telephone wiring.

A car went into the ditch on Clonsilla Ave. during the height of the downpour when the driver presumably lost sight of the road as rain splashed on his windshield. It is not yet known whether or not he was injured.

Drains on north George backed up for half a block and a deep stream was running down the middle of the road.

Dozens of Trees Damaged

A late phone call to the Examiner from Utilities revealed that the Utilities has been swamped with calls from citizens reporting damage. They estimate that at least three dozen trees or heavy branches have been blown down in scattered parts of the city.

All the staff of the city engineer's office were sent out to key points to check on catch basins, drains clogging and other faults in the drainage system caused by the freak downpour.

In the Examiner building, water covered the mailing room floor as the storm sewers backed up and drains within the building

Invite Canada to Atom Parley

OTTAWA, July 29—(CP)—Canada will send representatives to tri-country atomic talks in Washington in late August or early September, informed sources said today. The talks may produce a new version of the wartime agreement on exchange of information. A source close to acting Prime Minister Howe said he doesn't wish to make any statement until something more definite develops about the anglo-American-Canadian talks on sharing information and allocating supplies of uranium ore.

Since 1946 information has been exchanged on a limited basis in certain secret categories, none of them directly affecting the A-bomb. However, Mr. Howe has said Canada is not interested in the bomb.

Present plans do not call for the Minister himself to go to Washington but these may be changed.

Long Range Co-operation

In Washington President Truman announced Thursday that the discussions would be aimed at setting up long rang co-operation among the three Second World War atomic partners in a couple of highly important fields:

(1) The exchange of scientific and technical information and (2) the supplying of raw materials.

The president's statement, delivered to his weekly press conference, noted that atomic arrangements made in January 1948 with Britain and Canada are "limited in scope and duration." Now, he said, it is "necessary to consider the future."

One agreement, involving the sharing of the Belgian Congo's uranium supply, will expire within the next few months, it is reported. The United States now is largely dependent upon the Congo and Canada for its supply of uranium—the material that makes the atomic bomb work.

Truman's statement was his first public utterance on atomic energy since the conference here July 14, at which the issue of sharing information first was discussed by top state, military, congressional and atomic leaders of the United States.

Canadian experiments in atomic energy have been devoted largely to non-military research. However, a hint that Canada is not lagging far behind in atom-bomb research was given recently when Trale Minister Howe said Canada knows how to make atomic bombs, but isn't interested in manufacturing them.

Combined Air Lift In Berlin Reduced By Gradual Stages To Start Monday

BERLIN, July 29.—(AP).—The British and American military governments announced today the combined Berlin air lift will be reduced by gradual stages starting Monday.

A joint statement said:

"In view of the favorable stock position in Berlin, it has been decided to reduce the air lift by stages commencing Aug. 1, 1949."

The air-lift operation is to end, under present plans and barring renewed cold-war pressure, Oct. 31.

The city has upwards of five month stockpile of essential supplies, built up since the Russians lifted their blockade May 12.

The air lift, which once hit a peak of delivering almost 13,000 tons in one day, has been averaging 8,000 tons.

Road, rail and barge traffic now are bringing almost 20,000 tons daily.

The joint announcement made it clear that the framework of the air lift would be maintained in such a way that it could be revived if any new blockade tactics were attempted.

Ontario Gives $5,000,000 Further Aid To Housing

TORONTO, July 29—Two announcements relating to housing were made at Queen's Park Thursday following the weekly cabinet meeting. Planning Minister William Griesinger said the government was setting aside another $5,000,000 to meet increasing requests for second mortgage loans, and Premier Frost reported that Reconstruction Minister Winters will come to Toronto Aug. 8 to confer on housing problems.

When the province began lending individuals money for down payments on new homes, it gave its housing corporation $10,000,000. In little more than a year, loans to the value of $9,038,865 have been approved.

"Actually 8,000 houses have been constructed and 2,000 others are being built." Mr. Griesinger said. "With another $5,000,000 capital, we will be able to assist in the building of another 5,000 homes."

The maximum loan on any one house is $1,250. It is repayable in monthly amounts over a 20-year period, with interest at 3½ per cent. The assistance is extended to houses costing $12,000 or less.

Mr. Frost said he made the appointment with Mr. Winters by telephone. All phases of the housing problem, particularly in respect to low-rental homes, will be discussed and efforts made to tie the province's efforts in with the Dominion's plan.

At Ottawa the Capital is buzzing with talk about Canada's housing shortage.

Indications are that tangible evidence of the Federal government's plans to ease the shortage may be forthcoming within a few weeks following a series of conferences between Federal, Provincial and civic officials.

Reconstruction Minister Winters—head of the Federal Department that handles housing—on Thursday met one provincial Premier and made an appointment to see another one about housing. He talked, too, with the mayor of one of the cities hardest hit by the problem.

Today he is scheduled to discuss Manitoba's housing woes with Labor Minister Greenlay.

The Community Planning Association entered the picture too, Thursday, with a call for a subsidized low-rental housing program as the only solution to the nation-wide shortage of homes

LONDON, July 29—(AP) —Britain is down to its last 54 millionaires, the government reported today. The inland revenue commissioners consider a man a millionaire if he has an annual income of £100,000 ($400,000) or more. Their report for the year ended March 31, showed a decline of two in this class compared with the 56 of the preceding 12 months.

Rule Out Water In Mattawa Baby Deaths

TORONTO, July 29 (CP) — Health Minister Kelley of Ontario said Thursday that in five of 12 wells tested in the northern Ontario lumbering town of Mattawa "sufficient contamination was found to class them as unfit for domestic use."

His statement was based on a report from representatives of the Provincial Department of Health who investigated an outbreak of dysentery, reported to have taken the lives of 12 infants in the town and district.

Mr. Kelley said the report "makes it most difficult to make a definite statement that water was the cause of the outbreak."

He said, in the statement, that samples were taken from 12 of the wells used by the families of patients suffering from the outbreak of "so-called dysentery."

These showed, on examination, 'no evidence of contamination in seven samples, while five samples showed sufficient contamination to class them as unfit for domestic use without first boiling or chlorinating."

"Since five children used contaminated water and contracted the disease and seven used uncontaminated water and also caught it, it is impossible to attribute it definitely to the water."

Forces Back Truman In Arms Aid Drive

WASHINGTON, July 29 (AP) The armed services rolled their big oratorical guns up to Capitol Hill today in support of President Truman's drive for a $1,450,000,000 program to help arm friendly countries.

Defence Secretary Johnson and the army, navy and air force high command led the parade before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The lawmakers were especially interested in getting from secretary Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, some information about Russia's military strength. They also want an estimate on the effect the Truman proposal would have on United States defences.

The service leaders are the only witnesses to be heard before the committee adjourns until next Monday to hear former State Secretary George Marshall, one of the planners of the Marshall Plan.

Held For Drunkenness

HOLLYWOOD, July 29 (AP)— Charles Chaplin, Jr., 24-year-old son of the comedian, was arrested early today on a drunkenness charge. Police said that young Chaplin was creating a disturbance outside a cafe.

Child, 10, Beast of Burden Judge Fines Father $200

SARNIA, July 29—(CP)—A 10-year-old girl whom the court called a "beast of burden" was taken from her father Thursday as Magistrate C. S. Woodrow fined District farmer Arthur Levoy $200 and $55 costs after convicting him of wounding the girl with a pitchfork. Annie has been driving a tractor since she was five years old, the father said. She was given to the temporary care of grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Podolinsky at Alvinston.

Magistrate Woodrow said that Levoy missed a prison term only because he has a 300-acre farm and considerable livestock to maintain.

"We want this girl brought up like a Christian—not like a beast of burden," said the magistrate. The girl was not asked to give evidence.

Kept Her Busy

Levoy admitted strapping his daughter several times after he had come home and found her visiting relatives. Her chores included feeding the chickens, bringing in the cows, doing housekeeping and cooking meals.

Levoy said his wife died three years ago shortly after her return from hospital where she underwent a major operation.

Asked by Magistrate Woodrow what he had done when his wife returned to the farm from hospital, Levoy said she had been out in the field working.

Magistrate Woodrow commented: "Then she came home and you had her working in the fields. She practically died working in the fields."

Levoy answered: "My mother-in-law says I killed her working in the field with me — I just couldn't keep that woman in the house."

On the charge of wounding his daughter, Levoy pleaded not guilty and claimed he "slipped" on a hay wagon July 5 and his pitchfork struck his daughter accidentally. He admitted that he made no effort to give the girl medical attention.

Provincial Police Cpl. R. J. Whiting said that later Levoy confessed to him that he had thrown the pitchfork at the girl's back but said he was "very sorry" about it. At the time, Levoy said, he was "mad" at his daughter.

Strike Ended Announce Terms

TORONTO, July 29.—(CP).— Employees of the Massey-Harris Company today accepted terms proposed for settlement of a dispute which led Local 439 of the United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) to call a strike at the plant last Tuesday. Some 4,500 men were idle.

The settlement plan, proposed by Louis Fine of the Ontario Department of Labor, provides for arbitration of the chief point at issue—dismissal by the company of Steve Anco, Local 439 president. The men return to work Tuesday.

Union officials said that representatives of the union from the Massey-Harris plant at Brantford attended today's membership meeting and concurred in the settlement which provides for arbitration of the chief issue in the pany of Steve Anco, Local 439 dispute—dismissal by the compresident.

Terms of the settlement are:

1. All employees return to work on their respective shifts at 7 a.m., Aug. 2.

2. Steve Anco, president of the local, remains discharged from the service of the company, and the union grievance regarding his dismissal will be submitted to arbitration.

3. The company will not impose the penalties on union security provided in the contract.

4. The company waives the requirement to work Friday, July 29, to qualify for Monday's Civic Holiday pay.

Blacklist Algoma Resorts Guilty of Gyping Tourists

SAULT STE. MARIE, July 29. —CP).—The Sault Chamber of Commerce will undertake to blacklist Algoma resort operators and business establishments found guilty of unfair dealings with tourists, President R. L. Curran announced Thirsday.

He said the Chamber was determined to wipe out any black mark against the Sault district through the alleged blacklisting of the area by the Chicago Automobile Club. The Illinois organization claimed that a number of complaints had been laid by tourists returning from Algoma concerning exorbitant prices, noisy streets, police car tagging and poor fishing.

President Currant said: ::There are some grounds for the Chicago Automobile Club's move against this district. It's up to us to see that this doesn't happen again."

The Chamber adopted a resolution to blacklist resorts and stores giving unfair treatment to tourists, and added that no recommendations would be made on their behalf to tourists at Sault Ste. Marie travel headquarters.

Members of the Chamber guilty of tourist mistreatment will be expelled and will not be permitted to rejoin until they agree to conform to the principles laid down by the Chamber, the resolution added.

No Troops To Go Under Aid Plan

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP).—Defence Secretary Louis Johnson told Congress today that no additional United States troops will be sent to Europe as part of the military aid program.

In a statement prepared for the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs committee setting forth the national military establishment's views on the legislation, Johnson said he wanted to make one point "absolutely clear."

"This military assistance program is solely an equipment and a technical and training assistance program. The only United States personnel involved will be a strictly limited number of technical and training specialists to assist and advise the participating countries."

RCMP Check Workers On Navy Vessels

OTTAWA, July 29 (CP) —A government source said today that the RCMP are working in close co-operation with the government to investigate all technicians employed in the construction of the navy's three speedy anti-submarine ships.

A clause has ben inserted in the contracts awarded to shipbuilding companies in Montreal, Halifax and Vancouver to agree to the investigation of men working on the craft.

Part of the investigation—to make certain no subversive elements obtain information or plans of the secret equipment to be placed aboard the vessels—already has been completed. So far, said the source, no subversive element has been turned up.

Feud Halts Traffic

TORONTO, July 29 — (CP)— Thirteen "zoot-suiters" who were carrying on a "private fight" over who should have first drink at a drinking fountain, tied up traffic on west-end Bathurst St. for more than 15 minutes Thursday night. The youths were taken into custody and later released one by one when they refused to press charges against each other.

Police Expect Break In Boardwalk Case

TORONTO, July 29.—(CP).— Police investigating the bludgeon murder Wednesday of 38-year-old Leslie Hern said today that a break in the case may be expected within 24 hours.

Officers said new clues have been uncovered during the night, and police are seeking a man described as a laborer who spent the week-end at Hern's home.

Police questioned five persons Thursday but later released them. But police officials said they had found out "pretty well whom we are looking for."

$50,000 Fire Destroys Inn Can't Get Fire Equipment

KINGSTON, July 29—(CP)— Fire of unknown origin Thursday night destroyed the Golden Slipper, on Highway No. 2, 10 miles east of here. The damage, according to Harry Rosen, part owner, is about $50,000. Mr. Rosen said the property was jointly owned by his father and himself.

The fire which was first noticed by Helen Rosen, apparently started in the rear of the large frame structure, Mr. Rosen said he rushed to the scene of the blaze. He tried to put it out with a fire extinguished but failed. The flames spread quickly. "I rushed out of the building," said he, "and some people who were having a meal did likewise."

Lack of fire fighting equipment resulted in the fire spreading. "We were unable to get any fire fighting equipment from Kingston as there is no agreement between the corporation of the City of Kingston and Pittsburgh Township for fire fighting equipment to respond to fires in the township," he said.

The fire department from Vimy Barracks responded after about one hour's negotiations between Reeve Colin Woods and the military authorities. Lack of water made the fire department's work difficult. One well was soon emptied and the emergency tanks on the fire engine were also expended.

Linemen from the Gananoque Light, Heat and Power Company responded, and cut the electric wires leading from the transformer to the building. For a time it was feared the fire might extend to the hydro lines.

Reeve Woods said it was impossible for him to summon the Kingston Fire Department. "We have no agreement between the city and the township," he said, "and I am forbidden by resolution to call the Kingston Brigade. It took me about an hour to get permission from the military authorities to get the Vimy Fire Department to respond."

Continue Search For Bank Loot

KIRKLAND LAKE, July 29 — (CP)—The search for money stolen from the nearby Larder Lake branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada July 19 still is continuing.

This was made known Thursday by Police Chief Ralph Paul of Larder Lake after Leo Martial, 24, and Victor Desmarais, 23, both of Noranda, Que., pleaded guilty to charges of armed robbery and were remanded a week for sentence.

During the court hearing, Wm. Tranter, accountant at the bank, said $1,425 of the $13,057 stolen still is missing.

Chief Paul later told reporters he had no further information concerning the money but he intends to continue searching the rough bush country surrounding the gild-mining community of Larder Lake.

French Upper House Ratifies Atlantic Pact

PARIS, July 29 (AP) — The Upper House of the French Parliament ratified the Atlantic Pact, 284-20, early today. The Lower House had previously ratified it. The treaty now goes to President Vincent Auriol for formal ratification.

The motion of approval also called on the United States to back the treaty with arms.

It asked the French government to "use all its authority to obtain the furnishing from the United States government of armaments and modern equipment indispensable to the French armies in effectively filling the obligations of defence and aid under the Atlantic Pact."

No Atom Secrets Lost In 3 Years, Tighten Controls

OTTAWA, July 29 (CP)—As far as government officials know, Canada hasn't lost any atomic secrets to foreign powers since the espionage probe three years ago, but the Dominion isn't letting up her efforts to tighten export restrictions on any materials used in atomic research.

The latest security move is disclosed in an order-in-council which places radio-active elements on th erestricted list of export items.

This means that every case of export of these materials will be handled through Canada's export-control machinery.

Canada is co-operating with the United Kingdom and the U.S. in the drive to tighten up restrictions on movement of atomic research equipment.

Prior to the order-in-council there was lack of uniformity in regulations covering movement of atomic materials.

All export was under control of the Atomic Research Board which hasn't its own machinery for enforcing the regulations. For a number of materials there were individual regulations requiring that export permits be used.

Covers Everything

The order-in-council, passed July 20, rounds up all the regulations and adds anything that wasn't covered previously. It places all regulations under the export-control machinery which is in a position to handle atomic materials along with other everyday things which require permits for export.

One reason for the tightening is that more private persons have access to atomic ores now than before. Until the beginning of last year all prospecting for uranium-bearing ores was under government control.

Since then it has been open to individual prospectors, and although the government still buys all uranium ore and processes it, there is always the possibility of attempts to export the raw ore without authority. While there has been no report of smuggling of high-grade pitchblende, it could happen.

Send Speakers' Chair

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., July 29 — (CP)—Ontario is sending a gift to its new sister-province of Newfoundland—a speaker's chair for the House of Assembly here. Premier Smallwood read to the Legislature Thursday a cable from Premier Frost of Ontario, offering the chair "in token of our admiration for the people of our sister-province." Unloading Line Hole Coats Lake With Oil

TORONTO, July 29 (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario said today an investigation by Provincial authorities showed that oil slicks floating on Lake Ontario waters in the Toronto harbor vicinity came from oil refineries at nearby Port Credit.

At the same time, R. I. Petrie, assistant superintendent of the Trinidad Leaseholds Company at Port Credit, told reporters that a "small" leak in an unloading line at their refineries had dumped 50 barrels of black crude oil into the lake Tuesday night.

However, he said the company could not be blamed for the larger slicks which have been reported in the harbor areas recently.

Thursday, civic authorities closed public beaches in the Toronto area because of the oil.

Slav Council Protests Nazi Sympathizers

TORONTO, July 29.—(CP). — The Council of Canadian South Slavs protested today to Prime Minister St. Laurent against the arrival in Canada of two Yugoslavians — Dr. Gregori Rozman and Moncilo Djujic — whom it identified as "notorious Nazi collaborators and war criminals."

Council officials, who reported that the men fled Yugoslavia with the Germans during the war and recently have been living in the United States, said they did not know the circumstances under which the men entered Canada. They came in within the last 10 days.

Protesting to Mr. St. Laurent by telegram, the Council said:

"The Yugoslav peoples suffered Nazi invaders and their servants enormously at the hands of the such as Djujic and Rozman and look with indignation upon those who would give them aid and comfort and help them in carrying further their traitorous activities."

could not carry the load. Employees were wading in the water up to their ankles, and loads of dirt were brought in from the new addition in an attempt to stop the flow.

Floods Streets

Right in front of Utilities substation at the corner of Aylmer and Sherbrooke Sts., the water was flowing completely over the curbs and across the street. In the new Brookdale subdivision in the north end of the town on the Chemong highway two rivers formed but the water seemed to be carried away quite well. On McKellar St., another new district in the south end of town, water stretched across the street in spite of storm drains which were recently put in.

Most heavily flooded roads were around Arndon Ave. where the water stretched across the road from house to house. Arnold Steel, looking out of his home on Arndon Ave. at 2 p.m. saw the intersection of St. Catherine St. and Arndon completely covered with water.

Water rushed into the cellar at Payne's Drug Store and all hands got busy moving supplies in a race against the storm.

One of the worst hydro breaks was a fallen tree at Maria St. near the footbridge over the CPR tracks. A total disruption of service in that locality followed.

After the main storm was over a passerby noticed people jammed into every store doorway on George St. The sign of Anthony's Fruit Market was blown down and the standards were bent nearly to the sidewalk. Several awnings were ripped and the one at Milady Dress Shop was torn down completely.

The only ones who seemed to enjoy the flash storm were three children in bathing suits on George St., and splashed around in the cool rainwater to their hearts content. Their elders were more intent on keeping dry.

Another late call that came into the newsroom said hat about 10 children of school age were swimming in a great pool of water outside 214 Perry St. Depth of the water was not given but it was sufficient for the youngsters to practise their swimming.

The deluge of water broke through the canopy at the Centre Theatre and flooded the ticket office. An improvised ticket-selling office was set up at the back of the foyer. Rainwater was running in streams from the three theatre marquees.

Fired By Lightning

At 1.25 p.m. lightning struck the chimney on the house occupied by Samuel Rath, his wife, and three children on Parkhill Rd., ½ mile west of Jackson Park in Smith Township. The chimney was knocked completely off, scattering bricks over the ground. It caused fire to break out in the roof and at press time it was being controlled by neighbors using garden hoses, as efforts to get the Peterborough Fire Department to the scene were futile, despite calls made to the Reeve of Smith Township, Mayor Swanston and Fire Chief Geargs Smith.

The bolt coursed down through a hot air register to the kitchen where Mrs. Rat hand her two daughters Jean and Catherine, and son Jack were eating their noon dinner. No one was injured, but Catherine just missed being hit by about a foot.

The family have been living in the house, a one-storey structure, for two years and the father is an employee of Peterborough Canoe Company.

Large quantities of water seeping down through the building from the hoses was causing additional damage to the house.

Advise Seamen To Drop Strike

OTTAWA, July 29 (CP)—Canadian government officials have repeated their blunt advice that the Canadian Seamen's Union call off its strike against eastern deep-sea shipping.

For the second time in a month, Arthur McNamara, deputy minister of labor, Thursday told union members they have lost their strike and the government can't help them until it's over.

He made the statement to a seven-man delegation of the Communist-influenced union during a stormy meeting between the delegation and labor department officials.

Both he and the leader of the delegation, Charles MacDonald of Cornwall, gave their versions of the meeting to reporters.

Mr. MacDonald said the government representatives were "uncooperative and hostile."

He said the deputy minister walked out of the meeting and "refused to even discuss the proposals submitted by the membership. The labor department representatives claimed that our appearance here was merely for the purpose of propaganda for the press."

Mr. MacNamara said he had advised the delegation against coming to Ottawa because there had been no change in the strike situation since June 27 when he wrote CSU president Harry Davis, advising him to end the strike.

Girl Goes Beserk In Atlanta Weather

ATLANTA, July 29 — (AP). — The hot weather in Atlanta was apparently just too much for a 21year-old girl early to-day.

Clad in slacks, nothing more, she jumped into an ice delivery truck and almost caused the driber to wreck the vehicle.

Shortly before, police said, she had turned in a false alarm and brought firemen from every downtown station speeding to the scene.

Police said the girl gave her name as Ann Warren of Blue Ridge, Ga. When the officers stopped the ice truck, the girl borrowed a towel in an effort to fill the uncovered portions of her hot weather costume. She was charged with disorderly conduct.

A high of 95 degrees was forecast for to-day after Thursday's 94.

Napanee Youth Stands Trial For Shooting

NAPANEE, July 29 (CP)—Alfred Childs, 16-year-old farm laborer will stand trial here next fall for murder in the hayfield shooting of Elijah McQuait, 57, at Selby, 20 miles west of Kingston.

Childs, also known in this district as Johnny Nelson, was committed for trial Thursday after a five-hour preliminary hearing before Magistrate J. B. Garvin.

Residents of this eastern Ontario farming section crowded the little courtroom to hear witnesses describe how McQuaig, a popular district farmer, was blasted from his hayrake June 29 by a fusillade of rifle shots fired from a barn. McQuaig's helper, Donald Ross, 18, was wounded twice by bullets while trying to flee.

Ross said that after he, himself, was hit the second time, he lay down in the hay and saw the person who was doing the shooting. He said he watched the marksman for about two minutes and could identify him if he saw him again.

Asked if anyone in the courtroom resembled the sniper, Ross pointed to Childs and replied:

"That fellow there—Childs."

Harry Thompson, who had been working near Ross, said three bullets came close to him.

Slight Thing Like Hill Can Touch Off Tornado

MONTREAL, July 29 (CP) — Weather experts today blamed the hot weather for the three minor tornadoes which have hit Quebec communities in the last 10 days, and called them "trigger action" storms.

The forecasters said that such a slight thing as a hill might touch off the kind of storm which has caused property damage running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars recently in Papineauville, Three Rivers and the Eastern Townships.

Weatherman Said:

"During the period of any excessive heat, such as the province is enduring at the present, the ground becomes hot and starts warm air spiralling upward to meet the colder air. This is a normal procedure and although this movement has the makings of a storm, it needs an unusual incident to touch off the blow.

"It could be a sloping hill directly exposed to the sun. This bit of earth heats up more quickly than the surrounding country and the extra movement it gives the air in this particular area may be sufficient to start a localized tornado.

"In other words, the hill would be the trigger setting off the storm."

The first Quebec community to experience the costly phenomenon was the Village of Cheneville in Papineau County, hit by the tornado-like storm July 19. Every roof in the village of 600 was wrecked and several persons were injured.

Next to suffer was the Eastern Townships hamlet of Rock Forest which lost half a dozen barns, two homes and its church.

Wednesday Three Rivers was hit. A wind and rain storm uprooted trees, ripped roof-tops from several houses and flattened barns. Simultaneously, the villages of St. Francois de Sales and Terrebonne on Des Prairies River north of Montreal, experienced milder versions of a similar blow.

Heiress Keeps Son For Summer

DEDHAM, Mass., July 29 (AP) — Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton Troubetzkoy can keep her only son with her for the summer because she is in poor health.

Under a court agreement reached Thursday she may have Lance, 13, whose custody she shares with his father, former Count Curt Haugwitz Reventlow of Denmark, with her in Europe until Sept. 7.

The arrangement ended an across-the-world court squabble which broke because Babs went swimming at swank Lido Beach in Venice.

The tall, tanned former count, who previously had agreed that Lance could stay with his mother, did so because the court was told the heiress is in critical condition.

He later changed his mind when reports reached here that Babs was swimming. He asked for a new hearing.

Thursday, Babs' swimming was described as part of her cure.

Nehru Sends Elephant For Japanese Children

NEW DELHI, July 29—A 15-year-old female elephant, seven feet tall and with special attributes, has been obtained in Mysore State for Prime Minister Nehru to present to the children of Japan as he promised some weeks ago in response to an appeal from about 1,000 Tokyo school pupils.

Describing the animal as a "magnificent elephant of exemplary behavior," the Indian News Agency reported from Bangalore that she also "possesses rare auspucious marks—has 18 toenails instead of the usual 16 or 17, carries a trailing trunk, walks head aloft and swings a long tufted tail." She is named Indira.

The elephant, which was captured three years ago near the birthplace of Sabu, the Hollywood "elephant boy," will be shipped to Tokyo with a mahout and feeder.

150 Students Placed In Jobs

A total of 150 boy and girl secondary school students of Peterborough have been placed in summer jobs, mostly in summer resorts in the Kawarthas, William Mellis, manager of the local office of the National Employment Service, said today. Some of them secured employment in stores, but very few got summer jobs in factories, in view of the fact that many of them have been forced to place some of their workers on part-time due to a falling off in orders, blamed on increased consumer resistance to high prices.

The number of high school students securing vacation jobs in industrial plants this summer is considerably lower than last year, Mr. Mellis said. He said the factories appeared reluctant to take on any students who had not completed their education.

Altogether 87 boys registered for employment and 110 girls. All available jobs for boys were filled, while two vacancies for girls remained unfilled. An equal number of boys and girls, 75 each, were placed in summer employment.

Canada's Reserve Army Men Get Most Modern Weapons

PETAWAWA, July 29 (CP) — Canada's reserve army is being trained for modern warfare.

At this huge military camp 90 miles west of Ottawa—Canada's largest summer reserve camp sprawled over 110 square miles—reserve units get practical training in 76 courses.

Seven hundred reserve force troops Thursday got an idea of the composition and tactical movement of an armored advance guard.

They were one of the groups of reservists which have been seeing the demonstration each week all summer long. Reporters and visitors also watched Thursday.

Sixty-two motorized vehicles—including 29 tanks—other vehicles carrying infantry—stormed rearguard posts held by a theoretical enemy covering the withdrawal of his main forces.

Besides the tanks were scout cars, armored cars, engineering units, ambulances with stretcher bearers and a tank-repair vehicle taking part in the exercise which involved 500 active and reserve force troops.

Demonstrate Teamwork

Along with a firepower demonstration which followed, the exercise was designed to give the individual soldier an overall picture of the teamwork of an army of which he is a member.

Various guns in an infantry platoon were fired individually in addition to infantry support weapons, including the three-inch mortar, Vickers machine guns, 5.5-inch guns, 25 pounders, tank guns, anti-tank guns and flame-throwers.

All reserve force units with the exception of anti-aircraft and signal units are trained here.

For the first time reserve units are training with modern weapons. Close to 5,000 of an expected 6,000 eserve troops have already been trained this summer.

Policy of reserve training is to bring each man to the highest possible standard of "individual" training. Troops will be taught this winter for the first time how to live out under severe winter conditions.

First Aid Given On Highways

Those highway First Aid Posts have a history. In 1927 Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health for Ontario, noticed the growing number of highway accidents and realized that some form of First Aid must be instituted to take care of the victims. He devised a simple system of First Aid boxes set up on posts at strategic points on the highways, which were generously financed by The Honourable Wallace Nesbitt and Mr. J. P. Bickell, of St. John Ambulance, and Sir Edward Kemp. These gentlemen maintained this operation until 1934 when the great expansion in both highways and motor vehicles, and consequently in the accident rate, indicated that a much more elabaorate system was called for.

In that year, therefore, the present Highway First Aid System was organized. It was agreed that definite First Aid Posts should be instituted, that Post personnel should be given adequate training and that ambulance patrols should cover highways during the peak traffic months.

A committee of managaement was set up consisting of one representative each of St. John Ambulance, Ontario Red Cross and Ontario Motor League and these three organizations have financed it jointly ever since, the actual management being in the hands of St. John Ambulance.

Deliberately Spaced

A large proportion of the public are unaware of the scope of this system, as First Aid Posts are deliberately placed away from major centres of population, in places where the incidence of accidents is greatest. However, the growth of the system has kept pace with that of the highways and now sixty-two posts are in operation, covering the area from Windsor to Cornwall and from the Niagara frontier to the Trans-Canada highway in the north.

Each year over 220 Post personnel are given refresher courses in First Aid and some 600 accident victims cared for. Serious cases are prevented from being fatal through prompt treatment for shock and the proper control of severed arteries until a doctor can be reached. Minor cases likewise are prevented from becoming more serious.

Costly Maintenance

The maintenance of this system is naturally costly but the resulting benefits are far greater than any expense involved. When First Aid is needed, it is needed badly.

As you travel the highways, keep your eyes open for the signs "First Aid Post—1 mile" and the large triangular sign where the Post itself is located. Accidents don't always happen to somebody else! It may be your turn next.

Talented Singer

COBOURG, July 29 (ENS) — The lovely voice of Margaret Bradford of London, winner of the "Miss Northumberland" beauty contest at Baltimore on Wednesday night, enchanted the huge crowd who heard her. It was part of the competition for each contestant to show her ability as an entertainer and Miss Bradford sang a solo. She is a performer with the London Prom Orchestra and an accomplished singer. She will be crowned queen of the Cobourg Civic Holiday celebration when the big-four program opens this evening.

Investigate Death

KITCHENER, July 29—(CP)—An investigation was launched Thursday into the death of the two-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne McMahon, who live in Wellesley township north of nearby Linwood. An autopsy was performed but the findings were not announced. Dr. Leroy Wagner, coroner of Elmira, called in the Provincial Police and the Children's Aid Society after Dr R. S. Wyatt, also of Elmira, visited the baby's parents.

Ungava's Wealth In Ore Greater Than Imagined

QUEBEC, July 29 (CP)—Ungava's wealth in iron ore is even greater than heretofore imagined.

That was the word brought back Thursday from the mineral-wealthy region of northeastern Quebec by the Hon. C. D. French, provincial mines minister, who flew to Ungava last week.

He told a press conference that the North Shore Exploration Company now estimates there are 500,000,000 tons of iron ore in Ungava. This is 200,000,000 tons more than earlier survey had shown.

Mr. French said the company proposes to carry on with its plans to produce 10,000,000 annually, and that on this basis ore can be taken from the region for the next 50 years.

The North Shore Exploration Company has contracted with the provincial government to develop the iron-ore resources of Ungava.

Mr. French said he also visited the Havre St. Pierre area on the far eastern north shore of the St. Lawrence where the Quebec Iron and Titanium Corporation is developing titanium deposits.

Mr. French said the corporation, which began making surveys 1½ years ago, expect to reach active production by the autumn of 1950. The deposits are estimated to hold 1,000,000 tons of ore.

Dining-Car System Revised By CNR

MONTREAL, July 29 (CP) — The Canadian National Railways has put to the test the British dining-car system designed to eliminate queueing among travellers and reduce losses on diner service.

A spokesman for the government-owned system said here Thursday night the British system has been tested on the company's Halifix-Montreal boat trains the last month and has proved "successful." The test has now been extended to regular runs right across the country.

Lineups for meals are eliminated by serving the meals in a series of "sittings," he explained. Before each meal, a steward passes through the coaches asking the passengers the sitting at which they would like to be served. They are given a card which admits them to the diner with no waiting when their turn comes up.

To Quicken Parliamentary Proceedings

The Montreal Star makes the interesting suggestion that the business of Parliament could be quickened if only two leaders were recognized in the Commons—the Prime Minister and the leader of the official Opposition. Much time is wasted, the newspaper says, in hearing from the C.C.F. leader and from the leader of the Social Credit party whenever a tribute is being paid to a distinguished man, or whenever a general debate on the Speech from the Throne or the Budget is opened. The C.C.F. and the Social Crediters take up time out of all proportion to their numbers, and their national importance, and the Star thinks that the time has come for them to take a back seat. Indeed, the Star declares that Canada has returned to a two-party system.

• • •

We wish that we were able to agree. We think that parliamentary government works best when there are only two parties, and when all issues are fought without reference to what some dissident group may do. But we cannot think that the C.C.F. is done for, even though it has only thirteen men in the new Commons. It held its own in the voting in June, and it now talks confidently of providing an alternative to the Liberals at the next general election. It is not a national party, and if there is an explosion in the B.C. section of its organization it may lose an important part of its strength. Nevertheless we think that it would be foolish to write it off as of no account. For the Social Credit party we have less consideration. It is, quite plainly, never going to amount to anything; it is a one-province party, and something of a nuisance the Commons. However, it has not ..ieved its present situation by shows of humility, and we are sure that it will never surrender willingly any of the attention it has claimed in the Commons.

• • •

The C.C.F. and the Social Crediters are parties "on the make". They have few members, but they do a great deal of speaking in order to keep themselves in the public eye. They are not going to moderate the gush of their oratory simply because it would save the country's time if they did so. Nor does it lie very easily in the power of the Speaker to keep them quiet; the smaller a party is the less it can afford to keep silent. Certainly they would protest passionately against any move to diminish the recognition which they have gained in the Commons. We must consider, also, that a day may come when the C.C.F. has more members in the Commons than the Progressive-Conservative party; we are quite sure that the P.Cs would not be willing to keep quiet under such circumstances.

• • •

The two small parties waste a great deal of time; they talk too much. But the Star's suggestion that they be ignored will not work. Minority groups in parliament are among the boils of democracy, to be endured with whatever patience we can muster.

The Plight Of The Prophet

Thomas Mann, perhaps the most famous of living Germans, is being sharply criticised in his native land because he left it 16 years ago and became an American citizen; many Germans apparently think now that Mann should have stayed with them and helped in the fight against Nazism.

Superficially their point is a good one, but it will not bear a realistic examination. Sixteen years ago there were very few Germans who saw anything particularly wrong with the Nazi regime. Those few were disorganized, and all they wanted was peace. They hoped that the Nazi era and its clownish leader would pass in time, and that they would not have to bestir themselves to make a protest. If Thomas Mann had appealed to all the Germans who did not like the Nazis to unite against them, he would not have received much response; he would undoubtedly have been persecuted by the Nazis themselves, and in time he would have been forced to leave his country.

Mann did the wise thing: he saw what was coming and he got out of Germany while he could still do so. The people who criticise him now would not listen to him sixteen years ago (for he made no secret of his dislike and mistrust of totalitarianism) and they are jealous of his greater wisdom and foresight. Mann's predicament is the plight of the prophet from earliest history—his countrymen cannot forgive him for having been able to see farther ahead than they themselves could.

Mann is a very remarkable person, not easily understood by people whose judgements are made chiefly on emotional grounds. He regards himself, quite understandably, as a custodian of German culture at its best; he sees himself as a link in that great chain which includes Lessing, Goethe, Heine and Nietzsche. He is a man of letters, not a politician or a soldier; his leadership is of men's minds, and not of their bodies. Any revolt which he could have led against the Nazis would have been an intellectual revolt, and the Nazi reply to intellectual revolution was the concentration camp and the gas chamber. Can anyone name a single German intellectual who remained in his country, denounced the Nazis, and lived to tell the tale? Mann, rightly considering himself too valuable to be wasted in a hopeless struggle, left his country and tried to arouse the world to the danger of totalitarianism.

The Germans now may call him a traitor; but he remained true to that great German tradition which they, from indolence, or stupidity, betrayed. And he still remains in that tradition, and it is in that tradition that his immortality is assured.

Of What Value Are Tracts?

Within the past week we have been given three tracts. One was pushed through our letter-box before the postman came in the morning; one was left in our car while we were elsewhere; one was handed to us as we sat in a parked car by a man who rode by on a bicycle. We have read these tracts, and they have made no impression upon us. No doubt the tract-givers will take this as evidence that we are stony-hearted. We think that the tracts were powerless in our case because they were thrust upon us by unknown and unauthorized persons; to hand a man a printed enquiry about the state of his soul as he sits in a car is a piece of impertinence, and if the tracts were in support of Mohammedanism or Voodooism we think that this fact would be more generally recognized.

There are useful tracts. They are usually on sale in the lobbies of churches; they explain or elaborate on matters which are of interest to churchgoers, and they may be bought for a small sum. They are usually well-written and interesting. The tracts which we have been given in the streets are not well-written and we do not want them. Neither, we imagine, do most other people.

Is there any evidence, outside the imaginings of the tract-distributors, that these pieces of paper do any good? One of those given to us offers us a reprint of the Gospel of John in return for our name and address. We have the Gospel of John ready to hand, and so, we think, have most other people who are likely to want one.

There is admirable precedent for street evangelism, but when it degenerates into a paper chase it loses its force. The Gospel is free to all, but hawking it in the street like a wart-cure wins no admiration for it. The scattering of tracts, we believe, is a waste of time and a nuisance.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There are more important things in life than money, but most of them cost money. It is said to lie at the root of all evil, but it can provide much of what is good, too, if it is used intelligently.

A man in Pennsylvania says that his dog is so intelligent that it turns on the radio. If that animal keeps on studying, and is gifted with really unusual intelligence, it should sooner or later get enough sense to turn the radio off.

A designer has prepared a $1,000 nightdress for Lana Turner; he is reported as saying that the average girl could get the same effect for $114.95. A girl has to be even more average than that, as a usual thing, in buying her nighties.

A statistician pops up with the observation that nine people out of ten cannot swim. We do not know upon what he bases his statement, but we are pretty sure that of the nine non-swimmers five think that they are pretty good. They are the ones who overdo it, and go to the bottom.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column, particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR ALPHA: I have always been under the impression that aluminum is an alloy, being composed of aluminium, bauxite and cryolite. In McAree's column the other day the two were listed as interchangeable (aluminum and aluminium) and on looking them up in the dictionary (Funk and Wagnall's) this apears to be true. Is this actually so?

ANSWER: Yes. In both the U.S.A. and Canada the element, whose chemical symbol is Al, and the alloy are referred to as aluminum; in England both are referred to as "aluminium." Chambers's Technical Dictionary (a British and authoritative publication) gives the words as interchangeable. In some Canadian schools there is a tendency to teach that the element is aluminium, the alloy and commercial product aluminum. It is a fancy distinction that scientists and the aluminum industry seem not to recognize.

You may be interested that the parent company of Aluminum Company of Canada, Aluminium Company of South Africa, Northern Aluminium Company Ltd. of Great Britain, Aluminiumwerke Goettingen G.m.b.H. of Germany, Aluminium Meridional of France, Societa Dell'Alluminio Italiano of Italy, and a couple of dozen other companies—that this parent company whose head office is Montreal, is called Aluminium Limited. So you see how freely the other 'i' pops in and out. It generally depends on the country, but not always.

ALPHA: Exactly where is Monte Carlo? Is it an independent state as well as a town where people play roulette and gamble in other ways?

ANSWER: Monte Carlo is not a state but the place where it is is a state. This independent principality is called Monaco and the citizens or natives of it are called Monegasques. Its present ruler is Prince Rainier III. It consists of 395 acres on the Mediterranean between the French cities of Nice and Monaco, near the Italian border. Its inhabitants speak French, of course, since it is really a little chunk of France, although it has for centuries been a Principality. It is only half the size of New York City's Central Park. This state is a town and its suburbs up to the French borders east and west, the sea at the south, and the hills immediately north. The whole thing is called Monaco, not Monte Carlo.

Monte Carlo is a new name, and comes from the time when the gambling Casino was founded in 1858 at the request of Prince Charles III of Monaco. He eyed the profits of gambling places in Germany and determined to have one in his own tiny kingdom. After a time the new Casino, called Mount Charles (Monte Carlo) flourished and the name was also given to the section in which it was located. Until this last war, the profits from the Casino paid all the costs of running the tiny state or principality. Now there are few really wealthy foreigners who gamble fortunes in an evening, and patronage and profits have dropped.

I FEAR I am runing on at length about Monte Carlo and Monaco. It is because I like the place. I first visited it in 1936, arriving by bicycle from Nice, in July. The sun was hot, I was perspiring (after pushing the bike along numerous hills), was dirty and looking like a tramp. The only indication I had of crossing the border from France into the Principality was a traffic policeman on point duty, clothed completely in immaculate white from his helmet to his shoes. I stopped to ask him the way to Les Jardins Exotiques (not to the Casino—I had no money to gamble, and anyway I was in shorts and in those days one wore evening dress in the Casino and one's gentility had to be guaranteed). I expected to be answered like the ragamuffin I appeared. Instead, the policeman in white came up to a smart salute and most courteously and in excellent French directed me to the exotic gardens which are famous throughout Europe for their wonderful and curious tropical plants. Incidentally, the profits from the Casino used to pay for the upkeep of these gardens.

Citizens of Monaco pay NO INCOME TAXES and are not required to do military duty. It seems, doesn't it, a desirable place to become a citizen of? But to become a citizen of Monaco is not easy. Of the 20,000 inhabitants of Monaco only 3,500 are citizens. The local naturalization laws bar anyone from applying for citizenship unless his family has resided in the Principality continuously for four generations.

As philatelists know the Principality of Monaco has its own postage stamps (but not its own money; that is French). The sale of new issues of postage stamps is a very good source of revenue to the state.

DEAR SIR: Since yours is an Examiner column, perhaps you can tell me what "ENS" means after the date, and in front of news stories?

ANSWER: That is the Examiner's holograph to indicate that the story originates with the Examiner's own staff correspondents, and stands for "Examiner News Service." The Examiner has, I believe, more than 40 correspondents who gather and send district news to its central news room on Water Street from a radius of 50 miles of Peterborough.

While I'm about it, I may as well explain, as you probably know already, that CP means Canadian Press, a news-gathering and distributing organization made up of some 90 Canadian newspapers which maintain teletypes, large central news-rooms and specially trained staffs. AP means Associated Press, the chief U.S.A. news service; Reuters is an Anglo-European agency and BUP (British United Press) is a British organization.

ALPHA: What do you think of the prices of meat these days? I'd be pleased to have your pithy comments.

ANSWER: One does not think about the price of meat, one feels about it, and very strongly. Imagine! (Figurez-vous)—cooked ham at $1.00 and $1.10 a pound. As a matter of fact, I think Canadian food prices are out of line now, and will shortly fall, as they have in the U.S.A. In anticipation of this happy occurrence, I am eating dehydrated mutton, except when dining with friends.

SIR: What is the differnce between a battalion and a regiment?

ANSWER: Regiment is a more general word than battalion. Battalion applies only to infantry, and is a unit of an infantry regiment. In the last war a battalion consisted of from 850 to 1,000 men grouped in four infantry companies, together with their own supporting arms (3-inch mortar, etc.) Some regiments, like the Black Watch, had several battalions; others like the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, (a very famous regiment, of course, and to my mind, of course, the finest regiment in the Canadian Army!) had only one. Tank people and artillery are never called battalions. Usage of the two words varies, but that is the Anglo-Canadian military usage.

WHAT'S STARTING TIME?

Australian Artificial Moonlight

(LONDON TIMES)

WE have grown more or less accustomed to living in a world of substitutes. Most of us, after all, are slightly bogus ourselves, and perhaps we derive an obscure, subconscious comfort from having so much truck with things which are not the real thing.

The Australian experiments which, their promoters hope, will lead to the production of artificial moonlight are thus unlikely to be taken amiss. Outeries against vandalism, dark warnings about upsetting the balance of nature will not be heard. "Disgusted" and "Pro Bono Publico" can hold their fire.

There is, all the same, something faintly disturbing about the idea. Nobody much minds scientists shooting beams of radio waves into the ionosphere, especially if they do it in Australia.

Little though we ourselves know about the ionosphere, there seems—as in the case of a tennis court—no point in having one unless some use is made of it, and if at the cost of £50,000 it can be induced to produce a faint glow so much the better.

A rather large expenditure, it is claimed, should suffice to suffuse 5,000 square miles with the equivalent of full moonlight.

Will it be the equivalent? The strongest kind of moonlight is often measured in terms of one's ability to read a newspaper by it, but, although the reading of newspapers is at all times an exercise no less beneficial than uplifting, it is the sort of thing that comparatively few men, and even fewer women, particularly want to do after the moon has risen.

There are better things to do by moonlight even than crossword puzzles, and the question arises whether artificial moonlight will be as powerful an agent of romance as the real stuff is.

Will the ardent swain, gazing up at the ample municipal refulgence which the ionosphere has, with the help of science and a shilling on the rates, been persuaded to diffuse upon his loved one, feel all those mixed but powerful emotions which the moon used to generate free of charge? No one as yet can say.

And what about the effect of these new lighting arrangements on our sanity? If real moonlight is capable of driving men mad, will artificial moonlight cause the more susceptible to go round feigning madness?

There is really no end to the problems (which include the selection of some revolting name such a lunare or nitelite) to which this new invention will give rise; and it is probable that a "Hands Off the Ionosphere!" movement would find numerous adherents, once it had been established, in general terms, roughly what and where the ionosphere is.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God; he riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disicples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded . . .

So after he had washed their feet, and had taken his garmetns, and was set down again, he said unto them, Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me Master and Lord; and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet; ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

For I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. (John 13: 3-5,12-15).

✧ ✧ ✧

For whether is greater, he that sitteth at meat, or he that serveth? is not he that sitteth at meat? but I am among you as he that serveth. (Luke 22:27.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And Gid is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work . . . Being enriched in every thing to all bountifulness, which causeth through us thanksgiving to God. (II Cor. 9: 8,11.)

For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich. (II Cor. 8:9.)

Synthetic Sue

She was inevitable—chemically, synthetically, fashionably, and mayhap beautifully inevitable. Let some new Debussy sing her dulcet praises, score them for plastic horns and cymbals, and dedicate them to Woody Herman or even Spike Jones. She is the granddaughter of the "Girl With the Flaxen Hair," and farther from the gentle impressionism of the Debussys and the Renoirs than Seaford, N.J., is from the still verdant and ninetyish Bois de Boulogne.

She is the doll with the tresses of "proteinlike structure consisting of polymeric amides, derivable from coal, air, and water (this is Webster unabridged and unfathomable), which is adapted for fashioning into filaments of extreme toughness and elasticity . . . ." She is the girl with the nylon hair—for whom no symphonic strings need be muted or piano soft pedal applied.

Give her a permanent instead of braids, and a nickel for the juke box. She belongs to 1949, and an industry which was born in New Jersey. Every female six-year-old is presumed—by the toymakers—to want one. She got top billing at the New York Toy Guidance Exhibit. And doubtless she will be admired. But in a perversely old-fashioned way we find ourselves wondering, Will she be loved like plain, old calico Raggedy Ann?—Christian Science Monitor.

Suggest Council To Supervise Fourth Estate

LONDON, July 29 (AP)—The House of Commons, in an unrecorded vote Thursday night, approved the report of a Royal Commission on the press, including a suggestion for a voluntarily-established council to supervise the fourth estate.

Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, hinted that the government might take some action if the press failed to set up such a council.

"If it should turn out that the press is not willing to take steps for the appointment of such a general council," Morrison said, "then the government and parliament would have to consider the situation which would then be created."

Sir Oliver Stanley, speaking for the Conservative opposition, said unless the press went into the council "meaning to play a part and believing that some use can be made of it, it will only be a facade."

For that reason, he said, he could not "take seriously" Morrison's hint of the need of setting up a press council by law, if the press did not take voluntary action.

Political Move

Beverley Baxter, Canadian-born Conservative member and a journalist himself, charged that the commission's investigation was "a political move to disparage and muzzle the press."

Morrison denied the charge, saying that the Labor government had not "sugested state interference or state ownership" of the press.

The Royal Commission, appointed by he government, studied the British press for two years. Its report, published June 29 and now being studied by the press, said the British press "is inferior to none in the world."

The report, however, accused some sections of the press of partisanship, sensationalism, distortion of news and failure to give a clear picture of world affairs.

Discuss Canada's Role In Arms Program

WASHINGTON, July 29 (CP)—Canadian and United States military officials conferred a week ago on the role Canada will play in the proposed arms-for-Europe program, an authoritative source said Thursday night.

This informant described the meeting as one of a series of "routine" talks on mutual defence problems. But he indicated this particular discussion had special reference to the military-aid scheme introduced here last Monday.

Locale of the meeting could not be learned. One source said it was "somewhere in Canada."

Earlier, it had reached 95.2, just short of the all-time 95.5 record for the date, set in 1894.

Spend Money Carefully

REGINA, July 29—(CP)—People are spending their money a little more carefully this year if a slight decline in 1949 hotel business is an indication, R. A. Mackie of Montreal, general manager of the Canadian Pacific hotels, said Thursday. Mr. Mackie, here on an inspection tour, said there had been a marked rise in the numbers of persons served by hotels during the immediate post-war years and the present drop may indicate a slackening-off from that peak period.

Manslaughter Charge

NEWMARKET, July 29—(CP)—Adam Blandy, 37, driver of a truck which crashed into a car and killed five persons July 9 on Cemetery Hill, 28 miles northwest of Toronto, appeared Thursday before Magistrate O. S. Hollinrake for preliminary hearings of a motor manslaughter charge. The case was adjourned to Sept. 15. Charges were laid by provincial police three days after the accident, following preliminary investigation.

3 Die In Heat Wave

TORONTO, July 29—(CP)—Three elderly women collapsed and died in Toronto area Thursday. Investgating coroners said the current heat wave was at least partly responsible. Mrs. Eva Frances Fletcher, 72, died in the waiting room of a downtown dentist's office from what doctors said was coronary thrombosis caused by heat and humidity. Also a coronary thrombosis victim, Mrs. Maude Whale, 74, died in her home. Third victim was Mrs. J. Finlay, 70, of Toronto's Centre Island.

Find Population Up 23 Million Within One Year

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

There are some 23,000,000 more people in the world today, Friday, July 29, than there were on this same date last year.

This yearly increase of people has been going on since before the war, and is one ofthe most vital factors in considering just how busy the world should be in the next few years.

We either have to produce more, and distribute better, or accept a lower standard of living for people at large. Pre-war production won't maintain even pre-war standards of living, let alone the improved standards which people everywhere consider necessary.

The currently monthly letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce supplies the figures on world population and comments:

For the world's resources now are called upon to provide about 2,375,000,000 people as well as for the aditional strain imposed by the reconstruction and rehabilitation of a large part of Europe and Asia.

Supplies Available

The letter deals with the supplies of various raw materials, and says in part:

Food—"Total supplies in 1948 were gaining slowly, but were slightly below the pre-war levels."

Fuel and power—"Recovery set in late in 1946, continued in 1947 and by 1948 was about four per cent above the pre-war level... The period of critical shortage in Europe appears to be over."

Base Metals—"The post-war backlog of demand for copper and zinc was higher than had been anticipated, largely because of unfilled requirements of the electrical and allied industries.

Rubber—"Of all the raw materials which were scarce during the war years, rubber has made the most remarkable headway, largely because of the unexpectedly heavy supplies forthcoming from the far east after 1945."

Textile—"Production of textile fibres has, on the whole, been slow to regain its pre-war position. In 1948 all natural fibres, cotton, wool, flax, hemp, jute, hard fibres and real silk, were still seven per cent short of the pre-war level."

HAMILTON, NY, July 29 (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey called Thursday for immediate American aid to Nationalist China and said the United States should not recognize a Communist regime there. Dewey denied that China was "a gone goose" and that Asia was lost to the Reds.

Shot By Masked Mob

COLUMBIA, S.C., July 29 (AP)—A young negro, father of six children, claimed Thursday a masked mob shot and beat him and his brother last Monday night. His family, he said, was terrorized. The half-dozen night riders told him, he added, that they came to his house to give him and his brother their "civil rights".

Makes Poor Landing

TURNING THE PAGES OF "CANADA UNLIMITED"

Mud! Ox-carts and carriages had a rough time on Canada's first highway from Quebec to Montreal in 1735. In the best dry weather it took four and a half days to complete the trip by carriage!

Road-building was slow until Asa Danforth completed a roadway from Kingston to Ancaster, Ontario, in 1800. Yonge Street in York (Toronto) was commenced about the same time, financed by the Northwest Company. By 1868, after Confederation, most settlements were connected by roads. But they were bumpy and full of holes and impassable in spring. Journeys by stage-coach were hazardous.

Then came the automobile—and the need for better surfaces. One of the first improved highways stretched from Toronto to Hamilton. It opened in 1917.

The Trans-Canada Highway and the Alaska Highway are today's developments that point to great super-highways of Tomorrow. With these highways will come increased industrial development that means great opportunity. Yes—there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited.

Just how much room is told in "Canada Unlimited", a 144-page book published by the O'Keefe Foundation. You may obtain your copy by sending 25c (no stamps or cheques, please) to "Canada Unlimited", Dept. N3-13, O'Keefe House, Toronto, Ontario. Please print your name and address. All monies received will be donated to the Canadian Citizenship Council."

Vancouver Youth Makes Golfers Sit Up, Notice

RIVERSIDE GOLF AND COUNTRY CLUB, Saint John, N.B., July 29 (CP)—A 16-year-old Vancouver boy took on a man's size job today in the semi-finals of the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship.

It was the golfing thrill of a lifetime for Laurie Roland, who wasn't at all over-awed at the prospect of meeting Dick Chapman, of Osterville, Mass., a former United States amateur champion.

In the other half of the draw a couple of old buddies got together for an argument that has gone on for many a tournament but never reached the semi-final stage of the Canadian Amateur.

Phil Farley, of Toronto, losing finalist 12 years ago, met Tommy Riddell, of Montreal, whose furthest progress in the amateur has been the quarter-final.

Riddell has been the giant-killer of this tournament, whose five rounds have produced a lot of remarkable goins-on.

Tommy blasted defending champion Frank Stranahan, of Toledo, on Wednesday, and Thursday eliminated Bill Mawhinney, of Vancouver, considered by the golf-wise Canada's outstanding bid for the 1949 title.

Squeezes Through

Farley, favored over Allan Boes, of Winnipeg, in Thursday's quarter - final, just squeezed through to a one-up victory.

Then came young Roland, a high school student at the Lord Byng School in Vancouver, with a two-up win over Eddie Crowell of Halifax. That was the same margin by which Riddell got by Mawhinney.

Mawhinney was unfortunate in spotting Riddell to two holes at the start, and that was enough for the chubby Montreal Beaconsfield player and Quebec amateur champion. He kept Mawhinney fighting from behind, never able to get in front.

Farley could never get in front of Boes until the 17th. He laid the Manitoba champion four stymies two on each nine, and then once in the lead put on a grand stand finish with a sensational pitch shot.

From the edge of a trap Farley pitched to within two inches of the cup.

Chapman, beset with a cold putter and fighting stymies laid by Mike Pidlaski of Winnipeg, struggled through to a 2 and 1 victory.

Eddie Crowell and Young Roland each won two holes on the first nine. From there on the Vancouver boy took charge of the match. He won the 10th and 12th, lost the 17th when he overshot the green with his approach but won the 18th when Crowell's tee shot caught a sand trap.

Professionals Play

The Peterborough Golf and Country Club's new professional is holding his own in the Miller Cup play in Toronto. Gord Harrison has defeated Archie Bloor, Orillia, at the 21st hole and Paul Penna, unattached, Toronto, 5 and 4. Clair Chinery, Cedar Brae, turned back Lionel Ross, Cobourg, 6 and 5. Golfers are from Ontario and Quebec.

Hastings Beats Campbellford In Hectic Match

HASTINGS, July 29—(ENS)—In a hectic game that had even the fans in a fighting mood, and saw the plate umpire give up in disgust after a heated dispute in 9th inning, Hastings beat Campbellford 8-7 at Hastings to keep in the fight for second place.

Campbellford took the lead in the first inning 1-0, on three hits, but Hastings combined six hits and a walk in the second for five runs and were never headed after that. After giving up three more hits in the third J. Robinson settled down and held Hastings scoreless till the ninth, when he gave up a lone run.

Good Pitching

Don West pitched fine ball, and although in trouble several times, bore down in the pinches and was given fine support. Fraelick was a standout behind the plate, and hit a long homer in the sixth with no mates aboard.

Pete Salmon Sets Record

VANCOUVER, July 29 (CP)—Pete Salmon, of Victoria, B.C., and Irene Strong, of Vancouver, practically assured themselves berths on Canada's team to the Empire Games with dazzling performances in the games swim trials which ended here Thursday night.

Only the tower diving remains, to be run off today.

The 20-year-old Victoria boy, a student at the University of Washington, swept all before him Thursday. Salmon set a Canadian record in his first heat of the 100 yards back-stroke event, clocking 1:02.3.

The young Olympic star went on to win the final with a time of 1:03.

Second record of the day fell to Irene, who clipped three-tenths of a second off the old mark in the 200 yards breast-stroke event. Her time was 2:48.1.

The 100 yards freestyle event went to slender Cay Kerr, of Winnipeg, who registered a mark of 1:04.1.

Nineteen-year-old Vivian King, of Winnipeg, was second, and Kay Miles, of London, Ont., placed third, with Glenna Mills, of Fergus, Ont., fourth.

Toronto's 15-year-old Fred Smith capped his unbeaten performances in the junior bracket with a finals victory in the 100 yards back-stroke. The slim eastern swimmer left his opposition far behind in winning with a time of 1:08.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Rugby Football Union Thursday announced at Hamilton that Tommy Waldon has been signed to the quarterback duties for the coming season.

Waldon, speedy, first-string pivot player with the inter-collegiate champion University of Toronto Blues, will arrive here on Tuesday and is expected to start practices immediately.

The first attempt to crown a northern professional golf champion will be made at the Northern Ontario Golf Association's tournament starting at Noranda, Que. Monday.

The week of golf will begin with senior championships followed by a 36-hole medal play event, open to professionals from the various clubs in the NOGA. The 23rd annual championships will be held Aug. 4, 5, and 6.

Included in the tournament will be R. Barringer of North Bay, Ben Norris of Timmins, Norm Aldridge of Noranda and Bob Tomlinson of Sudbury.

At Winnipeg, Maurice Smith, Free Press Sports Editor, said on Thursday that Dave (Sweeney) Schriner has the inside track on the Brandon Wheat Kings' coaching job.

The statement was contained in his sports column, with Schriner described as not only a good man to look after the junior coaching chores, but the minor setup as well.

Bill MacKenzie handled Wheat Kings last winter, the club reaching the Memorial Cup final before being upset by Montreal Royals. Although no announcement has been made, it is reported that MacKenzie will not be back with the Brandon club this winter.

At Goodwood, Sussex, England, a racing judge admitted Thursday he had picked the wrong winner in a photo finish Wednesday, but jockey club stewards said they are powerless to change the decision.

The judge studied the picture of the Bentinck Stakes and ruled that Lord Astor's High Stakes was the winner by inches. Thursday the judge said he discovered that the nose he thought belonged to High Stakes actually was that of Hornett III, owned by C. Nicot of Paris.

Europe's largest grouse will be introduced into Wisconsin next month in an effort to provide American hunters with a better game bird.

An initial shipment to six capercaillie, 12-pound giants whose natural range is from the Pyhenees to Siberia is due to arrive by air Aug. 5 at Minneapolis.

Ernest Swift, director of the Wisconsin Conservation Department, said at Madison, Wis., on Thursday the stocking will be the first fully-controlled experiment of exotic birds ever held in the United States.

Some 4,000 fans Thursday at Gravenhurst watched under sunny skies competition in the third annual speedboat meet, under the American Power Boat Association. Rough waters caused boats to jump and four were overturned during the event.

Frank Sedgman Placed To Play Brothers

WILMINGTON, Del., July 29 (AP)—A highly-favored Australian tennis team today pits a veteran internationalist and the country's champion against the Vega brothers, of Mexico, in the opening matches of the North American zone final of the Davis Cup competition.

Frank Sedgman, Australian titleholder, will oppose Armando Vega, Mexico's No. 1 ranking player, in the first singles match at the Wilmington Country Club.

The second will bring together John Bromwich, who helped win the cup for his country in 1939, and Rolando Vega, Mexican captain.

The doubles will be played Saturday with Sedgman and Bromwich opposing the Vega brothers. The final two singles will be played Sunday with Bromwich meeting Armando Vega and Sedgman opposing Rolando.

Card Smother Phillies 10-3 For Series' Sweep

By JACK HAND,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Bring on the Dodgers. That's the cry in St. Louis today where the sizzling Cards, on an eight-game winning streak, welcome another showdown wrestle with Brooklyn for the National League lead.

The Cards nudged the Brooks out of first place at Ebbets Field last week-end. They open a three game series at Sportsman's Park tonight with a 1½ game lead.

The Cards warmed up for the Dodgers by smothering the Phillies Thursday, 10-3, for a sweep of the series. They toughed up Kenny Heintzelman who had won nine in a row, and forced him to retire after a five-run second inning.

Al Brazle, who might face the Dodgers Sunday, wrapped up his 10th win with a seven-hitter.

Brooklyn drew hope from Ralph Branca's route-going job against Chicago Cubs 7-1, his first complete game and first victory since June 29. Despite his 11th triumph, Branca will probably miss the Card series in which Roe, Joe Hatten and Don Newcombe are slated to work.

Edge Pittsburgh

New York Giants again poked their heads into the first division, displacing the Phils, with an 8-6 edge over Pittsburgh. They blew an early five-run lead but fought back to win on Sid Gordon's 20th homer with a man on in the sixth.

Warren Spahn coasted to his 12th victory, 11-2, while his Boston mates put the plug on Ken Raffensberger and two successors for 16 hits, five by Ed Sauer.

The dependable Allie Reynolds-Joe Page combination pitched New York Yankees to a 3-2 decision over Cleveland, splitting the vital series and restoring the Yanks' four-game lead. Page put down a triple uprising in the ninth with the help of a sensational throw by Cliff Mapes who caught Roberto Avila erying to advance from second to third on an outfield fly.

Cleveland left for a five-day series at Boston opening with a day-night doubleheader today.

Lose Victory

Joe McCarthy's team lost a victory Thursday when American League president Will Harridge ordered the Sox and Washington to complete a six-inning game of July 7 when they meet again. Boston led 8-3 when the game was called to permit the Sox to catch a train. They'll play the final three innings before their Aug. 20 game.

McCarthy got another well-pitched game Thursday from Ellis Kinder who scattered seven Chicago hits for his 11th victory 6-1. Ted Williams hit his 26th homer.

Dizzy Trout's homer with the bases full featured a seven-run ninth-inning Detroit rally for a 13-7 triumph over Washington. Trout picked up the victory on relief when Hal Newhouser faltered.

A scheduled St. Louis-Philadelphia night game was rained out.

Alberta Puts Manitoba Out Of Running

CALGARY, July 29 (CP)—Alberta and Ontario meet today in a cricket match which could decide the Dominion championship for 1949.

Play in the series of one-day, one-inning games for the title here and at Edmonton so far this week has put Alberta on top with 17 points. Ontario has 12, British Columbia 10 and Manitoba none.

A win is worth 5 points, a tie 2½ and a draw 2. A draw is declared when time expires before one side is all out.

A win for Alberta today against the Dominion champions from Ontario would give Alberta 22 points, and make it impossible for Ontario to pass them by winning the one remaining game Saturday. A victory by British Columbia over Manitoba and Alberta Saturday would give B. C. only 20 points, two short of Alberta.

A Different Picture

But if Ontario wins today along with B. C. the picture will be entirely different. The three leading contestants would go into the final day in a close huddle—17-17-15.

Manitoba all-stars are out of the running following their fourth straight defeat yesterday. The heavy-hitting Albertans racked up 253 for eight wickets declared. Manitoba got 66 all out. Alberta won by two wickets.

Meanwhile, British Columbia was blasted by the Ontario team. B. C. got 91, all out, and Ontario came back with 96 for only two wickets, to win by eight wickets.

Batting of two men featured the matches. Jim Smart of Calgary came within striking distance of a century with 96 runs and Allan Gerrard of Toronto hit six boundaries in a single "over" to score 32 runs.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

When all the scores were handed in last night, after playing 2-10 end games, G. Coleman Sr., J. D. Fitzpatrick, G. Coleman Jr., and H. Frise were the only four skips to win their two games.

The final games will be played this evening at 7:30 o'clock. It will be an 18 end game.

It was the annual competition for the "Selkirk" Trophy and while the attendance was not as large as it might have been, the competition, nevertheless, was keen. It was a great night for bowling, and the boys sure did enjoy it. The competition continues this evening.

Over in Lindsay on Wednesday G. Coleman Sr. and G. Coleman Jr. won fifth prize for three wins and R. Burns and R. Payne took the prize for high two wins. There were 36 pairs entered, 17 from Peterborough.

Honors for Group No. 1 was won by R. Hopkins' rink, on Tuesday night, when they defeated G Coleman Jr. by 22-9. It was a game to break the tie. The game started off good and for the first quarter it was close, and then Hopkins drew away and won handily.

Down at Port Hope on Wednesday Mrs. H. Wilson's rink won the prize for high single game. They said it was hot, and the entry only fair.

Today's thought: Take a chance sometimes. Even the turtle gets nowhere until he sticks his neck out.

Softball

Westclox lassies play the Ashby team in a Girls' Softball League fixture tonight at Riverside. This will be the second time these teams have met this week, the Westclox team taking the first 4-3 Wednesday night in a 10-inning affair.

In the Civic League, the Bankers who have only three wins this year will be out with vengeance on their lowly mates, the Duffus team, at the Ashburnham Park. In the other Civic League tilt the Policemen will try to arrest the Grant & Loucks' squad at the King Edward Parw diamond.

Lacrosse

Peterborough Lumberjacks, who are at present in the cellar one point below the Weston Lions in the Senior A League, will be trying to place both feet on the ladder to the Senior A playoffs tonight when they do battle with the Hamilton Tigers. The Tigers have been having poor luck of late, losing nearly every game since they were subdued here last by the Petes, 24-12. Game time is at 8:45 p.m.

Between the periods of the game the peewee Petes and the Tigers will play an exhibition game. These lads between 10 and 12 years add to the night's entertainment with their brand of lacrosse.

Golf

Cries of "Fore" will cut through the early morning air on the Kawartha Golf and Country Club Golf course at 8:03 a.m. Saturday as the first of the tournament golfers tee-off from No. 1. For the next seven hours 187 golf amateurs will drive the ball from the first tee.

Bill Kerr Leads Millar Cup Race

TORONTO, July 29 (CP)—Stocky, dark-haired Bill Kerr of Montreal today headed a field of 16 Ontario and Quebec golfers into the third round in the hunt for the Millar Cup and its first-prize pot of some $700.

The highly-rated Montreal Beaconsfield shotsmith today was scheduled to meet Gord Brydson of Mississauga in the match-play round.

Defending champion Stan Horne of Montreal moved off against Hugh Borthwick of Toronto. A potent Ontario golfer, Bobby Gray of Scarboro, teed off with Dick Borthwick of Toronto in the first flight today.

Other survivors of Thursday's second-round match included five from Toronto, two from Hamilton and one each from London, Peterborough and Niagara Falls.

Kerr moved into the third round by virtue of a 2 and 1 victory over Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener Rockaway Thursday while Horne disposed of Joe Noble of Thornhill two up in the close second-round battle.

The lanky easy-going Gray had little trouble as he registered a 4 and 3 against Bob Cunningham of Toronto St. Andrews while Dick Borthwick defeated Les Franks of Islington 2 and 1.

Jules Huot, of Quebec a pre-match favorite, was ousted in the first round Thursday by Hal Butler of Thornhill, 3 and 1.

Marines To Play Oshawa, Buffalo In Weekend Tilts

Peterborough Marines play two games over the holiday week-end, Saturday night the Men o'Murphy will try to even the wins and losses in the exhibition games with Canisius College of Buffalo. The College boys have made their appearance three times in Peterborough this year and have left town with two wins out of the three games.

Over the Dominion Day week-end the Marines played the College team in a doubleheader which resulted in a win for each. Canisius edged the Petes 4-3 and the Petes took the other 7-4. Earlier in the season the College team took the Marines.

Pilot Eddie Murphy said Thursday that he expects to throw Bill Badson against the College boys, adding that perhaps other pitchers will be used as it is only an exhibition game.

In a morning game at Riverside Park Monday, the Civic Holiday, the Murphyites will play the league-leading Oshawa Merchants in a Central Ontario Baseball League fixture. With playoffs just around the corner, the Marines will be all out trying to chase the jinx which the Oshawa team seems to have over the local club.

Ed "Gunner" Whitehill will be in there pitching, Eddie Murphy said.

Wilson Boat Reported To Go 150 MPH

DETROIT, July 29 (AP) — Canada makes a lone bid today to take the historic Harmsworth Speedboat Trophy away from the United States.

With a single craft—Miss Canada IV—E. A. Wilson and his son, Harold, of Ingersoll, will try to beat the best efforts of a three-boat American team.

To lift the trophy the Canadian speedboat will have to beat the three defending craft in two 42 nautical mile races. The first two races are scheduled to start at 6.05 p.m. EDT today and Saturday. If a third race is necessary it will be run at the same time on Monday.

It is no secret that for the first time since Gar Wood brought the famed trophy to the United States in 1920, the challenging craft has an excellent chance to win. This view is based on unconfirmed reports that in trials on Muskoka Lake, the challenger was clocked at speeds ranging from 130 to 150 miles an hour.

Not Talking

The Wilsons wouldn't confirm these reports. They said merely that their craft had performed satisfactorily and that "we hope to make a race of it."

The defending team consists of R. Stanley Dollar's Skip-a-long, of Lake Tahoe Yacht Club, Calif., and Jack Schafer's Such Crust I., and Horace Dodge's recently acquired My Sweetie, the latter two representing the Detroit Yacht Club.

Skip-a-long has been clocked at 115 miles on hour; Such Crust at better than 97 and My Sweetie has done 109.

Under the Harmsworth deed of gift Canada could have had two more boats on its challenging team had they been available.

Rochester Takes Twin Bill From Syracuse

By the Associated Press.

George Copeland is one of the toughest pitchers to hit in the International League and the Rochester Red Wing righthander woud be one of the loop's headliners if his control was sharper.

Copeland, a curve-balling cutie, has won nine games for the red-hot Red Wings. Two of his triumphs were two-hit shutouts and one was a threehit whitewash.

The 26-year-old Red Wing pitcher turned in his third two-hitter of the season Thursday night, turning back the Syracuse Chiefs 6-3 in the first game of a double-header.

Copeland lost his shutout in the sixth inning when Dutch Mele followed two walks with a home run. Copeland walked six Chiefs during the game to boost his free-ticket total to 107 in 102 innings.

The Red Wings solved Jim Prendergast for 11 hits with catcher Jim Bucha pacing the attack, driving in four runs on a pair of singles and a triple.

Take Nightcap

Rochester also won the nightcap 8-6. The double triumphs boosted the Wings to within two games of the league-leading Buffalo Bisons, who were humbled 10-0 by Jersey City Giants.

Erv Dusak held the Chiefs hitless and runless going into the sixth inning when he gave up six runs on three hits and four walks. Ed Blake relieved and blanked the Chiefs on one hit the rest of the way to save Dusak's ninth victory.

Red Hardy blanked the Bisons on three singles as the Giants slammed Clem Hausmann and Jake Wade for 16 hits including a home run by Jack Lohrke.

Montreal Royals outlasted the Newark Bears 8-6 in 11 innings. A walk, triple by Chuck Connors and double by Kermit Wahl turned the tide in favor of the Royals.

Dan Bankhead went the distance for the Royals, granting 13 hits and fanning 13 for his 11th victory.

Toronto and Baltimore were idle.

Brampton Thumps Mountaineers 18-14

BRAMPTON, July 29 (CP)—Brampton Excelsiors last night registered their 19th straight victory in the Ontario Lacross Association senior race by defeating Mimico Mountaineers 18-14 here.

Harry Graham paced the Excelsiors with five goals while Archie Browning tallied four goals. Johnny Hewitt was the big gun for the losers, firing in three goals.

The advent of pari-mutuel betting at Saratoga race track at Saratoga Springs N. Y., eight years ago today proved unpopular at the opening day of the track's season. The total day's wicket handle was $262,526 and set a new low for New York tracks that season.

Tobin Has Successful Year As U.S. Secretary of Labor

By GEORGE RONALD.

WASHINGTON, July 29 (CP). —Maurice J. Tobin's first year as Secretary of Labor has produced many a sensational labor headline. Tobin himself has avoided the limelight.

Despite the defeat suffered by the Truman administration in its attempt to repeal the Taft-Harley Labor Law, it has been a successful year for the 47-year-old former Governor of Massachusetts.

Tobin was opposed to the Taft-Hartley Law from the start. He said once that it "failed to recognize the spiritual qualities of the average human being and wage-earner in our country." He is likewise opposed to the substitute passed by Congress, a far cry from the repeal measure Truman advocated.

But he says this of the Labor Department's job:

"We are here to carry out laws written by Congress. In the final analysis, labor law will be made by Congress."

Can't Keep Pledge

This truism points up a peculiar side of Tobin's job. The rank and file of labor claim a big part of the credit for returning the Democratic administration to office last fall. But the administration, as far as labor matters are concerned, does not have the backing of Congress.

Tobin to some extent is in the same boat as Truman: He is unable to come through on the election campaign pledge to give labor the kind of labor law it wants.

Nevertheless, Tobin is well liked by the powerful leaders of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the American Federation of Labor. They like him not only for the job he's doing—and trying to do—but also for his background.

Distinguished Record

He had a distinguished labor record as wartime governor of Massachusetts. As a boy he had a 500-a-day newspaper route. He lost his first full-time job during the post-war recession of 1921-22, later went to work for a telephone company, joined a union, continued his studies at night and wound up with a law degree.

At 25 he was elected to the Massachusetts State Legislature. In 1937 he started the first of two terms as mayor of Boston, became governor in 1944. He lost his bid for re-election in 1946 and was about to try a third time when Truman summoned him to Washington last August.

He was sworn in as secretary on Friday the 13th. Unlucky, said the cynics. Tobin has proven otherwise.

King Paving $18,443 Armour Road $13,675

Paving of Armour Road a distance of 531 feet south of Hunter St. is estimated by City Engineer Chalmers to cost $13,675, as reported to the board of works.

Fronting property is owned by Western Clock Co. and St. Joseph's Hospital, both of whom are in favor of the proposed improvement. Mr. Chalmers recommended a 32-foot wide strip of asphalt 100 feet south of Hunter St., and a 36-foot strip from that point 431 feet southerly.

As a local improvement the city's part of the cost would be 55 per cent, plus flankage, intersections and drainage.

Cost of the pavement to the city would be $7,301.25 plus $1,139.24 for drainage and flankage, amounting to $8,440.49. Annual cost for ten years would be $1,002.15.

The paving of King St. between George and Aylmer Streets is $18,443.07. Mr. Chalmers proposed a 44-foot pavement east of the creek and 38-foot west. The city's part of the cost on a 55 per cent basis is $11,758.74. The annual charge to the city for ten years was estimated at $1,396.13.

Say Coal Freighter Will Not Capsize

MUSKEGON, Mich., July 29 (AP) — The Great Lakes coal freighter, Norman J. Kopmeier, grounded in Lake Muskegon here, no longer is in danger of capsizing.

The United States coast guard said late Thursday that pump crews had saved the 510-foot ship, loaded with 8,400 tons of coal, from rolling over.

Lighter crews have begun taking the coal off and unloading it.

The ship was en route to Muskegon from South Chicago when it struck an under-water obstruction and was damaged. It managed to proceed five miles through Muskegon Lake before being beached.

Curb Forest Fire In Timber Limits

MANIWAKI, Que., July 29 (CP)—A forest fire, burning within the Canadian International Paper Company's timber limits between here and Ottawa, 75 miles to the south, has been brought under control.

A heavy downpour of rain Wednesday night aided the 155 firefighters battling the blaze. It broke out Wednesday in a square-mile of bush along the Holbelty River, 35 miles south of here. Most of the area was ravaged, but there was no estimate of damage.

Forrestry officials said the fire had definitely been checked and no danger exists to neighbouring bushlands.

Both girls were taken to hospital July 10 following the attack, the older girl requiring several weeks attention. The girls were severely beaten within three hours hours of each other.

Pleads Guilty To Jail Escape

PORT ARTHUR, July 29 — (CP)— Pleading guilty to a charge of escaping lawful custody and a further charge of theft, James McGrath, 25, of Ansonville, Thursday, was remanded in custody for sentence August 4.

Held in the provincial lockup at Geraldton on a charge of armed robbery and theft on an automobile from a farm house at Matheson, McGrath escaped Saturday night by widening a hole in a cell wall under repair by plumbers.

Before leaving the building, he stole a suit of clothes, a shirt, a pair of shoes and a diamond stickpin from the living quarters of Cpl. Les Heaney.

Following an extensive search by provincial police in the Geraldton-Beardmore district and the blocking of roads within a 30-mile radius of Geraldton, McGrath was apprehended Tuesday.

Collegiate Tests "FAIR"

GRADE XI STUDENTS PASS 86% OF PAPERS

Once more the Board of Education has brought undesirable publicity to the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School. The report of Dr. H. G. Carleton, Chairman of the Supervisory Committee, about examination results was sufficiently sensational to be carried by the press and radio, but it should have been given more mature consideration by the Board before being made public. The press report of the meeting states that a resolution to investigate examination results was passed by the Board unanimously. How many Board members were present? Were members informed ahead of time that a "witch-hunt" was about to be started? No fault can be found with the resolution to have the examination results investigated (in fact, the sooner the investigation is held now, the better), but the ill-conceived remarks by certain members of the Board are open to question.

Dr. Carleton's description of the examination results as "the worst I have ever seen in a collegiate" is emphatic to say the least. Is this a statement of fact based on the study of examination results at P.C.V.S. in comparison with the results of other schools over a period of years, or a personal, and perhaps biased opinion arising from the results of this year? If this denunciation is based on an honest study, then the facts should be made public; if it is the result of personal bias, then a public apology should be tendered to the teachers.

The only basis for comparison where "dishonesty and unfairness to students" (to quote Dr. Carleton) is not being encouraged, is the Upper School examinations, set and marked under the supervision of the Department of Education of Ontario. A summary of all papers written by provincial students of Grade 13 in 1948 states that 79.79% of these papers were passed that year; in 1947, 78.64% of papers were passed; in 1946, 77.21% of papers written were passed. That is, the failure rate was higher than 20%. When a similar procedure was applied to the GRADE 11 EXAMINATIONS at P.C.V.S. in June, 1949, it was found that 86.5% OF ALL PAPERS for that grade were passed; 89.9% of all papers in June, 1948; 90.2% of all papers were passed in June, 1947. That is, the failure rate in Grade 11 academic examination papers did not exceed 14%.

For a person with 20 years of service on school boards, Dr. Carleton has disregarded a factor known to all teachers, that students vary in interests and application, and that "good" and "poor" classes in schools tend to be cyclical. I have taught most of the students who are in Grade 11, and am of the opinion that many of the failures were due to lack of effort—in other words, some of the classes were "poor" classes. Moreover, experience in academic schools has shown that Grade 11 is the crucial year when the relative failure rate is usually highest, and the relative student drop-out rate is generally greatest. In 1948-1949, the student drop-out in Grade 11 was lower than in the previous year, and this could affect examination results. A more thoughtful study would have revealed these facts.

Apparently members of the Board were satisfied to attribute the poor results to the teaching, the examinations, and the marking without considering another force in the school, namely, the students. A fair report on the examination results would have given some consideration to the student desire to learn, student participation in school activities, and demands on student time ouside of the school. Placing the blame for the failures of the year on the staff simply provides a scapegoat for parents and students who have shirked their responsibilities, and unfortunately it has been given official blessing by Board members.

Dr. Carleton's comments on academic standards are somewhat confused: in one statement he implies that the examinations are too difficult for the students; in another statement he alleges that the standards are too low "making it difficult for pupils transferring out of the city." As a teacher, I believe that P.C.V.S. has a fine academic record, and as a teacher I know that students coming to this school from surrounding districts find it difficult to meet the standards set by P.C.V.S.

The Chairman of the Supervisory Committee evidently has a very unfavourable opinion about the integrity and ability of the teachers of P.C.V.S. when he charges them with "dishonesty" and "being absolutely unfair" in the conduct of examinations. Such statements are "absolutely unfair" because the person who makes them can do so under cover of the Board, without fear of consequences, knowing that he cannot be compelled either to prove his allegations or to retract them. Moreover, Dr. Carleton has some views about the poor mental health of teachers, and apparently is in favour of a sabbatical year's leave of absence as recently quoted in the press. But did the good doctor not get the prescriptions for beast and man confused when he suggested that teachers "go to pasture for a year and maybe they would come back"?

The widespread unfavourable publicity resulting from Dr. Carleton's charges has already done an irreparable damage to the reputation of the school, the students, and the staff. If there were reasons for the Board of Education being "greatly disturbed" about the examination results, Board-teacher discussions would be more advantageous to all concerned than such outbursts in the press.

City Contractor To Build Loblaw Store

Mr. K. W. Bash, Toronto, chief engineer with Loblaw Groceterias Company, informed the Examiner today that the contract for the building of a new Loblaw store in Peterborough has been let to Eastwood Construction Company.

Work will be under way as soon as the contractor has the necessary materials on the ground, Mr. Bash said.

As previously reported, the store will be 160 feet by 70 feet in the centre of the George St. block between Sherbrooke and Dalhousie Streets. And there will be an adjoining store 70 ft. by 32 ft. The plans were prepared for a one-storey structure with steel frame, masonry walls and built-up roof.

This announcement is of more than usual interest to Peterborough business sentiment. It is the second substantial evidence of the approval of investment in that Sherbrooke-George area this year.

It has remained for the Loblaw Company to break ground south of Sherbrooke St. Four or five gestures of a new advance of business in that direction have been noticed since the close of the war. The big grocery company are giving that local trend definite form and action.

It is understood that the company intends to provide considerable parking space for customers, a convenience that is limited to curb parking at most of the retail stores down town.

Local Farmers To Confer On Conservation

Peterborough farmers are being invited to a meeting at the office of the Department of Agriculture, Hunter St., Wednesday, Aug. 3, at 8 p.m. to begin preparation of a local brief to be presented to the Select Committee of the Legislature at Lindsay Sept. 7.

The committee of the Legislature, representing the government and the Liberal and CCF parties, has already been conferring with farmers in western Ontario sections, and will sit at Lindsay to receive recommendations from the counties of Victoria, Durham, Peterborough and Ontario.

Frank C. Paterson is hoping that many local farmers will attend this preliminary meeting next Wednesday night. The Select Committee is studying the subject of "Conservation" on a broad basis, with emphasis on soils, forest, water, flood control, and so on. This is an opportunity to present directly to representatives of the Legislature practical ideals and proposals which are regarded as important to the future of agriculture in this area.

WATERED PARK

Householders who have secretly pulled their hoses out late at night to water parched lawns and gardens, have gained a partner in their crimes. The culprit is apparently the parks commission. Friday morning, in revealing sunshine, as brazen as could be, park ground workers had dragged out a hose and were using it with gay abandon. The revolving sprinkler was spraying water over a large area of Confederation Park. After the recent heavy rains people are wondering if the level of the river has risen sufficiently to allow the Utilities Commission to relax lawn watering restrictions. Apparently the parks commission thinks so.—R.H.

4 Toronto Men On Local Counts Face 28 Others

Four Toronto men, who were charged in the Queen City Thursday with break-ins at Lakefield and Bridgenorth last Friday, also face charges in connection with thefts of 28 cars in the Toronto area, it was learned today from Peterborough Headquarters of the Provincial Police. A fifth man has also been sought and his arrest is expected momentarily.

Possibility exists that the quintet may not be brought here for trial. They will be arraigned first in Toronto on the car theft charges and if they plead guilty to the Lakefield and Bridgenorth break-in charges these cases will be disposed of also in Toronto, thus saving prosecution expense. If they choose to plead not guilty on the break-in counts they will be brought to Peterborough for trial following conclusion of the Toronto car theft hearings.

Names of the four arrested so far are: Victor Carroll, Joe Barrow, James Allen, and Robert Seyler, who was already in Don jail on another charge.

PORT HOPE, July 29 (CP) — The body of a young woman, found in Lake Ontario here on Thursday, has been tentatively identified as that of Josephine Gault of Winnipeg, police reported today.

Charred pieces of bank book found near the lake were used as a basis for identification. Town Councillor Bob Holdaway discovered the body and found a purse containing $50 and some clothing.

Police said they believe the girl has two brothers, one in Winnipeg and another at Helen Mines, Wawa, Ont.

2 Cities Bid Bronze Victoria

London No Fear Of Competition Made First Bid

LONDON, Ont., July 29 (CP)—With sentiment fairly strong that this city should acquire the statue of Queen Victoria which was ousted from its place in a public square in Dublin, Ireland, civic authorities still are awaiting word from the Eire government on what kind of a deal it can make to get the statue.

If it develops as a gift, shipping costs may be as high as $8,600 but that does not faze empire-minded Londoners.

William Loveday, chairman of Victoria Hospital Trust, says he will sponsor a public fund to bring the bronze and marble figure to this city.

Not Taking Seriously

And London isn't taking too seriously the threat of competition that comes from Peterborough. The Peterborough Examiner asked recently "what jot or title of right London had to the statue . . . has London a Victoria park? . . . we have. And it has no statue at all."

Ald. Allan Towe, dean of city council, pointed out that London has Victoria park, Victoria hospital, Victoria Street and etc. "We were the first to reply—why have we this competition?" he asked.

Suggestion that London might acquire the statue was made about a year ago by the Tweedsmuir branch of the Canadian Legion.

Wrote Lord Mayor

It was brought before city council by Ald. J. C. Wilson, a former mayor and former member of the legislature. Council wrote to the Lord Mayor of Dublin, and in February he replied that he turned the query about the banished statue over to the government of Eire.

Since then, London has had no official word on whether the statue might be available.

Obstructed Police

Joseph Lea, 445 Bellevue St., pleaded guilty in city police court today to wilfully obstructing Constable Stewart Fife when the constable arrested Jack Bailey, 19 Howden Avt. on Gilchrist St. Thursday afternoon. Bailey, who Lea said was his boss, pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $10 with $2.50 costs. Lea was fined $15 with $2.50 costs and warned by Magistrate R. B. Baxter that he would not tolerate obstruction when police officers were executing their duties.

Victoria Park May Get Big Statue

Although in her grave these past 48 years Queen Victoria remains the exemplar of British Imperial prestige. When Eire cut the last tenuous bonds with the rest of the Commonwealth she packed off to a warehouse the large bronze statue of the Queen which has been a Dublin landmark for many years. The sitting bronze Queen on a marble pedestal stood at the main entrance to Leinsten House, seat of British government and now of Irish government in Dublin.

Two loyal Canadian cities—London and Peterborough—have made tentative bids for the statue.

A July 13 Canadian Press dispatch quoted the Finance Minister of Eire as saying an early decision on disposal of the statue would be reached and that London officials would be advised.

Suggestion Made

Next day the lead editorial in the Examiner claimed that Peterborough had an even greater right than London to the bronze and urged the City Council to consider the matter seriously.

Arguments marshalled to support the Peterborough claim included the following: this city has a statueless park, already named Victoria, with a vacant space, formerly the site of the bandstand and suitable for such a sculpted work; it was founded by the Irish (and their accents remain unmistakeably so to this day in rural region and serve as a constant reminder of that fact); some of the chief pieces of civic architecture are Victorian—the Library, Post Office, Customs Building, and Armories—to name a few; the bronze would be of historical interest; and serve as an authentic tourist attraction.

After carefully discussing the subject Monday night in Finance Committee (a committee of the whole Council) the Council decided to forward a letter to the Hon. Lester B. Pearson, MP, Secretary of State for External Affairs, asking him to use the offices of his Department to see if the statue might be acquired.

Council Wants It

The letter, signed by Mayor Swanston, asked that information be obtained regarding the possible cost of transporting it from Ireland to this city.

"The City Council is very desirous of obtaining this monument," Mr. Pearson was informed.

The Canadian section of Time weekly magazine has centred the attention of its readers this week on the Peterborough-London bidding contest. The magazine estimates that transportation costs would amount to about $8,600.

It also claims that a public subscription is already underway among the citizens.

No Fund Yet

Reports that a public subscription had already been opened were termed "premature" by City Clerk E. A. Outram, speaking in the absence of Mayor Swanston. To date plans for raising the necessary money have not been made let alone actual collection begun.

Mr. Outram quoted the letter sent by Council to the Secretary of State, and added they were reasonably sure Mr. Pearson was prepared "to go to bat on our behalf."

Eire's Finance Minister Patrick McGilligan is reported to have said that the statue can be had for the taking away, so long as not an Irish penny is spent on it.

Swanston Asks L. B. Pearson To Intercede

Here is the letter which Mayor Swanston wrote July 27 to Honorable Lester B. Pearson, M.P., Secretary of State for External Affairs:

Honorable Sir:

Recently it has come to the attention of leading citizens here that a monument to Queen Victoria which has stood for many years in one of the parks in Dublin is being removed as undesirable by the people of Eire. These citizens have appealed to the City Council to take action to secure this monument to a great Queen, in order that it may have an honored place in Victoria Park, one of the most centrally located and most carefully kept parks in this city. The City Council is very desirous of obtaining this monument.

Would you kindly, therefore, use the good offices of your department to institute inquiries whether or not this monument can be obtained for the City of Peterborough, also the possible cost of transporting it from Dublin to this city. It is proposed to raise sufficient funds for the shipping costs by public subscription.

We will be grateful for any assistance and information your department may be able to supply referring to this matter.

Yours sincerely,
MAX J. SWANSTON,
Mayor

Rental Ceilings Overreached Landlord Admits

James E. Lillico, 748 Water St., today pleaded guilty in city police court to charging three tenants rents exceeding the ceiling set by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and to three other technical charges in connection with the same apartments. He was fined $50 and ordered to pay $9 for witness fees and $2.50 court costs.

N. J. Crook, defending Mr. Lillico, told Magistrate R. G. Baxter that violation of the rent control regulations had occurred owing to a misunderstanding of an amendment to the regulations in November, 1948. When the amendment was passed many people, including Mr. Lillico, had been under the impression that the ceiling had been lifted from all apartments whereas in fact, certain types of premises were still under rent control.

Awareness Of Regulations

W. F. Huycke, KC, prosecuting for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, maintained that property owners ought to be aware of rent control regulations, which had been in effect since 1941.

Mr. Huycke said that Robert Rollwagen had been charged $12 a week for an apartment where the rent had been fixed for a previous tenant at $20 a month, that is, less than six dollars a week. For two months Mr. Lillico had charged $6 a week too much.

At 176 McDonnel St. Mr. Lillico had overcharged H. J. Tone $40 during a period of 16 weeks and W. S. Wildman, $55 in 14 weeks.

Other charges were for failing to make application to the Rental Appraiser within 30 days of making leases, to fix the maximum rentals.

Spent Thousands

Mr. Crook said that Mr. Lillico had bought the premises at Water St. after they had stood vacant for a long time. He had spent thousands of dollars converting and decorating and had provided homes for 10 families there.

"If there were 10 more men with Mr. Lillico's initiative, we probably would not have any need for the regulations," Mr. Crook declared.

Relations between Mr. Lillico and his tenants were not strained, Mr. Crook said. Two of the three tenants were still living in the apartments and adjustments in rent could be made to rectify over payments.

Car Barns Sold To McGillis, Being Torn Down

The car barn property on King St. has been sold by Irwin and Godson, Ford agents, to the McGillis Hotel Company Limited who have already begun its demolition.

Mr. McGillis said there was at present no definite purpose in the use of the property.

"Peterborough's business area is obviously moving south on George St.," Mr. McGillis said today, "and the George and King Streets section is becoming more important. The first thing to be done is to clear up the car barn property and make it tidy and presentable."

The car barn and gas works were bought by the city from the Hydro-Electric Commission at the time of its decision to dispose of properties that had been acquired incidentally to its purchase of holdings of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, with other independent power units in the area.

Was Rented

Eventually, the continuance of a local passenger transport service was begun by Border Transit Limited, of which Mr. Frank Mitchell is president. They rented the car barn from the city, and purchased it several years ago, a transaction that stirred up a lively controversy about the value of the property and the advisability of its sale to Border Transit.

Changing its plans, Border Transit sold the King St. barn and land to Irwin and Godson, Ford agents, who had intended to erect a modern motor sales office along the street front, and use the barn for its motor servicing department. For a substantial reason which he did not wish to discuss, Mr. Paul Irwin said today that it was found advisable not to proceed with the Irwin and Godson plans for that site. The result was their sale of the barn and land last Monday.

Coal Miner Named Science Man Of Year

BERLIN, July 29—(AP)—Coal miner Adolf Hennecke has been nominated as Soviet-occupied Germany's scientific man of the year, the Russian army newspaper Taegliche Rundschau said today.

An east-zone commission placed Hennecke's name at the top of a list of 45 persons to be awarded prizes Aug. 25 for scientific and technical work in 1949.

Hennecke is the man reported to have boosted his coal digging production by 400 per cent. The Communist press has lionized him as part of a Russian-sponsored drive to increase the output of eastern German industries by means of "shock workers."

Wartime Plant Basis For Model Town

AJAX, Ont., July 29—(CP)—Seven years ago this infant municipality was an incubator baby. Today it is making plans for a normal, healthy adult life.

The 3,000-acre site, between Toronto and Oshawa, Ont., on Lake Ontario's north shore, had an eventful childhood.

It was born in 1941 as the site of a government-owned shell-filling plant. After the war it became a university centre, accommodating 3,300 overflow students from the University of Toronto. Now Canada's agent in the housing field—Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation—plans to make it a thriving and industrial community.

Ajax will be Canada's first government-planned city. People and industry won't be allowed unrestricted access to any land they wish to use. Definite areas have been established for industry, commerce and housing.

Prof. Kent Barker of the University of Toronto with help from provincial planning experts and the Toronto Industrial Commission will advise C.M.H.C. how the town should be developed. They hope that in 20 years its present population of 2,700 will blossom into a community of 25,000 to 30,000.

At present the town boasts 600 houses and an industrial nucleus which manufactures products as varied as acoustic tile and sausage skins.

Early in the war Defence Industries Limited built one of the largest shell-filling plants in the Commonwealth on the site. In 1946 the government leased approximately 90 buildings to the University of Toronto as added facilities for student veterans in engineering.

Present Facilities

The university also operated the comunity water and heating plants, a laundry and cafeteria, the fire department, recreation hall, hospital, library and other service buildings. These facilities plus 60-cycle hydro, 15 miles of railway sidings and large storage space will play a vital part in assisting industries attracted to the area.

George W. Finley, regional director of C.M.H.C., said although all houses have ben government-built so far private building is wanted if it will conform to community standards. Eventually all existing houses will be sold to private owners—the inhabitants will then own their town.

The most modern aspects of regional planning will be incorporated in the project. Stores and shops will be built along one side of the main north-south artery and will be separated from it by a wide boulevard. Behind these will be utility services such as laundries, dairies and repair shops.

The manufacturing plants will be farthest from the residential districts and will become heavier and less restricted as they are farher away. Landscaping and building with regard to architectural beauty will be encouraged.

Each of the five proposed housing districts will be a community in itself. They will be grouped about central park and school and constructed so that children on the way to school need cross only one street.

Broad avenues will join the various sections of town to the main thoroughfare. These avenues and the streets which connect them will be arranged to form a minimum of crossroads in the residential areas.

THE TOUCH OF GREEN

Many green stones, such as emeralds and serpentines, owe their color to the presence of chromium.

Men Unappreciative Dogs Bite Hands That Feed Them

DOROTHY DIX: My father has an office at home as well as at his place of business. He works every night. I am a girl of 19 and desire to have my friends come to see me, but I hate to ask them on this account. I know they would not want to come and see me and sit in the living room and watch my father work in his office and hear the click of his typewriter. There is one boy that I like very much who wonders why I treat him so cold, but I feel I can't ask him to the house and I don't want to suggest going out to my date. Don't you think a father should consider his daughter a little bit, and when she has company stop working a while for her sake?

Dorothy Dix

ANXIOUS.

ANSWER: What about the daughter considering her father a little bit and trying to realize that the reason he works nights at home is because he is trying to provide a home for her and keep her safe and snug?

Lots of young people look upon their fathers as nothing but moneymaking machines who are geared to perpetual action and who keep on going through the motion of toiling because they are built that way and can't stop. I have heard them sneer at father because he had got to be almost an automaton that vibrated between the house and the office and because he never took a vacation or went to a ball game or did anything but work. I have seen them ashamed of father because he got stoop-shouldered and went shabby and was out of the picture with the balance of the smartly dressed family.

I have wondered at the lack of intelligence, heart and imagination that these young sons and daughters showed, in never realizing that father was a hero and a martyr who offered himself up as a sacrifice on the altar of his home, for his unappreciative wife and children who never even knew how grand a figure he was.

Father is just as human as the balance of us. He doesn't slave like a dray horse because he has some peculiar complex that makes him prefer work to play and a stuffy office to sunshine. He would love to go fishing in the spring. He would love to travel and see the world. But he sticks to his jub winter and summer, day in and day out. He often works at night so that his wife and children may have the pleasures that he denies himself.

Anyway, my poor little girl, you are supersensitive to feel that your father's working at home is any disgrace and that your friends won't want to come there. There probably isn't a one of them who wold care a rap about that one way or the other. As far as your boy friend is concerned, he would admire it rather than criticize it.

It would indicate to him that, if he had that industrious a father-in-law, he would probably never have to support his wife's family. So don't be silly and make a mountain out of a typewriter.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DORTHY DIX: Do you think a man appreciates anything he gets for nothing, even real love? I helped my husband through college. As his business has been poor I have paid all household expenses. I am a good housekeeper and cook and have kept an attractive home. I am good-looking, although I am ten years older than he. For no reason at all he has left me, although I have done everything in the world for him. I still love him dearly. What shall I do?

B.G.T.

ANSWER: There is nothing you can do but let him go. You cannot force a man to live with you against his will.

I don't think men value the things that come to them too easily, nor do I think that they are often grateful to the wives who give them too much either of love or money. A man wants to be the lover rather than the loved one. He wants to pursue her rather than be caught by her and, as a general thing, you will find that the best-loved women are those who are indifferent to the men who love them. These women always keep men on their tiptoes trying to please them and guessing how they stand. Let a woman love a man so much that he knows she will forgive him and love him still, no matter how much he neglects her or how he treats her, and you will find that he seldom cares for her. Her love bores him.

I have never known a man who was grateful to the woman who supported him. Always he was a surly dog who bit the hand that fed him. I have known dozens of to lend money to men they loved; women who denied themselves dozens of women who gave money to men to help them go through college or get starts in business, and I have hardly known a case in which the men did not forsake these women for other women to whom they owed nothing. And I have never known a wife-supported husband who was not abusive and grouchy and hard to live with.

The reason, I think, is easy to understand. Being dependent on a woman cheapens a man so in his own estimation and in that of other men that he revenges himself upon the woman by mistreating her. He can't forgive her his own weakness.

MISS HALIFAX, 1749—Barbara Edwards, 17, sets fashions back 200 years for the Halifax Horse Show, Aug. 4 to 6, held in conjunction with that east coast city's bicentenary celebrations. Here she wears the latest in riding habits of 1749, seated on "Champ," black charger she will ride in the parade.

Negroes Mark Freedom From Slavery

WINDSOR, July 29 (CP) — More than a century ago, Negro slaves escaped from the United States by way of the "underground railway" to find freedom in the Windsor and Chatham areas of southwestern Ontario.

This weekend descendants of those escaped slaves will be joined by many thousands more in a three-day celebration of the 17th anniversary of the first observance of their emancipation.

The British American Association of Colored Brothers, sponsors of the event, call it the "greatest freedom show on earth." They expect some 150,000 persons will attend the celebration in Windsor's Jackson Park.

Slaves were freed in the United States in 1863. Britain took the first step toward freeing slaves in the empire in 1807 when it abolished the slave trade act. In 1834 it passed an emancipation act freeing slaves in the colonies on condition they become apprenticed to their owners. Some $100,000,000 was paid in compensation to slave owners. In 1838 the apprenticeship qualification was abolished, making emancipation complete.

However, before the British acts of 1834 and 1838, United States Negroes were escaping to Canada and the colored brothers say the escapees first held an official celebration to mark their freedom in 1832. It is this 1832 event which is to be commemorated Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Thousands Expected

Most of the celebrants will come from Windsor, which has 1,200 Negroes and Detroit, which has some 250,000. But thousands are expected from New York and the Southern States.

The celebrants are expected to eat tons of barbecued spare ribs and roast chicken at the park. But they will have to do without the traditional watermelons. Import of the succulent fruit from the U. S. is forbidden under the Dominion's dollar-saving program.

Walter Perry, driving force behind the celebration, says more than 40 marching units, and some 18 bands, will take part in Sunday's parade. Fraternal organizations, including Legion Posts and the Elks, and high-stepping majorettes will be in the march.

Social Situations

SITUATION: A friend tell you she is considering decorating with a certain color which you dislike.

WRONG WAY: Say, "Oh, don't use that color. I think it is hideous."

RIGHT WAY: Keep your own personal taste to yourself. If you express a strong dislike for something a friend likes she will either have to give up the idea that pleases her or know that you think she has poor taste.

Ramon Novarro May Return To Studio Lot

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, July 29 (AP)—Ramon Novarro may soon return to MGM, where he once reigned as the top romantic star for more than a decade.

Novarro's acting career has been revitalized by two character roles in recent dramas and he is now negotiating a deal to go back to his old home lot. Most famed for "Ben Hur," he was the studio's answer to Rudolph Valentino.

The 44-year-old actor has engaged in the real estate business in recent years. He denies a broadcast report that he was going to be a Trappist monk. "No truth to it," he commented.

Odd Notes

Kirk Douglas is an ambitious gent. After another year of pictures, he wants to go back to Broadway. He was on the stage for years but never had a hit. His plan is to divide his time between stage and screen. Kirk's now in "Young Man With a Horn," which has 20 songs plus some fisticuffs by the former "champion" . . .

Jack Carson, who used to call Carmen, Man., home, did one test-run television show, and decided that Video is not for him right now. He can't see how he can do it and pictures at the same time. Jack is still trying to get out of his Warner's contract . . .

Joan Leslie has her future planned far ahead. She wants to get married, but not for a few years yet. And if her career interferes with her marriage, she says she'll give up acting. (How many have said that, before her?)

Capsule Review

"Savage Splendor" (RKO) proves that on the screen fact can be more exciting than fiction. This hour-long travelogue of Africa in color holds more interest than many plot-packed films. It's good for kids and their parents, too. Best scenes: underwater shots of hippos; lassoing wild beasts from a truck.

STOCK FIGURE

In medieval moralty plays a special character who acted as an attendant on the devil was styled "the Vice."

TIME TO GET BUSY MAKING JAM AND JELLY

For Quick, Easy Sure Results Take Your Choice of CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals

Jam and jelly-making need not be a chore. The sensible, modern way to do it is with the help of CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals. Both are fruit pectin—the natural substance in fruit that makes jams "jam" and jellies "jell" — extracted and concentrated for efficient jam and jelly making. The name "Certo" is a trade-mark.

Please yourself which you choose . . . some prefer the liquid — some the crystals. Each ends guesswork and tedious long-boiling. Each gives sure results if you follow the instructions exactly.

Why CERTO Fruit Pectin or "CERTO" Crystals Make Better Jams and Jellies . . . Easier . . . Quicker

1. VERY SHORT BOIL. When you use CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals you need only a ONE-MINUTE full, rolling boil for both jams and jellies. Such a saving of time and work!
2. MORE JAM OR JELLY. Very little juice has time to boil away as it does in old-fashioned, long-boiling. You get up to 50% more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit.
3. FRESH-FRUIT TASTE . . . COLOUR. The lovely taste and colour of the fresh fruit stay in your jams and jellies because the boil is too short to spoil the one or dull the other.
4. NO GUESSWORK. With either CERTO or "CERTO" Crystals you get tested recipes — a different one for each fruit. Follow them exactly and you'll have no failures.

Under 4-Yr. Sentence

HAMILTON, July 29 (CP) — William Christianson, under sentence of four years' imprisonment for 20 charges of housebreaking in Toronto district, appeared in court here today and was remanded to Aug. 5 on additional charges of theft and housebreaking. He was arraigned on three housebreaking and theft charges and one of breach of recognizance, all originating in this city.

Have Never Met But 2 Newtons Badly Mixed Up

DETROIT, July 29 (AP) — George Newton, Jr., of Plymouth, Mich., has never met George Henry Newton, 29, of Rochester, N.Y.

But their lives became fantastically tangled. Let Postal Inspector Donald Schoof go on with the story:

The Rochester Newton was rejected for military service, but he decided to become a serviceman anyway. He was arrested several times for impersonating service men and in September, 1947 was sentenced to two years for fraudulently obtaining another's mail.

Shortly before that arrest, the Rochester Newton appeared at the Wayne county clerk's office and applied for photostatic copies of the Plymouth Newton's navy discharge papers.

The Plymouth Newton later complained he had not received his State Veteran's bonus cheque. Investigation showed it had come to the Rochester Newton, by this time in prison.

Still Trying

After he was paroled May 1, the Rochester Newton obtained the Plymouth Newton's notice of separation from the Great Lakes naval training station. Then he applied here for compensation in the name of the Plymouth Newton.

He tried to obtain more photostatic copies of the Plymouth Newton's discharge papers at the county clerk's office. But the office had been tipped off and notified Federal agents.

The Rochester Newton collected the Plymouth Newton's Victory medals at the navy recruiting office and sought to enlist in the naval reserve. But Federal agents had caught up with him and he was arrested.

The Rochester Newton was on his way today back to prison. Judge Arthur F.Lederle yesterday sentenced him to 11 months in prison for fraudulently obtaining the Plymouth Newton's mail.

Try New Course Out On Officers

KINGSTON, July 29 (CP)—Young army officers completed a course today designed to teach them "how the other fellow works," with an address from General H. O. Graham, vice-chief of the General Staff, Army Headquarters, Ottawa. The course, common to all arms, opened in June at the Royal Military College here. The students, who come from all corps of the army, now will be assimilated into the permanent active force.

Major E. G. Brooks said object of the course was to expand and develop the candidate's knowledge of the organization and employment of all corps in the army, and thus to broaden their military background.

"In addition, the course was designed to give instruction in many of the subjects required by the young regimental officer," said Major Brooks. "The curriculum covered man management, organization of sports, physical training, military law, unit administration and the principals of good instruction."

"Army headquarters directed us to run this course to broaden the young officers' education. Hitherto the young officer often had little knowledge of the scope and effects of other regiments' work," he observed.

Thorold Votes Dry Strongly

THOROLD, July 29 (CP) — Clerk-treasurer Donald Cowan of the township of Thorold, releasing the official figures on the beverage room vote in the municipality on Wednesday, said that in only one sub-division was the wet question supported with any degree of strength.

The wet-dry vote split fifty-fifty at Port Robinson with all other subdivisions voting strongly against the introduction of beverage rooms.

The first question put to the voters: "Are you in favor of the sale of beer only under a public house license for consumption on licensed premises to which women are admitted?" The vote in favor was 531 with 1,040 voting against the measure. On the only, the vote in favor was 490 second question of for sale to men with 1,075 against.

Approximately 33.8 per cent. of the vote was on the first question and 66.2 dry. On the second question, 33.3 per cent. of the vote was for sale and 68.7 per cent. was against. Mr. Cowan said 45 per cent. of the possible vote was cast.

Child's Rhythm Started Career

VICTORIA, (CP)—Don't stop your children from waving sand-shovels—they may be conducting an orchestra.

Take Miss Margaret Foote, an English composer holidaying in Victoria, who was "discovered" by a seaside bandmaster in England when he found her keeping time to the music with a toy shovel.

Although no child prodigy—she had no piano until she was eight—Miss Foote would pick up tunes from the local cinema and reproduce them on the instrument when she had persuaded her parents to get one.

When she began to study she discovered she had the rare gift of absolute pitch, which enables its possessor to name a note without comparing it with others.

At 19 she graduated from the Royal Academy of Music and began teaching and composing.

Her latest composition, "Holiday Suite," has been accepted in part by Western Music Company in Vancouver for sheet-music publication.

To Reopen Highway

AMOS, Que., July 29 (CP) — The Provincial Highways Department announced today that the Mont Laurier-Senneterre Highway, closed for two months after a series of landslides, will be opened for traffic Saturday. The highway is the only route through the province between Montreal and northwest Quebec's mining sections.

3 Business Men Pass Away During Week

Death has come this week to three Peterborough business men. They are Thomas V. Whittington, 51, of 183 Lock St., a garage operator; William John McCormack 65, of 858 George St N., in the stationery business; and Ernest Isaac Dummitt, 57, of 254 King George St., a builder.

Mr. Whittington, born in South Monaghan, lived in the Peterborough district all his life. He entered the garage business and at the time of his death was proprietor of Whittington Motor Sales at 16 Lansdowne St., together with his son Vincent Clarke. During the past four years he has been inactive due ot illness. He died Tuesday.

He leaves his wife, the former Marion Clarke; a son Vincent Clark of Peterborough; two brothers, Lloyd and Charles of South Monaghan; and three sisters, Mrs. Samuel Whitehouse and Miss Dorothy Whittington both of New York City, and Mrs. John Grandy of Brooklin.

The funeral took place today from the Comstock Funeral Home.

Builder, War Veteran

Mr. Dummitt, who died Thursday, had been working as a builder in business for himself for the past nine years. Previous to that time he had been employed in the same type of work. At one time he worked with the English Canoe Co., now the Peterborough Canoe Co.

Although born in Haliburton County he lived in the Peterborough district most of his life. During the First World War he completed full-time service with the original 2nd Bn., ending up with the rank of Sergeant.

He was a member of St. George's Anglican Church and had memberships in two other organizations: Woodmen of the World, and the Builders' Exchange.

Besides his wife, the former Ethel Frances Mortlock, he leaves two sons, Walter and Alfred, a daughter Marguerite, all of Peterborough; alo three brothers, George, Harry and Fred of Peterborough, a sister Mrs. Harold Ephgrave of Peterborough, and two grandchildren.

The funeral will be Saturday at 2 p.m. from St. George's Church.

Prominent Stationer

Third member of the trio, Mr. McCormack, has been in the stationery business on the present site of Trebilcock Bros. George St. ever since he came to Peterborough 46 years ago. He also died Thursday.

When he began clerking the owner was A. H. Stratton and he worked under that employer for about six years. When Trebilcock's took over the store 40 years ago he stayed on, and he became a well-known George St. figure.

He leaves three sisters in Peterborough, Misses Phoebe and Eva McCormack and Mrs. Thos. Detcher (Elizabeth), and a niece Mrs. Walter Thornton. Mr. McCormack was unmarried.

The funeral will be from the Kaye Funeral Home at 1.30 p.m Saturday. Burial will be at Ray's Cemetery, Lakefield.

Rochester Man Dies Suddenly

BANCROFT, July 29 (ENS) — Walter Sydney Todd, 64, of Rochester, N. Y., who has been spending his summers in this district for the past several years, died suddenly of a heart attack Tuesday afternoon at Chandos Lake, where he and Mrs. Todd had been visiting friends. Mr. Todd had not been in the best of health since retiring about three years ago from the employ of the Eastman Kodak Company. Over-exertion due to slippery driving conditions is believed to have brought on the fatal attack. Mr. and Mrs. Todd were staying at Bow Lodge here.

Mr. Todd had worked for the Kodak Company for 35 years and was foreman of one of the processing departments at the time of his retirement. Mr. and Mrs. Todd had been spending the winters in West Palm Beach, Florida, in recent years.

Mr. Todd was a member of the Masonic Order, the Liedekranz Club and the Woodmen of the World.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Pearl Jacques.

The body was forwarded from the Tedford Funeral Home, Lakefield, on Wednesday to Rochester where funeral service will be held Saturday at 2:00 p.m. from the C. F. Scheureman and Sons Funeral Home, with interment in Riverside Cemetery.

BUENOS AIRES, July 29 (AP). —Dr. Antonio Sagarna, 75, former Chief Justice of the Argentine Supreme Court, died Thursday of a heart attack. Crown Counsel Henry Bull requested the remand to complete its investigation and to allow the captain to return to his ship to make delivery of is cargo of perishable Marshall Plan footstuffs.

Worked Double Pay System Fined $25 Plus

After Daniel Pearson, 573 Downie St., told Magistrate R. B. Baxter in city police court today that he drew unemployment insurance while he was employed "just to pay up my back bills" the magistrate fined him $25 with $2.50 costs.

"I don't think there was any harm in doing it to get my bills paid us," Pearson told the magistrate.

"You cannot think there is no harm in telling lies to get money" the magistrate replied. "But I don't think that was telling lies—I don't believe in running into debt," Pearson said.

Received More Than $55

W. D. Muirhead, appearing for the Unemployment Insurance Commission, said Pearson had received more than $55 by declaring he was unemployed when he was working.

Pearson said it was at Christmastime and he had grocery bills to pay. He did not believe in running into debt. He has a wife and one child to support.

Ernest Perritt, 689 Gilchrist St. also pleaded guilty to receiving insurance when he had been employed. He told the magistrate that he knew he ought not to have done it and admitted failing to notify the commission that he had started working. He had received more than $20 and was fined $15 with $2.50 costs.

Have 11th Province?

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 29 (CP)—Gregory Power, executive assistant to Premier Joseph Smallwood, of Newfoundland, suggested here Thursday that the British West Indies take steps to explore the possibility of becoming Canada's 11th province. Newfoundland joined Canada March 31 as the 10th province. Power said he felt such a move would be well received in Canada, now a "great nation on the verge of great expansion."

Chinese Mob Besieges US Consulate

Communist Police Flatly Refuse To Halt Gangs

SHANGHAI, July 30 (AP). — The United States Consulate was besieged again to-day by about 150 former Shanghai employees of the US Navy.

The mob, like the one Friday, demanded aggregate back pay and severance allowance equal to 6½ months' pay. It was made up of Chinese mostly, but there was a sprinkling of Indians and White Russians.

Consulate members were not permitted to leave the building. Others were permitted to come and go, but only essential personnel reported for work to-day lest a general lock-in developed.

Thirteen staff members remained in the building Friday night.

(The State Department in Washington said the Communist police "flatly refused to intervene" after mobs seized the Consulate Friday.)

After an all day seige, the State Department announced, the staff of Consul General John M. Cabot was locked in the Consulate offices.

An official report said the Communists police force "flatly refused to intervene," while the Aliens Affairs Bureau of the Communist Military Control Commission did nothing to restore order.

What effective steps might be taken to deal with the new incident were not immediately clear.

Regime Not Set Up

The Communists have not yet set up a central regime for the North China and Yangtze Valley areas. American protests, directed to military commanders at Sanghai, Nanking, Peiping and other cities, have been fruitless.

In releasing its report of the consulate invasion yesterday the state department said it was not known whether Cabot himself was among the 13 Americans and 35 Chinese employees besieged in the building.

LUCK COMES IN SEVENS to residents of the J. L. Young cottage, north of Blewett's sawmill, Bridgenorth, during Friday's violent storm. Windsor Man Arrested For Slaying

Announce Robbery Killer's Motive In Beach Murder

TORONTO, July 30 (CP) — Louis Martinello, 21, faces a murder charge in the bludgeon-slaying Tuesday night of Leslie William (Jack) Hern, 38-year-old railway dining car steward, whose body was found under a boardwalk at Toronto's east-end Kew Beach.

It is exepected that Martinello will appear in court today.

Detectives arrested the dark, curly-haired Martinello late Friday in a tavern on downtown Bay Street. He offered no resistance.

Police said the man had been employed in an automotive plant in Windsor, before coming to Toronto a month ago, but he has not worked lately.

Investigators questioned Martinello for three hours before lodging him in a police station on the murder charge. They said that at first Martinello denied ever meeting Hern, but later said he met Hern in a downtown beverage room and spent some time drinking with him.

Robbery Motive

A police statement said robbery is believed to have been the motive for the slaying. Hern, unmarried, wore flashy clothes and an expensive watch and drove a big automobile—relatives described him as "a little guy who looked and acted like a millionaire"—but, at the time he was slain, was carrying only about $30.

Hern's mother, Mrs. Llewellyn Hern, and a cousin, Lulu MacMillan, both said that relatives had warned Hern that his friendliness and generosity might lead him into danger, especially if his appearance suggested to some criminal that he was wealthy.

They said he often formed friendships with men he had met casually around town, took them for drives in his sleek sedan, brought them to his parents' home for a night or a week-end and then, after a few days, usually saw them no more. Mrs. Hern said that, to her, some of the men looked like undesirable companions for her son.

When found on the beach early Wednesday, Hern's body was clad only in a shirt. An autopsy showed the cause of death as a blow on the head from a blunt instrument. There were indications that Hern, a slender, frail man, might have been beaten and that possibly his head had been battered against a nail protruding from the boardwalk.

STORM BRINGS TRAGEDY—Edward (Ted) Stanley Kingdon, 39, of 11 Conger St., CGE employee who died of a heart attack while helping to retrieve furniture from a burning house at Balieboro on Friday, is shown above with his wife and two now fatherless boys, Sam 12, and Allin 4. Mr. Kingdon was driving by the house when he noticed the room on fire. The blaze was caused by lightning which struck the house during yesterday's severe electrical storm.

Passing By House Sees Flames Driver Stops To Help

BAILIEBORO, July 30 (ENS) —The severe electrical storm which struck Peterborough county early Friday afternoon caused the death of a Peterborough man, Edward Stanley Kingdon, 39, 11 Conger St. He died of a heart attack while helping to remove furniture from the home here of the Rev. Herbert Malcolm, which was struck by lightning at the height of the gale. Mr. Kingdon was driving by the house, and noticing the flames, stopped to help neighbours in getting it under control. After making three trips through heavy smoke he collapsed and died within a few minutes.

The fire was first noticed by a neighbor, Norman Thompson, who rushed to the house to warn Mrs. Malcolm and her husband's stepmother, who were in the building, Mr. Malcolm being away at the time. A call was put in to the fire department of Millbrook and Bewdley, which sent one piece of apparatus each to the scene. Neighbors also fought the blaze by means of a bucket brigade. After about two hours, the fire was brought under control after being confined to the roof, which was completely destroyed. The rest of the house was badly damaged by water, but all the furniture was saved.

$1,000 Damage

Damage to the two-storey building was estimated about $1,000. It was feared for a time that it would be impossible to save it because of the high wind.

Mr. Kingdon was employed in the Arrestor Dept. of the CGE. He was born in Peterborough, where he had resided all his life, and was a son of Mrs. Florence Doughty Kingdon and the late George Stanley Kingdon. He was a member of George Street United Church.

Mr. Kingdon was a leader in boys' work in the north end of the city. He was organizer and mentor of a boys' activity group which met regularly in Queen Alexandra

Seven Elm Trees Hit Cottage AtLakeChemong

A screeching wind at the height of Friday's storm blew down two clumps of elm trees at Bridgenorth. The elms, seven in all, fell on the roof of Mr. J. L. Young's cottage, about 500 yards north of Blewett's sawmill, on the lakeshore.

At the same time, Mr. and Mrs. Ray (Dids) Crary rushed to the waterfront to pull up some boats that were moored there. The hail and rain were so intense that they were unable to see each other from the ends of the boat. In addition, the steps leading down to the dock were turned over as one of the trees broke loose. Time of the uproar was around 1.30 p.m.

Didn't Hear Trees

Noise of the wind and rain was so great that Mrs. Young, who was in the cottage with the baby Annabelle, did not hear the trees fall. The clump canted over until it was lying across the roof of the cottage. There was no great damage done, except for the rain which swept in. Also in the cottage at the time were Mrs. J. Morley and her son Scott.

Mrs. Bert Nicholls, Toronto, who was two cottages away and closer to the mill, ventured out on to the lawn to pick up an article, and received the shock of her life when the wind ripped her blouse off her back. Another tree was blown down while Mrs. Nicholls was there, but there was no damage. The cottage, ironically enough, is named Breeze-In.

Ship Knifed By Freighter Crew Escapes In Lifeboat

CANSO, N.S., July 30—(CP)—The 126-ton motor vessel Laverniere was run down in dense fog Friday by the 5,600-ton American freighter Colabee nine miles south of this eastern Nova Scotia port. The six-man crew escaped in a lifeboat and was brought to Canso by the Yarmouth, N.S., swordfisher Edward L. The Laverniere was fired as a menace to navigation and slid beneath a smooth Atlantic half an hour after the collision.

The Colabee, out of Wilmington, Del., was bound for Baie Comeau, Que., and the Laverniere, out of Grindstone, Magdalen Islands, was en route from Port Hawkesbury, N.S., to Halifax with a cargo of herring.

Capt. George Lake, of Montague, P.E.I., skipper of the motor vessel, said: "We didn't have a chance. We were sounding our siren regularly but we heard only two blasts from another ship nearby.

"We weren't able to tell where the sound was coming from. We didn't see the freighter until she was about 100 yards off starboard. We swung around to try to avoid the collision but it was too late."

The Colabee hit the Laverniere amidships, slicing off her stern. She started under and the crew took to the lifeboats.

The freighter lowered her boats. Capt. Lake climbed into one of them and went aboard the Colabee to talk with her captain.

The Swordfisher Edward L. reached the scene and Capt. Lake and his crew went aboard her. None of them was injured.

The Colabee is owned by Illinois Atlantic Corporation. She was not believed badly damaged. The Laverniere was owned by a grindstone co-operative.

JAPAN AFTER TRADE

TOKYO, July 30 (Reuters)—Japan's industry ministry today announced plans to send a "sample line" with Japanese textiles to major ports of the world to help recover her export trade.

$100,000 Storm Damages Ottawa

OTTAWA, July 29.—(CP).—A roaring, smashing gale pounded the capital Friday, felling trees, power lines and buildings and jumbling communications.

Damage was still being counted today. But it was expected it will reach at least $100,000.

Seven miles from Ottawa $50,000 damage was caused to the Holy Rosary novitiate and scholasticate when the wind riped the roof from the main building and flattened a barn on the novitiate grounds.

Street car service was disrupted for several hours when falling trees knocked down the power lines.

Telephone and power companies rushed out extra power crews of repairmen to put lines back in order. Some telephone lines still were out early today.

Heralded by low-hanging black clouds, the storm whipped up suddenly in mid-afternoon, just at the hottest part of a three day heat weave. High winds, reaching 65 miles an hour in gusts, buffeted the district for 20 minutes, followed by an hour's rain.

On Confederation Square, the heart of the capital near the Parliament Buildings, a street car was hit by lightning. But there was little damage and no one was injured.

Giving Britain Black Eye Attlee Accuses Churchill

LONDON, July 30—(CP)—Prime Minister Attlee today accused Winston Churchill of giving Britain a black eye abroad out of "irresponsibility and party spite." Replying to the Conservative Party leader's speech at Wolverhampton a week ago, Attlee said Churchill's abuse of the Labor government "may be taken seriously in other countries," where he is remembered mainly as wartime Prime Minister.

Attlee declared:

"Any government which does not contain him is always denounced as incompetent."

Churchill told a party rally at Wolverhampton that the Labor government had led Britain into "imminent peril" of Communism and national bankruptcy.

"I have never been slow to acknewledge his war service," Attlee said in a prepared speech in his own election district, "but during these last four years he has had a bad relapse into irresponsibility and party spite."

Defends Program

Attlee defended the Labor government's nationalization program which Churchill had denounced as "cramping and disastrous."

"How disgraceful it is," declared Attlee, "to try and make people believe that all our difficulties are due to socialist mismanagement."

Attlee declared that "no one outside bedlam" ever suggested that Britain's post-war position would be economically secure.

Attlee next took up Churchill's criticism of the labor party for borrowing dollars from the United States and Canada while simultaneously handing out money to aid other countries.

Attlee commented:

"We did give aid to other countries to the tune of £900,000,000 ($3,600,000,000).

"The coalition government decided to support U.N.R.R.A. (the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration) and rightly decided. Without the aid of U.N.R.R.A. to which we were only second to the United States of America in our contribution, Europe might have fallen into utter chaos.

Rainmaker Flops Not Drop Falls

WAYNESBURG, Pa., July 30 (AP)—Waynesburg is looking for a new tradition. It didn't rain Friday—nary a drop, though it most always rains here on July 29.

Attorney John M. Daily, official "rainmaker" for the little western Pennsylvania community of 8,500, was more than a little discouraged. He began paying off his bets promptly at 1:01 a.m. EDT when he ended his 25-hour vigil.

"I'm dogged tired," said John ruefully. "Sure, I'm discouraged. Here we've built up a fine tradition and now look what's happened—no rain on July 29 for two years in a row. People have been kidding me a lot—why, I've had 'phone calls tonight from all over the country."

Food Poisons 16 Tourists

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 30 (CP)—An investigation was ordered Friday night into an attack of food poisoning which sent 16 members of a church group from Maryland to hospital Friday during a sightseeing tour here.

Hospital attendants said the 11 women, four men and a 13-year-old girl are making a satisfactory recovery and likely will be released from hospital today. None was considered in serious condition, although all were violently ill when admitted.

They were in a party of 30 members of the First Baptist Church of Elk Ridge, Md., near Baltimore. Hospital attendants said the 16 persons had been eating ham and potato chips but that not all had eaten the same foods. Niagara Falls health authorities said it was believed some of the food had been bought in Batavia, N.Y.

Man Held For Forgery

LANCASTER, Pa., July 30 (AP) A man who cannot write his own name pleaded guilty to forgery Friday.

Lee English, 47, East Petersburg, Pa., was fined $25 and costs and given a six-month jail sentence by Judge Oliver S. Schaeffer.

English told the court he could not sign his own name and was permitted to make an "X" on his guilty plea. A detective testified English stole a cheque for $84 and cashed it at a local jewelry store by making his "X".

Oil Not Blamed For Drowning

TORONTO, July 30 (CP)—An oil slick on Toronto harbor had nothing to do with the drowning July 16 of Vera Burlanyk, 24, an inquest jury decided Friday night.

The girl lost her life while trying to swim ashore after a 12-foot canvas-covered boat capsized during a pre-dawn boating party. Three of her friends, Doreen Arney, Wilfred Squires and Alex Burney, were rescued.

At the time of the drowning, some newspaper stories said it was believed Miss Burianyk's nostrils had been plugged by the sticky sludge. But Dr. E. C. Fielden, who performed an autopsy, testified that there was no evience of oil on either the girl's clothing or her body.

Other witnesses who had seen the body after it was recovered said they saw no signs of oil. Nor was there any oil on the other three members of the party.

New Fire Equipment Saves Pine Grove

SUDBURY, July 30 (CP)—New pumping equipment received only Friday morning by the Sudbury office of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests for use in areas inaccessible to water, proved its worth Friday afternoon.

Three 200-gallon truck-mounted tanks, plus a new, small pump brought a 100-acre bush fire under control only a half mile from the farming village of Hanmer, 17 miles from here and saved one of the district's most scenic pine groves along the Vermilion river.

The fire, believed to have been caused by blueberry pickers, broke out about noon Friday on the sand plains north of Hanmer. Fanned by a strong west wind, it raced through the dry blueberry bush and small jack pine. With no water near enough to be handled by the ordinary forestry pumps, the three new tanks and small portable pump were pressed into use.

Heat Wave Kills 75 In US Before Cool Spell Comes

NEW YORK, July 30—(AP)—Cooling breezes fanned out over the heat-weary midwest and headed into the sweltering eastern States today as the death toll in the United States from the oppressive weather mounted to more than 75.

The cool air broke the week-long spell of hot and sticky weather over the Central States Friday. It was moving eastward from 15 to 20 miles an hour and was expected to cover the eastern heat belt tonight.

The mercury was in the upper 60s in Chicago early today after a week of hot and humid weather.

The death toll in the eastern States mounted as temperatures soared into the 90s and broke records for the day Friday. There were scores of prostrations. Business establishments in many cities closed and sent employees home because of the sizzling heat.

President Truman was among the thousands in Washington who sought relief from the blazing sun. He and his staff left the 96.2 degree capital temperatures for more comfortable weather at a mountain-top hideaway in Maryland. Some 70,000 government employees were sent home early because of the heat.

Friday's 96.2 reading in Washington equalled Tuesday's mark—the high for the year and the fifth consecutive day the mercury climbed above 95 in the current two-week heat spell.

New York city had another sizzler Friday. The 97.8 reading was the hottest July 29 on record, and topped the previous high of 95.5 in 1892. It was the third consecutive day of above-90 readings. The mercury probably will hit the 90 mark again today.

Sure Colorado Uranium Plenty

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Colorado's uranium deposits are ample to supply the vast atomic energy program of the United States, Senator Eugene Millikin (Rep. Colo.) said today.

Similar assurance came from Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem. Colo.), who said there is a "tremendous amount of uranium" in the Colorado plateau country.

Both senators are members of the Senate-House of Representatives Atomic Energy Committee.

"I have no fear that we cannot secure uranium to operate our atomic energy plants," Millikin told a reporter.

"Given proper price incentives and under efficient organization, our domestic supplies available from the Colorado plateau, the surface of which has hardly been touched, will supply a very substantial amount of our needs. And there are other reassuring factors which I am not at liberty to discuss."

Find Palace Lonely Place Since Edinburghs Leave

LONDON, July 30 (CP)—Like any other mother and father whose married daughter leaves home, the King and Queen are having to get used to a new way of life at Buckingham Palace.

Now that Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh have moved into their official home at Clarence House, their old rooms at the palace are bare and deserted and the little nursery once occupied by Prince Charles, stripped of its bricks and toys, has a forlorn look.

These rooms, occupied by the Edinburghs for 19 months after their marriage, are part of an enormous apartment on the second floor reserved exclusively for the Royal Family. In effect, they are cut off from the rest of the building and so private that only friends and personal attendants are allowed in them.

The rooms, opening off a red-carpeted corridor running around the four sides of the palace, are arranged in suites each with its own bedoom, bathroom, dressing room and living room. The King and Queen have the best rooms at the front, overlooking the wide, tree-lined Mall, and the atmosphere in them is that of a well-kept, well-lived-in home.

Now the Edinburghs have gone, their rooms will be occupied only occasionally by private guests. For although the rest of the palace is crowded with officials and staff, the King and Queen insist that their own private floor be used by members of the family only.

Most afternoons the Royal Family meet for tea in the King and Queen's spacious living room. For young company the royal parents now look to Princess Margaret, who is always lively and amusing. Some afternoons the King picks up the house phone to ask if Margaret is free for a chat and a stroll.

Carrier Commander Given Montreal Post

OTTAWA, July 30.—(CP). — Commodore G. R. Miles of Rothesay, N.B., 47-year-old former commanding officer of the aircraft carrier Magnificent, has been appointed naval officer in charge of Montreal naval headquarters announced Friday.

He was ordered reprimanded and dismissed from the Magnificent's command when he was found guilty by a court-martial of responsibility when the 10,000-ton ship was stranded off the east coast and suffered damage to her hull.

Commodore Miles was twice cited for his seamanship and courage during the Second World War when he brought two destroyers, hit by the enemy, safely into port.

Rush Research At Canterbury In Bomb Craters

By DON GILBERT.

CANTERBURY, England (CP) —In normal times archaeologists pursue the treasures of antiquity with unhurried thoroughness. In Canterbury they are working against time.

For centuries access to the city's ancient foundations was blocked by new construction.

Then came Goering's bombers. The blitz levelled stores, offices and hotels. The whole of the early town site was cleared by bomb and flame.

The cethedral alone escaped. Freed of the buildings which long had hedged it in, the majestic church was left revealed in its original glory.

After the war archaeologists took over the bombed area. With the aid of volunteer workers, they soon were turning up historical treasures, evidences of Britain's earliest times.

But excavating is slow and tedious. Modern Canterbury wants to get on with the job of rebuilding, so that the city's commercial life may be revived.

Told To Hurry

The word has gone out to the archaeology people to get a move on. Once new buildings start going up, the door will be closed on further finds.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has headed an appeal to the public for funds to speed the excavations.

The idea is to raise enough money to employ a force of paid workmen. While systematic examination of the whole bombed area goes forward, these workmen will be held ready to move in on special jobs.

Whenever civic authorities announce they are ready to start a building job where the archaeologists' work is unfinished, the workmen will concentrate for a final, intensive excavation before the new foundations are laid.

Seek Roman Evidence

Before the city is rebuilt, archaeologists hope to have unearthed conclusive evidences of Canterbury's prehistoric beginnings, its growth in Roman times, and its life as a Saxon capital and the cradle of English Christianity.

Finds thus far include magnificent checkered pavements and a heating chamber which shows the way buildings were heated in Roman times. A clay ditch uncovered is believed to have been part of the ancient city's defences.

Canterbury has been continuously occupied since the ancient Britons built huts there. Romans, Saxons and Normans followed with successive civilizations. King Ethelbert was converted to Christianity there by St. Augustine in the year 597.

OIL HALTS SWIMMING — With temperatures in the 90's, Torontonians faced another hot-weather hardship when two of the city's bathing beaches were closed on Thursday as a two-mile patch of oil drifted along the waterfront. Oil slicks have been reported along the lakefront for the past two weeks but the source has not, as yet, been established. Here Jack Sullivan of the Sunnyside Beach staff, one of the two closed, pulls his rake through the slick as swimmers Sheila Hill and Dorothy Hanes show why swimming is impossible.

WINNIPEG GRAINS

WINNIPEG, July 30 (CP) — A better class of buying appeared in oats and barley Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, and prices displayed a good tone at the close. Rye prices also advanced.

Demand for coarse grains came from shipper accounts, with liberal hedging sales well taken. Trading speeded up as the session proceeded.

Demand in rye was stimulated by reported overnight export business and by gains at Chicago. Some buying was attributed to houses with shipping connections. Local commission houses also were on the buying side. Hedging here, too, was well taken. Flax trade was inactive.

In the export business, 500,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were allocated to the United Kingdom under the long-term agreement, while reports indicated 450,000 bushels of Canadian rye was sold for export overnight to Switzerland. Class two wheat prices advanced two cents from Thursday.

May Turn On Water In Children's Pool

Water may be turned on in the children's wading pool at King Edward Park within a week or so, and for the first time this summer, if pressure in the mains improves.

A letter from Jack Dane of the Recreation Commission appealed to the Utilities Commission Friday in behalf of the youngsters of that part of the south end.

The Kiwanis Club pool has been kept dry since water pressures around the city dropped to embarassing weakness early in June. Mr. Dane suggested that the pool be put into use for one hour in the mornings, afternoon and evenings for the comfort and fun of the young folks.

"I think we had better wait until we see what the results are from the completion of the new 24-inch main," Ross Dobbin suggested. "Armar Butcher, the parks superintendent, has reported occasions when some of the children plug the outlet of the pool with towels and paper, causing the pool to overflow on to the park."

Mr. Dane's letter was held up for a week or ten days.

Little Wind Or Rain!

Despite the beating rain which descended Friday afternoon James Harrison, official weather recorder, reports that the total rainfall was .21 inches—or less than a quarter of an inch. Citizens who were wading up to their ankles in running water on main thoroughfares and up to their knees in flooded basements find this hard to believe. The explanation is that the Filtration Plant, where the recording apparatus is located, did not feel the main impact of either the wind or the rain. In fact, James Harrison of the Filtration Plant reports that the rain there was rather gentle, and the wind slight. During the main 35 minutes of the freak storm only .15 inches fell at the Filtration Plant. In other parts of the city the depth and fierceness of the rain depend on who is telling the story.

Float The Pipes? Fancy Idea

Just ordinary and unpretentious fellows, especially along paths uncertain to them, the Utilities Commissioners are sceptical of Ross Dobbin's idea for floating the iron pipe into position for the Burnham's Point crossing.

The Dobbin solution for this water job, a tough category, is to weld the lengths of iron together, plug the ends; exhaust the air; then float the pipe line over the trench that has been dug for it in the bed of the river; gradually let in air to sink the iron main to the bottom.

"If it was an oil drum you know it would float," Mr. Dobbin said.

"But this is an iron pipe," George Macdonald said, probably expressing the doubts of the Commission.

They are dubious about the buoyancy of the vacuumized jointed iron pipe. Mr. Dobbin had little to say about it. Possibly his attitude was simply that it was a matter of fact or at least of confident expectation.

Three WI's Combine In Warkworth Meeting

WARKWORTH, July 30. — (ENS).—The monthly meeting of the White School Women's Institute was held in the Norham community centre, when the members of the Codrington and Percy branches were the guests.

Mrs. Owen Finlay, president of White school W.I., called the meeting to order. Mrs. W. A. Moran, president of Codrington W.I., and Mrs. Oscar Laver, president of Percy branch, were invited to the platform. After singing the Institute Ode and repeating the Creed, the roll call was answered by "Why I am a member of the W.I."

The White school branch decided to donate a special prize to the Percy Agricultural Society.

On behalf of the White school branch, Mrs. Owen Finlay welcomed the visitors to the meeting.

Mrs. W. A. Moore announced the following program for the Codrington branch: Song and dance by the O'Houlihan sisters; reading by Mrs. George Puddephatt; piano duet by Carol Babcock and Ann Moran.

Mrs. Oscar Laver announced the following program for the Percy branch; reading by Mrs. Oscar Laver; contest by Mrs. W. Shaw and Mrs. Floyd Finlay of White school was the winner.

Moved by Mrs. Oscar Laver, seconded by Mrs. W. A. Moran, that a hearty vote of thanks be extended to White school for their hospitality.

The meeting adjourend with singing the National Anthem.

Lunch was served by the hostesses.

Who Missed It?

"Has anybody missed the street flusher?" R. L. Dobbin asked the members of the Utilities Commission Friday. It dawned on Gordon Matthews, George Macdonald and Fred Hills that the absence of this unit of street cleaning department had been escaping their attention since the water regulations went into effect. Ald. Jim Gillespie, sanitation chairman, would probably argue that the flusher habit accounted for the tidiness of Peterborough streets that impresses visitors.

FLORAL CASUALTIES

The petunias, geraniums, phlox and the other beauties of the garden were recovering this morning from the cuffing of wind anf rain Friday. Toll of torn petals was heavy, but new buds were ready to fill the gaps in the fragrant ranks.

Cold Outlook For Coal This Winter

Who wants to worry about next winter's coal supply when the thermometer is chinning itself over the 90-mark? Well, local householders should give some thought to the fuel picture, according to coal dealers.

The situation is not one to engender optimism, they declare. A probable coal shortage is in the cards as well as a boost in price.

Here is the way one dealer summed it up: Already the American mines are 8,000,000 tons behind schedule; many of the companies under the whip-cracking of John L. Lewis have cut the work week to three days and existing supplies are drained away.

Effect of Work Cut

The question is: How are these 8,000,000 tons to be made up even if the normal work week is restored in the near future.

The scene is more confused because contract terms with Lewis' miners have not been arrived at, and increased wages either in the form of money or social security measures are almost bound to ultimately affect the purse of the consumer.

Despite a drop in price per ton during the early summer months to induce early buying, the average householder just doesn't seem interested, this dealer explained. The mining companies do not want to shut down and when the coal is not shipped out it is stock-piled.

Reduced Stock Pile

When it came time for this year's contract negotiations the miner's president, John L. Lewis, felt he would have a better bargaining lever if the stock pile was lower, and thus the cut-back in production, the dealer said.

Production was not above normal and the deficit will have to be made up some way or both Canada and the United States face a shortage, he added.

According to this same source, Canadian dealers bought less this year than last because they found they were stuck with some coal after early purchases in 1948. Consequently there is a smaller tonnage on hand in Canadian yards than usual.

Get your coal supply as soon as possible seems to be the consensus of dealer opinion.

Sliding Price Scale

"The situation will be tough this winter," said still another coal retailer. "Travellers tell me if the miners work steadily from now on there still won't be enough."

Another explanation regarding price was offered. In May, 25 cents drops off the regular retail price of standard-size furnace coal to induce purchases. This makes it $22 a ton. As the summer progresses the coal companies begin to tack on an extra 10 cents a ton every few weeks. The retailer absorbs this until the original 25 cents is passed and then he passes it along to the consumer.

Coal cheaper this winter? Not a chance, say the Peterborough retailers who should know.

So there's a chilling thought though perhaps an unwelcome one despite the sweltering heat.

Elmer The Bull Dead After 21 Days Prisoner Vitamin Meal Can't Make Up 600-Lb. Loss

SWOOPE, Va., July 30.—(AP). —Elmer the bull is dead. Twenty-one days' imprisonment in a railroad culvert pipe were more than his Angus heart could stand.

The end came quietly Friday night shortly after Elmer's vitamin-plus dinner.

"He ate real well. I can't understand it. We thought he was getting well," said Elmer's modest owner who has declined the use of his name in connection with Elmer's story.

Elmer topped the scales at 900 pounds when he stumbled into the pipe about a month ago, apparently to escape the heat.

He was rescued last week by railroad workers—a 300-pound shadow of his former self.

Then came the best that money could buy to help Elmer in his fight for life.

Vitamins, eggs, milk, then some sure enough oats—and it looked as if Elmer would make the grade.

Elmer died under the canvas shield they had rigged for his comfort in the pasture.

The State Department said the consulate for some time has been prepared to make an "equitable" settlement known to be acceptable to more than half the claimants. But it has refrained from submitting the proposal at the official request of the Aliens Affairs Bureau.

"Responsibility for the present incident therefore is clearly attributable to the lack of effective action on the part of the Aliens Affairs Bureau and to the utter failure of the police to afford protection to the consulate general or maintain even a semblance of what the civilized world regards as minimum standards of discipline and order," said the report.

Car Accidents During Storm

During the height of the storm three cars were involved in a collision on Clonsilla Avenue. The first car went off the road and into the ditch, as the blinding rain beat down. A wrecker was summoned and started to pull the car out of the ditch, when two other cars approached the scene. The rear car skidded as brakes were applied and ran into the car in front.

Constable Jack Morrow was supervising removal of the ditched car while Constable H. W. Andrew flagged traffic along the partly blocked highway.

Vincent Crough, King Street, Millbrook, was driving towards the city and slowed down his car when he came to the wrecker. John B. Raine, 192 Hunter Street West, was driving behind Mr. Crough and also applied his brakes. His car skidded and the front crashed into the trunk of Mr. Crough's car. A bruised knee for Mrs. Raine, who was travelling with her husband, was the only personal injury, but the grill front bumper, hood and a front fender of Mr. Raine's car were damaged. The trunk door of Mr. Crough's car was pushed in.

The Dangers Of A Holiday Weekend

Today we begin another holiday weekend. There will be thousands of cars on the roads, for great numbers of people are going on their holidays, and many more will be out for day trips to beaches, to summer cottages and to picnics. In addition this is the peak season for the largest tourist traffic in the history of this province.

* * *

The last holiday weekend was that of Dominion Day. There were eight people killed on the roads of Ontario during that weekend, and there were many other accidents which did not bring death, but which were bad enough. Unless every driver on the road uses unaccustomed caution this weekend, there will be a worse story to tell on Tuesday.

* * *

The Minister of Highways has made a special plea for caution this weekend. We add our entreaty to his. There are very few unavoidable accidents.

The Dangers of Automatic Licensing Of Cars

We learn with interest that the city of Vancouver demands a compulsory mechanical examination of all cars within its limits every six months. It is also interesting to learn that two out of every three cars manufactured before 1935 fail to pass the test. At the last inspection there were 1,229 cars in this category, and 836 of them were ordered off the streets until they had been put into condition. More than half those rejected had faulty headlights; one out of three had inefficient steering machinery; three out of four had inefficient brakes. Presumably all of these cars passed an earlier inspection, and had acquired the troubles which barred them from the roads within six months.

There seems to us to be great virtue in the Vancouver scheme. It would be a nuisance and it would be costly to introduce it into Ontario. But would it be as costly as a number of bad accidents, and the loss of several lives? There are a lot of old cars on the roads in Ontario, and they are probably in no better mechanical condition than those on the West Coast. Time and again accidents are reported which are attributable to the mechanical inefficiency of old cars which, in an awkward situation, are incapable of responding as they should. All too often the old car escapes unscathed, and it is another car which is struck, or side-swiped, or overturned. And very often these old cars are not insured.

There are many respects in which our attitude toward cars and drivers is primitive and unsatisfactory. We license any driver who can pass a very simple test, thereby permitting him to whizz along the roads in a machine weighing perhaps two tons. We license any car upon payment of a fee, without enquiring about its mechanical condition. And then we groan about our high incidence of accidents! More care in licensing, and a six-months mechanical check would do a great deal to reduce our accident record.

The Western Arctic

Reading can transport one from the burden and even the heat of the day. We have been reading a government brochure and have been transported as one seldom is by government publications full of facts and figures. Too, this one, Canada's Western Arctic is full of interest and cool pictures of Eskimos, snow, and far-flung Canadian islands like Prince of Wales, King William, Victoria, and the less regal Banks. Those are the four main islands included in the Western Arctic. The brochure is a reprint from the Canadian Geographical Journal of an article therein by J. Lewis Robinson.

Canadians should acquaint themselves better with their vast northern portals which are really more than doors, since nearly half of Canada lies north of the sixteenth parallel. Summer is the best time to develop the acquaintanceship, either by actual travel to the area, for it is not then frost-bound, or by reading, for then people in southern heat can receive relief vicariously by letting their minds and imaginations take wing to the Arctic. As a matter of fact the relief may be illusory for we read that although the Western Arctic is continuously cold throughout the winter (the average mean temperature at Cambridge Bay in February is 27 degrees below zero, and the average winter minimum at Coppermine is 48 degrees below zero), Cambridge Bay has had a maximum summer temperature of 75, and Coppermine has recorded an extreme of 87. That is as hot as Peterborough was this week.

There is another illusion to shatter. The Western Arctic, cold and remote as it is, is not as cold in winter, nor knows the extreme rigours of frost, of the Mackenzie Valley, the Yukon, the northern Prairies, and even Northern Ontario.

And what is this Western Arctic of ours? Map-makers, geologists and topographers divide Canada's northland into the Yukon, the Mackenzie Valley, the Eastern Arctic, the Northern Arctic Islands, and the Western Arctic. If one were to place a short-handled hay fork on a large map of Canada, with the base of the handle at Regina, and the parting of the prongs a foot (a couple of hundred miles) above the Northern mainland there, the area between the prongs would be the Western Arctic. North and east of that area are the Northern Arctic Islands which are above the magnetic North Pole. By the Eastern Arctic the initiated mean the very large area around and north of Hudson Bay. The Western Arctic is completely treeless, being north of the tree-line. It is mostly tundra and mostly flat as a Shrove-Tuesday pancake.

We could write of its history—Samuel Hearne was the first white man to enter the region, in 1771. Transportation into it is generally from the south and west, by the way, and there is little intercourse between the Western Arctic and the Eastern Arctic. We could write of the geology and topography of the ice conditions, mineral and other natural resources (which may be fabulous—no one knows), of the reindeer, fur production and population (there is a total of less than fifty white residents at the ten tiny post settlements in the vast region and a small Eskimo population of fewer than 2,000). But Mr. Robinson has done that for us in his article. It is much pleasanter to contemplate the Western Arctic than to set down its facts and figures in full Southern Ontario summer.

The publication Canada's Western Arctic may be had from the Information Division of the Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa, for the asking.

The Centenary Of The Safety Pin

On the authority of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch we inform our readers that the safety pin was invented in 1849 by Walter Hunt, and that this year is therefore the centenary of that useful article. We have been unable to check this information; no book in our possession reveals anything about the safety pin. However, we think that the St. Louis paper probably knows what it is talking about.

We do know a little about Walter Hunt. He was a New Yorker and a Quaker, and he was an inventor of some note, although he never became rich through his ingenuity. Perhaps his most remarkable stroke of genius was his invention of an early type of sewing-machine; he appears to have lost interest in it, and never manufactured it, but he certainly made a workable sewing-machine. There is a pretty story that he abandoned his invention because his daughter told him that it would cost thousands of poor seamstresses their jobs. We take leave to doubt this; Hunt must have known that seamstresses worked for miserable wages, under shocking conditions.

Stitch, stitch, stitch,
In poverty, hunger and dirt—

It was thus that Thomas Hood described the seamstress' life. Any machine which would have delivered them from this bondage, increasing their wages by increasing their production, would have been a godsend, and Hunt must have known it.

Hunt also is credited with the invention of the paper collar, the advantage of which was that it could be laundered with a bit of india rubber, and thrown away when it was past reclaim; it gave place in time, to the celluloid collar, which could be laundered with spit and which lasted forever. Of all Hunt's inventions only the safety pin remains. He is said to have received $400 for all rights to it.

It is a noble monument to his memory. We have all put our trust in it, at one time or another. If you value it, spare a kind thought for Walter Hunt.

Of Cabbages And Kings

By PETER ELIOT

TO illustrate how the English-speaking traveller's ignorance of foreign languages often leads to ridiculous misunderstandings, the Earl of Meath, relates several amusing stories in his charming Memories of the Twentieth Century. There was this uncle of his, whose strong point was certainly not a knowledge of the French language and who was somewhat impatient at being offered by a waiter dishes which he did not want. "Enough!" he barked, "I don't want anything more." Upon which the waiter thinking he had said, "Un oeuf," brought him an egg. Still more indignant, the uncle shouted, "Did I not say, enough?" Another egg was brought him—and then he rose in his anger and said again, "Enough, enough, enough!!!" "Tres bien, monsieur, mais voila des oeufs. Combien en plus desirez vous?"

❖ ❖ ❖

THEN there is the story of the two English brothers in a Paris hotel, one of which suffered indignities even worse than that of the apoplectic uncle at the hands of these barbarians who couldn't even understand a word of English, (which of course is the only respectable language, but that is foreigners for you, and one must travel in these unenlightened lands sometimes), but apparently not even his own unfortunate tongue. One of the brothers, it seems, desired to stroll on the boulevards, and anxious that the fire should not be allowed to go out, and subject the other, who had elected to remain in the room and read, to a chill, called an attendant and said, (in perfect accent, of course) "Garcon, ne laisse; pas sortir ce fou la." (Don't let that Idiot out). The waiter nodded knowingly and said, "Tres bien." How was the departing brother to know that he had misunderstood "fou" for "feu." At any rate the attendant had the best of intentions and was determined to see that the idiot by the fire did not leave the room, so he locked the door. Deciding this was a bit thick, the imprisoned gentleman endeavored to break out; but the more violent he became, the more the hotel staff, summoned to cope with the lunatic, restrained him, until his brother returned from his walk and explained the mistake.

A British officer walking in Paris brushed up accidentally against a French officer, according to another of the Earl's collection of stories, and wishing to apologize, turned around and in his brusque English manner said to the Frenchman, "je l'ai fait par mepris" (scorn). He meant "meprise" (mistake). Thereupon the French officer slapped the Englishman's face, thinking the latter had said he had done it in scorn. Happily some better linguists than these two gallant soldiers interfered, and the threatened duel did not take place.

ANDRE Maurois' From My Journal is a pleasant excursion with the talented creator of General Bramble and biographer of Disraeli, Byron, Lysutey, and many others. He found a fresh delight in a variety of experiences in many places, with many people. For example, there was the day in the New York taxi. The cab driver, turning on his radio, asked him, "Recognize that?"

"No," said Maurois.

"First movement of the Brahms Second," the driver said.

❖ ❖ ❖

WHILE teaching at the University of Kansas, he spent much time with his friend Henry Haskell, the editor of the Kansas City Star, and a first-class raconteur. One entry read: "Henry Haskell tells anecdotes about Coolidge, that amazing President of the United States with a touch of elf and a touch of clown in his make-up. Coolidge knew that his brevity of speech was amusing; he purposely made a game out of being himself. To a banker, the party treasurer, who urged him to open an account in his bank, adding, 'It would be a great honor, Mr. President,' Coolidge replied after a long silence, 'Yes, make me an honorary depositor!"

❖ ❖ ❖

AT the end of his term, a national magazine offered him a fabulous price to write a few articles. Coolidge wrote them, then sent in one written by his wife. The editor did not print this last article, but nevertheless sent the usual cheque. A few days later Coolidge invited the editor to have breakfast with him at a New York hotel.

"You didn't print Grace's article," he said.

"No. We thought it was a little late, coming after your own articles."

"Then," said Coolidge, "we don't want your cheque." And he returned the huge sum to the editor, who was embarassed but, on the whole pleased.

Then Coolidge examined the breakfast bill.

"A dollar fifty," he said. "You owe me seventy-five cents."

❖ ❖ ❖

ALL who knew him liked that strange little man, mixture of Puck and Joseph Prudhomme. His personality is well known to the American public through countless stories and anecdotes. Hugh Wilson includes one in his autobiography that fits in so well with the conception usually held of the President, that we will include it. Wilson had been sent by the Secretary of State to see the President about a statement that he was anxious to make to the press, hoping that it would do away with a good deal of resentment which the French entertained because of the American attitude to the war debt. When he entered the Oval Room at the White House, Mr. Coolidge was smoking a cigar and looking out of the window. Wilson stood there. The President continued to smoke the cigar and look out of the window. At last Wilson sat down. He waited for the President to speak. He didn't. Whereupon he stated his case and read the statement.

Without removing the cigar or looking elsewhere than out of the window, Coolidge at last said, "No, I don't want to please the French."

Wilson got up, bowed and said "Good day, Mr. President." He had hardly got his hand on the door when the dry voice said, "What's the hurry? Come back here."

Wilson obeyed, and the voice went on, "State the case again."

❖ ❖ ❖

WILSON again obeyed, stating it to the best of his ability. Again silence from the President, who still smoked his cigar and looked out of the window. Uneasy, Wilson again made for the door, was again recalled by Mr. Coolidge demanding to know why he was in such a hurry. So again he sat down, kept silent and after what seemed an interminable time he heard, "All right, have it your own way."

"This time, I got out of the door successfully," said Wilson.

Letters To The Editor

THE RICH HERITAGE OF THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND

Sir,—Whilst spending a few days in Cobourg I had the pleasure of reading your paper and was attracted by your editorial, "The Church of England in Canada," and heartily agree with your views regarding the suggested change of name which, if adopted, would eliminate the word England.

In the course of your editorial there appears: "The old name implies a degree of dependance on English thought and English ways which has no place in our country." To those who hold that view may I suggest that they abolish all English thought and ways in their church services and substitute therefore something purely Canadian.

This would only mean the discarding of the Book of Common Prayer with all its beauty of language, the Hymn Book and to be consistent, the English language.

It is perhaps too bad that the Translators of the Bible into the language used by Canadians (except those of Quebec) were Englishmen and that about 75% of the hymns sung in churches of all denominations are the work of Englishmen, as are the musical compositions that accompany them. Even many of the paraphrases of the Psalms as found in the Scottish Psalter are by Englishmen, notably John Milton and Isaac Watt. The most widely used Christmas and Easter hymns are those written by Charles Wesely, co-founder of Methodism.

So long as the English language prevails in Canada and so long as English inspired hymns are sung in Canadian churches, English thought and English ways will be powerful and profound parts of Canadian culture and religious thinking and the elimination of the name England will not alter the fact one iota. I am a Wesleyan Methodist by birth, inclination and conviction, but I respect the Church of England in Canada as elsewhere. The name England is an honored one and any institution, whether sacred or secular that embodies it in its title gains prestige by so doing.

To use the product of a man's brain and labor whilst refusing to give credit where due cannot be accounted a creditable act by the user.

EDWIN ELAND,
Mimico, Ont.

KEEP THE ASSOCIATION

Sir,—Many thanks for your remarks on the Church of England! Are we to lose all association with the mother country?

Sincerely,
A. A. BLACKWELL.

A WORD TO THOSE WHO FAILED

Sir: I have read with interest your editorial and letters re Failures in Examinations, and would be pleased if you would add these few lines of mine:

Have just read both of your letters
And sincerely hope the children will hereafter do much better
It seems too bad so many should fail
But shows, parties and sports, receive all the gain.
It can't be all the teachers' fault,
For some of them have always taught.
So all you chilren take good heed
Or dunce's caps will be your meed.
So Mom and Dad should take stern warning
And make the children do more conning.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then Paul stood in the midst of Mars' hill, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious. For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you.

God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things; and hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation; that they should seek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us. (Acts 17:22-27.)

And I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God....And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power; that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.

Howbeit we speak wisdom among them that are perfect; yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought; but we speak the wisdom of God is a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory. (I Co. 2:1,4-7.)

An Editor Learns Caution

Edmonton Journal

Thoroughly chastened, we are inclined to observe the greatest caution in commenting on the weather. On Saturday, we had a piece in these columns headed "When a Real Scorcher Hits." Hardly had the presses begun to roll before the worst rain and hail storm in Edmonton history hit the city.

However, we cannot resist talking about the awe-inspiring if excessively moist spectacle. In a mere two hours, the drought had been drowned in more than two inches of rainfall. The experts who deal in such things estimate that eight million tons of water, including the frozen-into-hailstones variety, had fallen in Edmonton in two hours and nine minutes. We like that "nine minutes."

And there is the little matter of temperature; on Saturday morning we were all wondering if the mercury would climb into the nineties again—and in four hours it had fallen about forty degrees!

Regatta season, starting last Wednesday, is in full swing, an indication that the campers' summer has reached its peak. It is also the season when racial prejudice raises its nasty head between white men and their red brothers, both Canadian. Without pointing a finger at any place, group or persons, a fictitious story will serve to tell of the situation.

WILLIAM WOODUCK, B.Sc., an electrical engineer, comes back to spend his vacation with his family at Arrowhead Reserve; he and his people are Mississauga Indians; he is a war Veteran and a science graduate of one of our better universities. He and his family are also recipients of Treaty Money. It was always the tradition with his family to attend the regatta at ROCKY LAKE to participate in water events for the very fun of it. The racial background of woods and lakes is strong in William and his present way of life is made tolerable with the thought of enjoying them for two weeks each summer.

Indian Flotilla Regattaward

He, with several outboard boatloads of relatives and friends, leave for the big Event early in the morning for they have a long way to go. It is bright and clear with fluffy thermal clouds sailing slowly in a moderate west breeze, regatta weather at its best. As the flotilla drives along through winding rocky channels it is joined by more and more boatloads of people towing strings of canoes. Everyone waves at everyone else, a democratic scene that would gladden the hearts of the Big Men of the United Nations Council.

The regatta course finally comes into view around a sharp rocky point. Small water craft in hundreds are tied to the Government Wharves, others are darting to and fro between skimming sailboats. Important people with binnoculars and megaphones stand on the deck of a large mahogany cruiser ironing out last minute race details. The hearts of WILLIAM WOODUCK and his people flutter with excitement, with anticipation of joining some of the events. They used to be good at paddling but the use of outboards over the past few years had made some of them rusty.

William and his people found space to park somewhere and pushed through the crowds to find the entries clerk, an insignificant young man in sun helmet and smoked glasses. William reached him first and before he could open his mouth to ask about the events he was given a fishy stare and a curt rebuff: "INDIAN, EH? —professionals are not allowed in this regatta."

Such a show of discourtesy and bad sportsmanship floored William. He, who had played football and was accepted as equal at college, was barred from traditional sports that his people gave the white race in the first place . . . a poor business, this.

Flourishing And Busy Chamber

The Lakefield Chamber of Commerce tourist inquiry booth is going great guns under the supervision of MR. AND MRS. BILL O'BRIEN. From the opening date, June 27, for the next 19 days, inquiries on their business log totalled 2,274. Some of the more numerous were as follows: about accommodation 425, where to buy a drink 225, roads, resorts and district direction 220, bait 187, bus schedules 190, milk 165, road maps 139, and away down the list, antiques 12. There were also three complaints against resort conditions. It is hoped that the excellent service they are giving district resort operators will result in a 100-percent membership in the Lakefield C of C before the booth opens in 1950. After all, operators are pretty shrewd business people and should need little arm-twisting on the matter.

Scoreboard In Home Waters

Muskies are making the news for the past week with results dwindling in ratio to the muggy spell and warming water. Starting at CROWE LAKE, north of Highway 7, between Havelock and Marmora, Harold Russell comes through with a 33-pounder followed by Roger Peckinpaugh of Cleveland Indians fame with a 40-incher; Elwin Bliss, Fillmore, NY, guest at Tipperary House took a 14-pound 'lunge and Harry Monsell of Ottawa, Marble Point Lodge, caught several pickerel, the largest scaling 9½ and seven pounds. Working west along the TRENT RIVER, Stewart Anderson, Weirton, W. Va., landed a 32-pound 'lunge with the aid of fellow-townsman Jack Birkhimer, just north of Frankford; their efficient landing device, a net fashioned from suspension lines of a parachute. On our own OTONABEE RIVER, five miles below the Locks Bridge, Harold Campbell and Bill Franks snagged as nice a pair of fighters as you could hope to see, 19½ and 16½ pounds; Fred Campbell guided them to the spots, one mile apart. IN THE HEART OF THE CITY, Joe Micolucci kept up his reputation by taking a 16-pound muskie from in front of George St. Wharf. Trout are still being caught in CAVAN as Hugh Blair can prove with a five-pound, seven-ounce brown taken in the Millbrook Stream. Green bass are causing all the excitement this week at CHEMONG LAKE; 6½-pounders were landed by Charles Gardner in Tyndall's Bay and by Norman Moore at Long Point, one each. CURVE LAKE gets in the picture for a change when Elizabeth Foster of Friendship, NY, battled with a 21-pound muskie, and landed it; she was a guest of Whetung's Fishing Lodge. Jack Shipway of Toronto made a four-in-one haul at Rockcroft on MISSISSAUGA LAKE; his 8¾-pound lake trout yielded three black bass, ten and eight-inchers and a third partly digested.

FISHING AFIELD

For a while it looked as though our 35-pound Rice Lake 'lunge would make a sizeable target for muskie fishermen to shoot at. That is all shot now. A news service story and picture showed Cal Johnston, editor of an American outdoor magazine with a 'lunge 67 POUNDS, EIGHT OUNCES taken from a WISCONSIN lake; it was 60½ inches long and outweighed the world's standing record, so far, by three pounds. THAT should top it for all times; they just can't come much bigger. Dr. E. J. Jensen of Chicago is trying, however, when he hauled in a 40-pound 'lunge near Mudge's Camp on RAINY LAKE, 30 miles east of Kenora. North of this on MANITOU LAKE, W. S. Praeger of Detroit took two fighters, 31 and 28 pounds and Joe Hart of Napiersville, Ill., another weighing 30, in the same lake. They didn't do as well as ten-year-old Jimmie Cole of Keswick who landed a 32-pound 'lunge in LAKE SIMCOE. Muskies are scaling 24 pounds for Emil Hoffman of Buffalo and George Oetundsen of Connecticut at WEST LAKE in Prince Edward County and in PICTON BAY, Lake Ontario, Albert Cooper of Glenora trapped an 88-pound sturgeon in his nets.

The OLD GUIDE & TRAPPER — Stay Out Of The Red

Shakespeare On Mt. Royal Open Air Summer Theatre

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press)

William Shakespeare's penchant for taking to the woods is responsible for Montreal's Open Air Playhouse atop Mount Royal.

The Bard set many of his comedies in forests and for three summers, Playhouse has been taking Montreal audiences out under the stars and transporting them to Shakespearian glades and dells.

This year, Playhouse is presenting "Much Ado About Nothing" at the impressive natural amphitheatre beside tiny Beaver lake in the city-owned park capping Mount Royal. The big, grassy stage is dotted with pine trees and the actors make their entrances from leafy wings. The audience sits on chairs on a gravelled, natural slope and behind the stage, a massive natural rock formation makes a solid backdrop.

Rosanna Seaborn, the Montreal girl who is one of the founders of Playhouse and who takes the leading role of Beatrice, says

If your descent is from heroic sires,
Show in your life a remnant of their fires.
—Bolleau (1636-1711)

Shakespeare is strictly for low brows. "Much Ado" is entertainment, with a touch of art.

Playhouse was founded two years ago by Miss Seaborn, actress Mary Douglas, critic Herbert Whittaker and producer Malcolm Morley. They took one look at the Mount Royal amphitheatre and cried "Shakespeare!" Then they organized the Playhouse, which draws most of its supporting cast from the Montreal Repertory Theatre.

Miss Seaborn, guiding light of Playhouse, is a petite, vivacious and attractive former professional actress who learned her drama in London and New York.

Whittaker, former drama critic for the Montreal Gazette who also was active in production and writing in Montreal dramatic groups, worked with Playhouse during its first two productions. Early this year he went to Toronto as drama critic for the Globe and Mail. He designed Miss Seaborn's costumes for "Much Ado".

Director Morley is a Briton who now lives in Ottawa. A former Dominion Drama adjudicator, he is principally interested in experimental production techniques.

"Playhouse has some fascinating problems," he says. "The big, 60-foot-wide stage, with its flies and backdrops of pine trees and bushes, presents a challenge to a director. One big difficulty is projecting the voices of the actors in the open air. We manage that by a row of microphones set in the ground along the footlights. Voices are picked up and projected through a public address system."

It is the customary fate of new truths to begin as heresies and to end as superstitions.
—T. H. Huxley (1825-1895)

Oh yes, there's the question of mosquitoes—

The management says you don't have to worry about them at Playhouse.

The area is sprayed with DDT before performances.

Parking, Petting Parties Prevalent, But Not Unduly

By JACK BROWN

Most of the red-blooded youths of the city and probably of the district have heard more than once the hard voice of an officer of the law saying, "All right, move along, move along." And by far the majority of them start the car and sheepishly move on.

Habits of the younger generation change very little, it seems, and the police regard it as just another job to keep the lovers moving. Armour Hill (no pun; Armour is named after the Rev. Samuel Armour, first Anglican clergyman in Peterborough, and is not a corruption of the French word amour) is still the gathering-place for all sorts and models of cars. The River Road and almost every other back road where there is a little seclusion and less light is used by the swains and their girls.

LORD NANCY
To have a thing is nothing, if you've not the chance to show it,
And to know a thing is nothing, unless others know you know it.
—(Source unknown)

The city police move the cars only when the circumstances demand it. That is, if it is late at night, or there have been any disturbances, or any drinking, they ask the cooing couple to go home.

Provincial Police, on the other hand, leave the lovers alone as long as there are no evidences of drinking or indecent exposure, and as long as they are off the travelled portion of the road. They patrol the River Road regularly, and as a general rule do not bother anyone.

A few years ago it was considered fun by a few younger fellows who were without girls to go up on a hill in a dark car with a spotlight on it, and clean out the lovers themselves. One or two trips a night were sufficient to discourage even the most ardent lover.

Summer is the best time for the petting parties. In winter, it's too cold to sit on the top of a breezy hill.

City police find that the parked cars are most numerous after the middle of the week, and on the weekend, and particularly on a holiday. "Blue" Mondays and Tuesday show a scarce crop, and Wednesday. At holiday time with locale shifts, and probably more resorts and dancing pavilions, the freedom from prying eyes is found.

The general attitude of the public seems to be to let the lovers alone, that you can't change human nature. But there are always those who spoil it for others.

An example is the four who were jumping the gun about ten days ago on the River Road. They apparently couldn't wait for the sun to go down, and were most ardently embracing in plain view of the hundreds of passers-by.

In short, it's going on all the time on all the back roads of the district, and as long as the participants leave liquor alone and do not publicly offend against civic decorum, they won't be bothered too much.

Carving Skill Was Basis Of Union Issue Coin, Stamp

By JOE MACSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Newfoundland tailor with a highly-developed hobby played a part in giving Canada what is perhaps her most popular design in stamps and coins.

Ernest Maunder, 58-year-old tailor, fashioned a model of the discovery ship Matthew in his spare moments while his grandchildren played about his feet.

The model — built in memory of the vessel in which John Cabot sailed to the New World — became the photographic basis of a stamp and silver dollar to commemorate Newfoundland's entry into Canada as the 10th province.

Of all the creatures that creep, swim, or fly,
Peopling the earth, the waters, and the sky,
From Rome to Iceland, Paris to Japan,
I really think the greatest fool is man.
—Bolleau (1636-1711)

Maunder, who sailed on square-riggers in his youth, never knew when he worked on the Matthew that his craftsmanship would receive such nation-wide attention. His purpose at the time was to provide a model for the Newfoundland Historical Society for Discovery Day observances in 1947. He was assisted by James Peet and Clayton Rose.

Then, when Confederation came along, the Canadian government called on the affable tailor to help in producing a stamp to mark the event. All Maunder had to do was take a picture of his model — fully rigged with sails in a brisk breeze upon a lawn. Because he is a former correspondent for the Associated Press, the picture-taking was a simple matter.

Postal craftsmen substituted a sea for the lawn, and superimposed Cape Bonavista, where Cabot is believed to have landed, in the back-ground and the result was the Confederation stamp.

Then the finance department copied the idea for a silver dollar. It is probable that the stamp and the dollar will be valuable collector's items in days to come. The model is on display in the Government House here.

Something of a collector himself, Maunder's three-storey house is littered with art pieces—ranging from the creative efforts of Eskimos to a piece of the rudder from the famous mutiny ship Bounty.

This is not to mention his own work. He has fashioned at least 100 models of ships, including Nova Scotia's ill-fated racing schooner Bluenose, itself the design of a Canadian coin.

His Matthew model was constructed from blueprints supplied by E. J. Claridge of Bristal, England, from which Cabot sailed in 1497. Maunder has high praise for Claridge's research in tracking down the details of the Matthew's design.

The mutiny ship relic was obtained from no less a person than a descendant of the Bounty's first mate, "Mr. Christian," straight from Pitcairn Island in the South Pacific, where the Bounty came to grief more than 150 years ago.

The stamp, silver dollar and the collection all have come about because, as Maunder put it, "It's a good way to spend the time."

It paid of too. He got $500 from the Historical Society when the Matthew was built and another $50 from the postal department.

TAILOR'S HOBBY—The hobby of a Newfoundland tailor has given Canada what is perhaps her most popular design in stamps and coins. Some time ago Ernest Maunder, 58-year-old St. John's tailor, built a model of the Matthew, the ship used by John Cabot to sail to the New World. This model became the photographic basis of the design for a stamp and silver dollar commemorating the entry of the 10th province into confederation. Here Maunder is shown with his model.

"THE EARTH DOES NOT WITHHOLD, it is generous enough". So wrote Walt Whitman, and so it is proving to be this year, for despite early summer drought, the harvest is generous in quality, if not in quantity. Department of Agriculture officials say that the crop returns are much better than estimated a few weeks ago. Pictured above, are Harry Spence, Lakefield and Blanche Quinn, daughter of Howard Quinn, on whose Douro farm the picture was taken. —Examiner Staff Photo

Rugby Panthers Open Season September 10

Peterborough Panthers open their 1949 season in Oshawa September 10 against the Red Raiders. The two clubs are grouped with the same two other clubs as last year, Oakville and Orillia and are in the Eastern Ontario Intermediate ORFU bracket.

Home-and-home games will be played, giving each team a six-game schedule, three home and three away. The team finishing in first place in the group standing will enter the Intermediate A playoffs while the team that finishes second will plunge into the Intermediate B playdowns.

Peterborough's home games will be on September 17, with Orillia the opposition; September 24, Oshawa Red Raiders, and October 15, Oakville.

Practice Begins.

In Oshawa, the Red Raiders open its practices for the season in Alexander Park next Wednesday at 6:30. Coach Don Jones expects to have a large squad of players out battling for the team's positions. He is going to insist this year that the players attend the practices regularly. A Quarterback Club for former Oshawa rugby players and rugby enthusiasts will be formed.

Peterborough Panthers are deep in their dens just thinking of getting their claws on the pigskin for a victory. The next two weeks will see plenty of football action in Peterborough, a club member said.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

There was no bowling last evening, and we have been advised that the final games in the Selkirk Trophy will be held next Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Now about tonight. This is the night of the Family Hour tournament, and by now all of our bowlers know what that means. It is the best night of the week, and the most fun for the least money. Phone early—7:30 o'clock is the hour.

Tuesday night, August 2, Groups 1 and 2 of the men's schedule begin their season draw.

How about that entry for the Black Memorial mixed doubles tournament?

Today's thought: Money may be the husk of many things, but it is not the kernel.

Royals Bow To Bears In 8-5 Tilt

(By The Associated Press)

Bob Thurman, latest Negro to begin his organized baseball career in the International League, is off to a roaring start.

Purchased two days ago from Kansas City Monarchs, Thurman made his debut with Newark Bears Friday night and paced them to a 8-5 triumph over Montreal Royals.

The young outfielder glasted a homer and two singles and drove home two runs. He hit a 415-foot homer during a three-run fourth inning that tied the score at 5-5. The blow sailed over the centrefield fence and was the longest hit at the Bears' park since Dale Alexander cleared the scoreboard in the late 20s while playing for Toronto.

Bob Porterfield made his second start of the season and went four innings, bowing out for a pinch-hitter in the fourth. Glen Lierman, another newcomer, pitcher the last five frames, blanking the Royals on five hits to gain his first victory.

Drop Decision

The league-leading Buffalo Bisons dropped a 9-8 decision to the Jersey City Giants but remained two games in front of Rochester Red Wings who lost a 3-2 decision to Syracuse Chiefs.

Buffalo piled up a 6-0 lead but couldn't hold it, the Giants tying it at 7-7 in the sixth inning. Pete Pavlick socked his second homer of the game in the seventh with a man on to put the Giants in front to stay.

Lefty Harry Perkowski stopped Rochester on six hits in outdueling Johnny Yuhas and Johnny Grodzicki. The Chiefs nicked Yuhas for two runs in the fifth and another in the seventh.

Toronto Maple Leafs came from behind to down Baltimore Orioles 5-3 with a four-run, ninth-inning rally.

Chet Laabs doubled home Ed Sanicki and Johnny Blatnik with one out. A walk, single and error accounted for the other two runs. Al Widmar, seeking his 18th victory, was the victim of the Toronto uprising.

Alberta Wins Cricket Title

CALGARY, July 30.—(CP).—A game Alberta cricket eleven who unexpectedly wrested the Dominion championship from Ontario in the title tournament are the toast of Alberta sporting circles today.

The all-star team, recruited from Calgary and Edmonton, turned back the champions by a 155-run margin Friday to gain an unbeatable 22 points before the final matches, scheduled for today. Pre-game opinion was that either Ontario or British Columbia would come out with the championship.

The final games today, which pit the new champions against B.C., and Ontario against Manitoba, will merely decide the runners-up.

The point standings are: Alberta 22, British Columbia 15, Ontario 12 and Manitoba none.

In Friday's game, Alberta batters smashed through a well-planned Ontario defence to run up 243 runs, all out. Big guns were Pete Snell of Calgary and Captain J. V. Edwards of Edmonton. Working together, they put 104 runs on the board. Snell's 106, besides fulfilling his dream of scoring a century, was the top individual score of the tournament to date.

Ontario had 88, all out.

Softball Champ Play Begins With Cosmos

City softball championship play will start Tuesday night. The Cosmos wil play the Knights of Columbus in the first doubleheader of the week. Thursday the same teams will again play another doubleheader. The semi-final series is a four out of seven series. If other games are necessary to decide a winner, another doubleheader wil be played by the same teams Saturday night. Games start at 7 p.m.

If a winner is declared Thursday night, the winner will begin the finals for the city chompionship in a game with the Uniteds Saturday, who finished first in the league. The Outlaws and the Jewellers dropped out abruptly before the schedule was completely over. The final series will also be a best in seven affair also.

Marmora Wins 4-2 Against Norwood Nine

MARMORA, July 30—(ENS)—Marmora's TVL junior baseball team with George Mantle on the mound, won its league game against Norwood at the Recreational Centre Friday eevning by a score of 4-2.

It was a close game with Marmora leading at the end of the first by 3-1. A good number of spectators witnessed the tussle.

PADDLING ALONG—Rubbers would come in handy in the Amateur Athletic Association's seven-mile walking championship at London's White City Stadium. The race was won by defending champion H. G. Churcher of the Belgrave Harriers.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

The Dominion champion Calgary Stampeders' football stock got another nudge upward Thursday night when veteran fullback Paul Rowe turned out for practice.

Rowe, captain of the squad that beat Ottawa Rough Riders in last year's Grey Cup final, announced following that game he was retiring from the football wars.

Club officials said, however, he will occupy his old spot with the Stamps again this season.

Irishman Harry Bradshaw Friday turned the tables on Bobby Locke, his conqueror in the British Open, beating the South African by one stroke to win the Irish Open Golf Championship at Belfast.

It was a close squeak for Bradshaw, whose 72-hole score was 286 to Lockes 287.

Locke had beaten Bradshaw by 12 strokes in a 36-hole playoff for the British open earlier this month after they tied over the 72-hole route.

At Oslo, Norway, the United States track and field team Friday night climaxed an uphill climb by winning the "Little Olympics" and its accompanying decathlon competition.

The final point score was 238½ points to 224½ points over the combined Scandinavian squad which had led almost all the way through the three-night meet.

A return match with the Scandinavian team is scheduled for Minneapolis, Minn., in the fall of 1950.

Gus Lesnevich won his contractural freedom Friday to fight Ezzard Charles in New York Aug. 10, but lost any chance of being recognized in New York State as the world's heavyweight champion if he conquers the Cincinnati boxer.

The Charles - Lesnevich bout will be recognized as a championship match in 47 states, which are affiliated with or recognize the National Boxing Association.

Promoter Sam Becker, who threatened to prevent the contest through court action because of a prior claim on Lesnevich's services, relented Friday at Cincinnati, and told him to go ahead.

At the same time, however, the New York State Athletic Commission turned down a request that it recognize the winner as the world's champion. It proposed, however, that the victor fight the winner of the Lee Savold-Bruce Woodcock contest in London, Sept. 6, or some other outstanding contender.

The New York Commission does not recognize the NBA, with which Joe Louis, promoter of the Charles Lesnevich fight, is affiliated.

Carlyle McEwan, 19, of Westville, N. S., said Friday from his hospital bed in Yarmouth, N. S., that he did not know he was fighting the Maritime lightheavyweight champ when he went into the ring with Alvin Upshaw of Halifax Monday night at Cape Island.

McEwan collapsed in the early seconds of the 10th round and was taken to hospital.

In the seventh round, referee Gussie MacLellan announced he was calling the fight because he felt McEwan was in no condition to continue.

Promoter Mel Saab stepped into the ring and demanded the fight continue. He said his boy was "not hurt—just tired."

McEwan said he acepted the fight under the impression that Upshaw was a fighter on his way out and not the Maritime champ at the peak of his career.

It was McEwan's first professional fight. He had been in amateur bouts previously at Sudbury.

St. Louis, Dodgers Tie 3-3 Call Game After 9 Innings

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hail the clock—new chief umpire in the National League.

With two consecutive Brooklyn-St. Louis games called a tie by the time keeper, the man with the watch is becoming more important than the players.

Curfew struck at 2:18 a.m. EDT today at Sportsman's Park in St. Louis with the Dodgers and Cards locked in a 3-3 tie at the end of nine innings. National League rules say they can't start a new inning of a night game after 12:50 a.m. So extra innings were out of the question. A heavy pregame rain delayed start of the game for one hour and 28 minutes.

Brooklyn almost missed a chance to tie the score for they barely completed the eighth inning, with St. Louis holding a 3-2 edge, at 12:47 a.m. St. Louis time.

Howie Pollet, trying for his 14th win, had a shutout 3-0 at the end of seven innings with Nippy Jones and Marty Marion driving in the runs. A walk and successive singles by Carl Furillo, Jackie Robinson and Gil Hodges gave the Brooks two in the eighth. Ted Wilks came in to strike out pinch hitter Gene Hermanski to end the rally.

Load Bases

The Cards loaded the bases with one out in the eighth but Rex Barney replaced Jack Banta, second Dodger pitcher, and got out of trouble just in time to get the ninth inning started before the curfew.

On Monday this week the Dodgers and Cards played a 4-4 tie at Brooklyn when they stopped the game to let the teams catch a train to the west.

Herm Wehmeier, 22-year-old Cincinnati righthander, pitched his best game of the season to shut out New York with four hits, 3-0, in the only other National League game played. Wehmeier was in trouble only in the second when he allowed two hits and in the seventh when he walked three. It was his first major league shutout.

The loss dropped the Giants into a fourth-place tie with the idle Philadelphia Phils whose scheduled day game at Chicago was washed out. Pittsburgh and Boston played three innings of their night game at Forbes Field with Ralph Kiner's 28th homer with a man on giving the Pirates a 2-0 lead before a storm forced the game to be called on account of wet grounds.

Yanks Edge Chicago

Successive home runs by Johnny Lindell and Bill Johnson enabled New York Yankees to add a half-game to their American League lead with a 3-2 edge over Chicago while Cleveland split a day-night doubleheader at Boston.

Cleveland rebounded from a 2-1 afternoon defeat at Boston to smother the Red Sox in the night game, 9-3. The Tribe routed Chuck Stobbs, promising young lefthander, before he retired a man in a four-run first inning at night.

The Red Sox knocked out Gene Bearden in a three-run first inning but were tamed by Bobby Feller who finished up with his eighth victory.

Joe Dobson allowed only four hits in his afternoon triumph over Mike Garcia for Boston's fifth straight win. Dobson had a shutout until the eighth.

Connie Mack's surging Philadelphia's A's ran their win string to six, their longest of the year, by downing Detroit 5-3.

Eddie Joost saved the game with a vest pocket catch on Pat Mullin's "blooper" to short left with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth. Dick Fowler was credited with his 10th victory.

Cavanagh team at 6:15, while the Americans play the Kiwanis at 7:30 p.m.

On Tuesday night will be the only juvenile game of the week with the Firestone boys tangling with Silver's Shoes team at 6:30 in a four-pointer.

Also on Tuesday the United Electrical bantams will play the All Saints bantams between the periods of the Hamilton Tigers-Petes game. Kiwanis midgets play the T. J. Cavanagh midgets between periods of the Owen Sound-Petes games Friday night.

Lindsay Merchants Blast Trenton 11-3

LINDSAY, July 30—Combining a 15-hit attack with Lew Taggart's three-hit pitching, Lindsay Merchants blasted Trenton RCAF Repair Depot 11-3, in a one-sided Lakeshore Baseball League game. Lindsay took advantage of Sam Ellis' wildness to build a 7-0 lead in the first and continued to hammer the reliefer, Al Garrett. McTaggart who fanned 10, hurled one-hit ball until the seventh. Andy Widdis led Lindsay at bat with three safeties.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press.

Robot-like Byron Nelson clanked off with $10,200 four years ago today as he won the All-American Open Golf tournament with a record 72-hole score of 269—an amazing under par and 11 strokes ahead of a helpless field. It was the ninth triumph for Nelson during which string he maintained an average of 67.5 strokes for each 18-hole round.

Takles Too Hard

TIRONTO, July 30.—(CP).—Toronto Argonauts football team Friday night had its first mishap of the 1949 training season. Hard-hitting Rod Smylie, who can play either backfield or end wing, hit so hard with a tackle that he suffered a slight separation in the jaw. He was attended by his father, Dr. Rod Smylie, before he was taken to hospital for observation. His jaw will have to be wired to overcome the separation. It is expected he will be off the practice field for at least three weeks.

Farley Reaches Golf Finals

By The Canadian Press.

RIVERSIDE GOLF AND COUNTRY CLUB, SAINT JOHN, N. B., July 30)CP)—For the third consecutive year, the Canadian Amateur Golf Chompionship reached the finals today with a Canadian and an American in the title roles.

It was Phil Farley of Toronto who hasn't been in the final for 12 years, against Dick Chapman of Osterville, Mass., a newcomer to the Canadian competition.

In one of Friday's semi-final rounds at 35 holes of match play, Farley disposed of Tommy Riddell of Montreal by 2 and 1. Dick Chapman was carried to the home hole in the second semi-final before he could get rid of Lurie Roland of Vancouver, a junior, one up.

The 16-year-old Vancouver boy had Chapman three down after the 18-hole morning round and then let the American squirm out a victory.

Chapman flung one hot putt at Roland and the little British Columbia junior ultimately brought about his own downfall at the 28th hole. There, a carefully-played second shot struck a rock, caromed off, and Roland was trailing. He could never catch up.

The Farley-Riddell match, watched by a gallery of less than 300, turned into a battle of wits.

Must Be Winner To Compete Plowing Match

Entries in the International plowing match next October in Brant County will be confined to those who have qualified in the county and branch matches.

John A. Carroll, manager, said this step was necessary "because of the heavy entry list at recent annual matches and an anticipated increase this year."

"To provide land, teams and tractors for 1,000 competitors would place a heavy load on the host county committee," Mr. Carroll said. "Only high quality workmanship should be seen at an international event such as this. It cannot be provided except by those with training and match experience."

Restricted to Winners

For the first time in the history of the big plowing show, entries will be restricted to winners at county and other recognized matches elsewhere. The filing of entries is being advanced from 8 a.m. on each plowing day to the preceding 5:30 p.m.

"This will permit lands to be assigned and other essential details arranged, so as to permit an orderly start at 10 a.m. each day. There will be none of the rush and resultant inconvenience to officers and staff that has occurred in recent years. Judges will be asked to score more strictly on ragged "ins and outs" as a means of improving quality of work and neatness of fields."

Seamstresses May End Strike

PARIS, July 30 (AP)—striking seamstresses Friday began drifting back to work and it looked as though the show would go on after all—the Paris Fashion Show, that is.

Some 14,000 needleworkers walked out Wednesday in a demand for higher pay. Worried Paris designers postponed the fall showings scheduled to open Monday.

But Friday there were scattered breaks in the strike ranks and the style houses announced they would be able to display their latest creations next Wednesday, two days later than they had planned.

The back to work drift was not uniform and some of the strike leaders urged the seamstresses to drop their stitches to the bitter end to get a pay boost of about 25 per cent. Top-quality seamstresses, now geting about the equivalent of $48 a month, asked for $60. Other wages scale down as low as $1.50 weekly for apprentices.

Roosevelt To Wed

NEW YORK, July 30 (AP) — Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., (Dem. N.Y.) will marry socially-prominent Suzanne Perrin, 28, of New York. Their engagement was announced Friday by Miss Perrin's mother. It will be the second marriage for Roosevelt, who has two children, Franklin D., III, 10, and Christopher, seven, by his first marriage to the forme Ethel Du Pont.

42 New Cases

NEW YORK, July 30 (AP)—Forty-two new cases of infantile paralysis were reported in New York City Friday and Dr. Harry S. Mustard, health commissioner, said the "mild epidemic" probably will grow worse. The department of hospitals said 152 persons now are in hospital with the disease, the largest number since 1944. Of 306 cases reported this year, 150 have occurred this week.

Make Forced Landing

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C., July 30 (CP)—A twin-engined seaplane made a forced landing on a tree-studded island near here Friday an was badly wrecked but the pilot and three passengers escaped "without a scratch." The craft developed engine trouble shortly after leaving here and plummeted into the woods. A Canadian Pacific Airlines aircraft flew over the scene and had spotted four persons walking near the crashed plane.

Pay In Advance

OSWEGO, N.Y., July 30 (AP) —Residents of this Lake Ontario city will pay in advance for milk after Aug. 14. Charles Sivers, president of the Oswego Milk Dealers Association, which claims to represent all distributors in the city, said milk delivery men soon will begin the sale of scrip tickets. Residents will give the tickets in advance payment for milk delivered, he stated. No reduction will be offered consumers buying scrip tickets, Sivers said. He explained that the system is patterned after ticket systems in use in Ottawa and other Canadian cities.

Will Prosecute

ST. THOMAS, July 30 (CP) — For the second time this month, permission to prosecute Sunday-operating Port Stanley amusement men has been granted Elgin County Crown Attorney E. W. Haines, K.C., it was learned Friday night. Mr. Haines declined to comment on the charges but the Port Stanley operators showed two summons which called Joy Hoy, boardwalk arcade operator, and Clayton Smith, a shooting gallery operator, to appear in Elgin County Magistrate's Court here next Friday on charges laid under the Lord's Day Act. Both Hoy and Smith said the charges were laid after they opened their amusements last Sunday.

Making First Tests New Kind Of Rubber

VANCOUVER, July 30 (CP) — Ivor W. Neil, general manager of transportation for the British Columbia Electric Company, said Friday the company is conducting the first operational tests in Canada on "cold rubber"—a new synthetic rubber.

He said the test may make possible the manufacture of tires superior to those made of natural rubber.

Cold rubber is now being produced at the Canadian government plant at Sarnia, and the United States government plant at Baton Rouge, La.

The BCER tests, Mr. Neil added, "will be considered official and final by rubber companies in Canada."

Killed By Deputy

ALICE, Tex., July 30 (AP)—W. H. (Bill) Mason, 51, veteran newspaper and radio man, was killed Friday on a street of this south Texas town. Deputy Sheriff Sam Smithwick, about 60, surrendered following the shooting. Mason, program director of Alice radio station KBKI, Thursday referred to the deputy in a broadcast as owner of a building which houses a dime-a-dance palace. Sheriff H. P. Sain filed a charge of murder against Smithwick.

Gets Card After 39 Yrs.

WINNIPEG, July 30 (CP) — A postcard mailed 39 years ago from Chicago has been finally delivered. While on a visit to Chicago, Mrs. S. H. Godley of Winnipeg city addressed the card to her mother, Mrs. S. Shewman here. A postman brought the card to her door this week. In spite of the interval, the card, bearing a color print of the Chicago Coliseum, is still in excellent condition.

The Ever-Present Christ

By REV. E. R. JAMES

Jesus saw them toiling in the rowing. For the wind was contrary to them. And He went unto them walking on the sea. —St. Mark 6:48.

The primary duty of Christ's ministers is to strengthen their people in the day of adversity and sorrow. Storms and adversities come to every one, whether wise or simple, rich or poor. This short story is written for that purpose, for the enlightening of the faith of those who are toiling in the rowing because the wind is contrary to them. May the holy Spirit open our eyes to see and take to heart the practical lessons of this Scripture.

JESUS CONSTRAINED HIS DISCIPLES TO GET INTO THE BOAT. They had no desire to leave Him. They knew that the men were considering to take Him by force and make Him a king; their earthly ideal. They obeyed orders; they were in the path of duty. Have you had this and that door shut and the Lord pointing to one open; His spirit saying: "this is the way". You obey and then to your horror, the storm comes down and you find yourself toiling in the rowing in the path of duty. It calls for courage and faith to keep on toiling in the rowing.

It is good for us to pass on our special experience to help others. The following is the writer's experience. Many years ago the storm descended on him and his family. In the hour of strain the Holy Spirit brought to his mind this Scripture: "Casting all your care upon the Lord for He careth for you". As the words gripped his mind there passed into his soul a wonderful peace, which sustained him.

JESUS WENT UNTO THEM WALKING ON THE SEA. Is this simply a sentence or does it thrill your mind as it did the original writer. Why did He go to them? Because He is the perfect Man, bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. God in His Son took upon Him our complete human nature that he might experience our trials and adversities. The outstanding thought of the Incarnation is that God suffers. He sorrows in your sorrow and has felt the bitter pain of the Cross. God's heart of compassion goes out to you and He comes to you walking on the sea of trouble. The storm brings the PRESENCE. He is always with us but in the storm our eyes are opened to see HIM. "My Presence shall go with thee" "Thanks be unto God for the contrary wind.

WHEN THOU PASSEST THROUGH THE WATERS I WILL BE WITH THEE AND THROUGH THE RIVERS THEY SHALL NOT OVERFLOW THE.

Wants To Have Fair Account Dr. Ray Explains

"Collegiate Tests 'Fair'," the large paid advertisement inserted in last night's Examiner under the name of Eldon P. Ray, has aroused considerable interest. Dr. Ray, who is head of the history department of PCVS, was questioned about the article after its publication and said that his chief purpose was to put before the public the facts as the teachers saw them about the failures in middle grades of the school.

"I felt and still feel that the whole thing wasn't give sufficient consideration before we had a public outburst," he said. He objects strongly to "all the ill-conceived remarks that have been made," and pointed out that if fifty per cent. failed, as Dr. H. G. Carleton stated, no account was taken of the effect of the supplemental examination.

"Our experience is that nine out of ten pupils who write supplementals pass them."

Supplementals Advantage

The supplemental system to final school examinations was introduced throughout the province three or four years ago, primarily to help the pupils, Dr. Ray explained. He termed GradeXI the "crucial" year in the Academic school. Before supplementals were introduced a pupil failing one examination in Grade XI had to carry it over into his Grade XII year, thereby missing two Grade XII subjects. Hence, when Grade XIII (senior matriculation year) was reached, the pupil had to spend two years in that grade.

"It used to be that one subject failed in Grade XI added one year to a pupil's entire school life. That was not fair to the pupils."

Teachers at PCVS who knew or taught pupils concerned were apparently not surprised at the number of failures and supplementals necessary, and had foreseen it a year ago when the pupils were in Grade X. Some teachers at PCVS feel strongly that many pupils are leading as energetic a social life as would tax the capacity of any adult, and that they have, as a result, neither the energy nor the time for proper application to studies.

Resent Charges

"Our work is not perfect but we do certainly resent charges of unfairness and dishonesty." Dr. Ray said it is his experience that teachers "lean over backwards to help pupils along." He wants a "fair" presentation of the situation, and feels that many statements made have been "definitely biased."

Dr. Ray assured the Examiner that his article was published on his own responsibility, but he felt that he expressed the opinion of the majority of teachers. He could not speak for all since many are scattered on vacation.

Statement Later

Dr. H. G. Carleton, Chairman of the supervisory committee of the Board of Education, when asked by the Examiner late Friday evening if he wished to make a statement about the advertisement "Collegiate Tests 'Fair'," published in the same night's Examiner, said he would make a statement, but not then. He explained that he had not yet had time to examine the article with the care it warranted. The article by Dr. Eldon Ray was critical of several earlier statements made by Dr. Carleton.

VeteransContest $9,000 Prizes For Housing

Judging has just been completed in the first nation-wide "Small Holding Development Competition" sponsored by the Veterans' Land Act Administration, in which 120 veterans in Peterborough County competed, regional officials announced today. Names of local winners will be announced shortly.

Competition in this area was keen, officials said, with wives of the veterans also taking a deep interest. Similar contests have been held in previous years since the end of the war, but this was the first time that it had been held on a Dominion-wide scale. A total of $9,000 in prizes will be awarded across Canada.

The competition has two divisions, utility and beauty, with a greater preponderance of marks to be awarded in the former classification. Under the heading of "utility" factors taken into consideration by the judges include growing of vegetable gardens from the standpoint both of supplying food for the home and supplementing the veteran's income. Marks will also be given for success in the raising of fruit, poultry, hogs, etc.

Landscaping

Under the heading of "landscaping" there are two subdivisions, exterior maintenance of the house (painting, addition of sunporches, arbors, etc.) and appearance of grounds (planting of trees, shrubbery, etc.

All veterans established on small holdings under the Veterans' Land Act are automatically eligible to enter the contest.

Preliminary judging in this area was conducted by John E. Patterson, district settlement supervisor, VLA; and R. H. L. Wilson, Campbellford.

Mr. Patterson and Mr. Wilson narrowed the competitors down to seven and the final judging was done by the following: A. W. Sirett, Kingston, former agricultural representative for Frontenac county; William Gracie, Customs examiner for Peterborough and leading horticulturist; R. Gomme, district horticulturist, VLA, Toronto; S. Bycroft, regional counsellor, VLA, Kingston.

Stage And Gym Relighting To Cost $2,794

The job of rewiring and relighting the collegiate gymnasium and auditorium stage was awarded to Grant and Loucks Co. Ltd. by the property committee of the Board of Education at a meeting Friday night.

The work will be done at a total cost of $2,794.91. Grant and Loucks' offer was $839.49 less than the bid made by Miller and Powell.

"There's not much use in wasting time considering these bids," Frank H. Jobbitt said. Dr. H. G. Carleton and Arthur Pitchford both asked whether there was any chance that the extent of the work to be done could have been misunderstood by either of the electrical companies.

Chairman Walter E. Bannon told the committee blue prints had been drawn up showing exactly what the project covered.

The committee had been given full authority to accept any offer it decided upon below a stipulated amount.

The rewiring will include laying of new feeder wires, installing panels, switches and light fixtures in both the gymnasium and on the auditorium stage. The new stage lighting will include flood lights and banks of colored lights for effective stage lighting. One flood light will also be mounted on the face of the balcony.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

BEGIN HARVESTING

The grain harvest in Manitoba has begun in southern Manitoba and should be general in many localities by the end of next week. High temperatures pervaded the prairies this week, but rains helped the crops.

CIRCUS TRAIN

For the information of the youngsters and adults mindful of their own young days when the circus came to town: The circus train is due to arrive 8:30 Sunday morning over the CPR lines from Ottawa and unload at Park and Chamberlain street crossing.

BOAT TO CHINA

Neil Oliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Oliver, Stewart Hall, left for Quebec City this week to go on one of the boats leaving that city for China. These boats are bought by the Chinese Nationalist Government and a Canadian crew deliver them. The Chinese Government return the boys to Canada by plane.

GOT SOAKED

Gordon Matthews, Utilities chalman, parked down Simcoe St. to attend the Commission meeting Friday, was stymied by the downpour of rain, waited 15 minutes for a break in the clouds, finally made a dash for the Utilities office, and got soaked. With wet shirt and all, he put in nearly the next two hours unruffled by a mere sprinkling, for all its thoroughness.

LIGHTNING STRUCK THE HOME of Sam Rath on Park Hill Rd. about one-half mile west of Jackson Park at the point on the roof where a neighbor Tom Busby is pointing. The bolt knocked the chimney flying, littering bricks on both sides of the house. A fire started in the attic of the one-storey house, which Mr. Buby and other neighbours brought under control with a garden hose.

A DRINK ON THE CITY is "Barney's" reward on his way to the baking company horse barns after many hours on the hot streets. Driver Jimmie Preston knows of three city horse-watering troughs left in the city. He rarely finds them filled since Utilities are discouraging this "service" in the motorized age.

Bread? Any Bread Today? Barney Doesn't Read Signs

By JACK BROWN

You just don't drive a bread wagon, mister. You have to know more than how to make change and handle a loaf of bread. After a few years at it, you're an accountant, a minister, a politician, a salesman, and above all, a public servant.

That's what this Examiner reporter discovered when he made the morning rounds with Jimmie Preston of Stock's Bakery.

You're an acountant because you have to be able to account for the actions and whims of two or three hundred people on your route, and because you have to keep a cumulative record of who owes you how much all the time. You're a minister because you have to do exactly that to all those people; you're a politician because you have to be able to talk to everyone and say very little.

Lastly, you're a salesman because that is what you're there for, and the public servant angle is obvious.

Limited World Traveller

When you sum it all up, a bread salesman is a world traveller with a limited region in which to move. In that little world, he sees and hears many strange things. Such as "Harold: It's a quarter to eight. Haruuuuld!" Or following a hot night, he sees people stretched out on a lawn, enjoying the sleep they would not have got in a hot house.

He sees the man on the ice truck, who is just as hot as he is; he waves to and knows all the postmen, the bus drivers, and 90 per cent of the people on the street.

Every morning about 7:30 Jimmie Preston and his horse Barney start out from the shop and move to the south-end. Barney is a lazy devil unless you prod him—he knows the route too well. Barney can't see those white cards the housewives put in the windows, and unaware that the "no bread" sign is up, he stops.

Nine-Mile Route

Man and horse share alike over the nine-mile run. When Jimmie stops for coffee, Barney gets his nourishment from the sugar cubes Jimmie pinches at the little restaurant. On a hot day like Friday Jimmie lets Barney take his own time, so that he won't be exhausted when the run is through about four in the afternoon.

You meet all kinds on a 226-customer route. There is the little girls who calls you a "bad boy" because "you haven't been to our house yet." There is the householder you never see— she leaves the money and you leave the bread. Or you find an elderly couple, neither of whom have very good sight, with a little brown dog to keep them company.

Lately, things have quietened down on Jimmie's route, because of factory holidays. Last week 72 calls were crossed off the list because the people were away.

It makes the day shorter, but it also makes Jimmie's take-home pay smaller.

There are a lot of bread wagons, and there are a lot of patient Barneys. There are also a great many Jimmie Prestons, whose cheery call of "Baker" is answered by a morose grunt or a jingle of coins. But no matter how to look at it, they are not selling bread only. They are selling themselves, too.

Freak Storm Ravaged As It Struck

The Peterborough district is today assessing the damage caused by the freak wind and rain storm that hit the area shortly after 1 p.m. Friday.

About 20 trees were blown down, overhead wiring was broken in several places, store awnings were torn, a three-car collision occurred on Clonsilla Ave., and there was widespread flooding of basements.

Although nobody was hurt, there were several narrow escapes.

A lightning bolt shot through a hot air register at the home of Samuel Rath, his wife, and three children on Parkhill Rd., half a mile west of Jackson Park. The family was eating dinner at the time and one of the daughters, Jean, saw the bolt strike within a foot of her head.

The charge struck the roof near the chimney, completely demolishing the latter, and descended the chimney-hole to pop out at the surprised diners. A roof fire was started which was brought under control with the aid of neighbors.

Cement Form Collapse

Five people had a narrow escape from death or injury at the summer cottage of James Young, Rubidge St., at Bridgenorth when seven elm trees crashed on the roof.

A large cement form erected by the Pigott Construction Co. which has the contract for the nurses' residence at St. Joseph's Hospital, collapsed. All the workmen had sought shelter from the storm when it fell and again there were no injuries.

Two trees were down in Riverside Park near the new wharf, and a baseball dugout in the same park was turned over.

On George St. a tree limb came down on a house near Edinburgh, and on Union St. a tree fell on a house. The occupants were not harmed.

A car belonging to T. H. Taylor, 305 Margaret St., parked outside a Queen St. address, received superficial damage when struck by a falling branch.

Industrial Damage Slight

None of the industries were seriously affected. At the Quaker Oats Co. city power was cut off for about half an hour as a result of the storm. The flour mill lost about an hour's production.

Hydro power from the Quaker company's own dam continued to flow.

There was a report that Canada Packers' tower had been hit by lightning but no damage occurred.

Quaker employees crowded to the windows to watch lightning bounce off the high transmission wires at the Dewart Milling Co. Witness said it was an unsurpassed pyrotechnic display.

The Bell Telephone Co. had a couple of breakages in overhead wires but found the chief trouble was water leaking into cracked cables. One fault was located on Monaghan Rd., near Charotte, and another on the same street in the south end.

"We were very lucky," commented a Bell repair man.

Utilities Busy

At the height of the storm all the City Engineer's staff were dispatched to vital points in the city's drainage system to ease bottlenecks. The Utilities were flooded with calls from householders.

To veterans on the Utilities staff the rain and wind seemed to do little damage, comparatively. One of them stated he had seen much more serious results to public services resulting from less severe storms.

"We had some trouble with trees," he said, "but it wasn't anything serious."

No crop damage was reported and as yet there have been no insurance claims on wind and lightning.

The storm's limits were irregular. At the north, Buckhorn did not feel it although a few miles east, at Young's Point, it hit hard

Injures Eye

The right eye of Alphonse Archambaud, Montreal, was injured when a compressed air hose with which he was working at the Quaker Oats dam blew a bit of dirt into it Thursday morning. He went to Civic Hospital Friday night after he was unable to clear his eye. Hospital officials said he had a fair night. It is believed his sight is not in danger.

Utilities Commission Speed Water Main Program 9,920 Ft., Cost $45,800

Utilities Commission program of extension of water mains shifts soon to the east and west sections of the city, as recommended by Ross L. Dobbin, manager, Friday. To accelerate the work, two crews will be engaged, each equipped with a power digger. Completion of water lines in the south end will be carried out first to "clean up" the promised mains and connections in that area including McKellar, Montrose, Lillian Streets, also the new housing subdivision west of Monaghan Road.

The approved details of this next chapter of the season's program are:

Cherney Subdivision to serve 12 lots on Hopkins Ave. and Hillcrest Ave., and connect up with existing mains. Applications have been received for connections to all lots. Cost of the 900 feet of six-inch main is estimated at $4,100; revenue from 12 services at $18.75 each is $225 a year.

Highland Heights subdivision, east of Beverley St., to the Canal, including Welch, Simmons, Ludgate and Watts Avenues. Applications have been received for connections to 40 lots with a possible total of 55 lots that can be served.

Estimated cost of 3,430 feet of six-inch main is $15,000 including the 40 services; revenue $750 a year.

McKellar Area

McKellar St., east from Chester St., six houses being built; one application received with a total of six probable services. Only two of these houses are built, but others are planned for the near future. Estimated cost of 570 feet of six-inch main, $2,000, including two services; revenue at $18.75 each, $37.50.

Central Mortgage and Housing subdivision, north of McKellar St., including Hawley and Little Streets; west of Monaghan Road. There are to be 62 houses in this subdivision.

Estimated cost of 2,500 feet of six-inch main $13,000, including 62 services. Revenue $1,162.50 a year.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation houses on McKellar St. west of Monaghan Road. This will consist of 28 houses on the north side of McKellar St. Estimated cost of 1,620 feet of six-inch main $7,300, including 28 services; revenue $525 a year.

South to Lillian

Lillian St., from McKellar St. southerly; nine houses in process of being built on the east side. Room for eight more on west side. Estimated cost of 480 feet of six-inch main $2,100, including nine services; revenue from nine services at $18.75 a year each is $168.75.

Montrose St., from McKellar southerly to Graham St.; one application received; 11 houses are now in process of being built with room for four or five more. Estimated cost of 480 feet of six-inch main $2,300, including 11 services; revenue $206.25 a year.

That projected work is a total of 9,920 feet of six-inch main, getting close to two miles, at an estimated cost of $45,800.

Lay In Advance

On the new and prospective work in the south end the Commission is actually undertaking to lay mains in advance of connections of houses, and in some instances ahead of their actual building. It is believed that in all kinds of cases the laying of water mains and sewers will be encouraged to persons who may be looking for suitable locations in that part of the city.

The Cherney subdivision on Weller St. was promised water services, but so much work was required in the south end for a greater number of houses that the west end job had to be deferred.

The Highland Heights subdivision, in the McFarlane Ave. area of Ashburnham just west of the canal, was promised household conveniences six or eight weeks ago when a deputation from that area submitted their ples to the council.

Other streets are included in the Utilities Commission program, but they will not be laid down for mains until the present block of the summer program is finished.

Premier Attends Big Parade, Legion Picnic

A gala Legion parade, which will move off from the CNR freight sheds at 1 p.m. Monday, will start Civic Holiday celebrations in Peterborough. The parade, whose chief organizer is A. C. (Barney) Chambers, will contain various floats and 30 mounted horses.

Honored guest of the Legion for the day will be Hon. Leslie Frost, premier of Ontario. Mr. Frost will lunch with members of the Legion executive at noon and will be tendered a reception at Nicholls Oval after the parade.

Entertainment at Nicholls Oval will include an aerial ladder act, perhaps it's for play, jet aircraft flying, boat races, a variety show, and concert.

The premier is schedule for change; make an address at approximately these inconspicuous 2 p.m. from the bandstand at the sides of Oval.

Fashion Flashes

Neat way to dress up that little straw bag for afternoon duty is to treat it to a cluster of flowers, with a repeat thrust through dress belt or a lapel or on a hat or in the hair.

Hands out for handsome gloves being readied for next season. Velvet is used for an eight-button length, hand-sewn glove with a jersey palm. Beautiful in black, in pastels or in brilliant colors.

Bronze leather and reptile belts in contrasting dress colors are important accessory news for Fall.

Ski pants, the most flattering form of trouser wear for women, have been adapted for resort and beach wear this Summer by French designer, Marcel Rochas.

Social Situations

SITUATION: You are an inexperienced cook and wish to serve a new dish when you are having dinner guests.

WRONG WAY: Prepare it for the first time for your guests.

RIGHT WAY: Try it out once, before you serve it to guests.

Marmora Shower Held

MARMORA, July 30 (ENS) — In honor of Mrs. Guy Osborne (nee Betty Mumby), a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Cronkright Thursday evening. About 20 friends of Mrs. Osborne were present. The evening was spent in games and contests and the guest of honor received many useful gifts for which she expressed her thanks in a neat speech.

WHAT'S A SPIDER?

Spiders are not insects but belong to the arachnida class, which also includes scorpions, mites and ticks.

HOW TO COOL OFF: Norma Jasepr, of Montreal, shown above, spent 19 minutes and 15 seconds sealed in 1,200 pounds of solid ice to establish what was called "a new world record". Norma was placed in the ice coffin and communicated with the public by turning on a flashlight at minute intervals. She failed to do so at the 18th minute and was taken out 75 seconds later.

Millbrook Bride Receives Gifts

MILLBROOK, July 30 (ENS) Among presentations made to Martha Belch, bride-elect, whose wedding took place Saturday in Millbrook, was a silver cream and sugar set and tray by the staffs of Port Hope public schools in which she served for the last two years. The presentation was made at a turkey dinner for members of the School Board and their wives, as well as the public schools staff, held at the Port Hope Golf Club house.

The members of Miss Belchs class gave her a pyrex casserole dish in a silver stand. A table lamp was the gift of the ladies of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. Wilfred Fallis and her daughter, Helen, were joint hostesses at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Belch. The guests were entertained with contests and music with Miss Margaret Aiken at the piano.

Four little girls, Velda and Freda Brown, Natalie Belch and Thelma Parker, carried in the gifts.

RECORD-BREAKER — Kay McNamee, 18-year-old Vancouver swimmer, set a record in the 400-yard senior women's freestyle in the British Empire Games swimming trials at Vancouver. The time was 5:03.4, clipping four seconds off the previous Canadian record.

DOROTHY DIX

Perfect Woman Now Defined Many Fine Things Combined

A GIRL asks me what is my idea of a perfect lady.

Well my idea of a perfect lady is the woman who has all the virtues of her grandmother with the modern improvements of her flapper daughter. She is a woman who strikes the happy medium between prunes and prisms and she shocks no one herself.

Dorothy Dix

She adapts herself to all circumstances and is equally at home in a palace or a hovel.

In the days of prosperity, she is not puffed up by her good fortune, and when adversity comes to her, she is not crushed by it.

She is always just a little bit more considerate of feelings and rights of those below her than she is of those above her. She never says things that wound and insult those who are incapable, because of their position, of resenting them.

She has her own opinions and convictions, but she never thrusts them upon you. She concedes to you the privilege of possessing your own religion and politics and taste in dress and method of bringing up your children.

Her good manners are as much a part of her as her skin and she never takes them off at home or saves them for company use.

She respects your privacy. No matter how intimate a friend she is, she never comes in the back door, nor pries into your garbage can, nor asks your personal questions about your affairs.

She never thrusts unsought advice upon you. She assumes that you know more about your affairs than she does and, anyway, that they are none of her business.

She never feels it her duty to tell you that somebody saw your husband out having dinner with his secretary, or that the neighbors are talking about your daughter's not getting home until 3 o'clock.

She is punctilious in small matters, such as returning books and paying little debts and her share of common treats.

In dress, she always has on just the right thing. No matter how rich she may be, she is never so geegaws that she looks like a deloaded down with jewels and partment-store show window. She doesn't wear a party dress to market, or pyjamas to your best party. She is always exquisitely neat and clean.

When she comes to see you, she does not rub her lipstick and rouge off on your best embroidered towels, nor scar up your mahogany with burns from cigarette stubs. She is more careful of your belongings than she is of her own.

She falls in with your plans for her amusement. She eats what is set before her without comments on her diet or the calories it contains. She takes trouble to make herself fascinating to your friends, and when the time is set for her departure, she goes. She never outstays her welcome.

Above all, she never vamps your husband or refurnishes your house or changes the whole planting of your garden.

If she is a girl, she does her best to make herself attractive to men, but she doesn't run after them; and she would chew off the end of her tongue before she would reproach a boy for not having come to see her. When boys show her a good time, she repays them by registering pleasure, but her self-respect keeps her from slopping over with gratitude at being noticed by them. She never hints for presents and she goes lightly on the purse of the poor lad earning a small salary.

She is too fastidious to be willing to be kissed and mauled by every Tom, Dick and Harry who comes along; she has an instinct that makes her know that it is the peach that hangs highest on the tree that men are willing to break their necks to get, and that they will not reach out their hand to pick the overripe one ready to fall into their mouths.

If she is married, she never quarrels with her husband before people, nor does she tell her family and friends of his faults and weaknesses.

She may really be the head of the house and have ten times the sense and judgment he has, but she never lets any one find it out and apparently respects and honors him so much that she forces other people to admire him.

Whatever her family troubles, she never broadcasts them. On the contrary, she locks the door of her skeleton closet and throws away the key.

In a word, the perfect lady is a woman who always remembers you and never forgets herself and who handles every situation with a tact and finesse that take off all the rough edges.

Musicals Gain Favor On Broadway

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, July 30—(CP)—The script that starts off "Time, the present" is out of favor on Broadway, judging by plans for fall theatre presentations.

The trend now is to avoid current controversial topics and to give the public something old and tried, or something frankly escapist.

Apparently the public doesn't want plays about the second world war or post-war problems. Take "The Traitor," a taut spy melodrama and as topical as a Geiger counter (one was used in the play). When produced here last spring it got good reviews but theatre-goers didn't take to it and the drama closed after 67 performances.

Theatre veterans recall that Broadway's attitude was similar for a few years after the First World War. Producers then turned to revivals of classics as the surest box office attractions.

The autumn lineup is strong on plays that deal with other times. The new musical, "Miss Liberty" falls into the latter category. It is set in the year 1885. William Shakespeare, an old stand-by, will be represented by two plays in the new season. Katherine Hepburn is scheduled to appear in "As You Like It" and Canada Lee in "Othello."

The Shuberts are considering a musical biography of the Italian composer, Puccini, with score by Deems Taylor and Libretto by Elliott Paul. Yet another revival slated for fall or later is Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra." And producer Michael Todd is planning a musical comedy based on the opera, "Aida." Only the setting will be Memphis, Tenn., instead of Memphis, Egypt, and the title will be "My Darlin' Aida."

Slimness Marks Fall Silhouette

NEW YORK.—How the whimsical winds of fashion ever hesitate long enough to determine a season's trends is always a little mystifying, yet each season comes up with crisp and exciting newness.

A general slimness in the silhouette marks the new Fall clothes, with skirts 13 and sometimes 14 inches from the floor. This slimming and shortening of skirts indicates a nice salvaging of materials and forces a far greater interest in important details.

There are inumerable pockets, godets and floating draperies for movement, bone buttons, large muffs for a change, small coat collars delightfully free from bulkiness, reversible overskirts, and there's neckline sleight-of-hand.

Rosalind Russell Turns Back To Old Roles

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, July 30 (AP)—Rosalind Russell, the public's idea of the professional woman, is "back behind the desk again."

She has been a doctor, lawyer, psychiatrist, advertising executive and newspaper woman on the screen already. Now she's a college dean in "Woman of Distinction."

"Here I am again," she told me. "I'm always behind a desk lifting phones and inter-office speakers, saying, "Send Johnson in to see me—Tell Miss Frobisher to get that story in Philadelphia—Come in for dictation."

A few years ago her friends kept telling her: "No, Roz, you're not playing another executive, are you?" So she gave up playing professional women for straight dramatic roles.

Not Friends' Advice

"That's when I made a mistake," she said. "Too often in Hollywood we listen to the mistaken advice of friends when we should listen to the public. The public never told me it was tired of my professional roles."

After a few films that won her dramatic but no box-office honors Roz returned to the professional woman. Her only complaint is that there's no change of pace.

"All these gals talk the same," she said. "I can't talk slowly because I'm the type that gives orders. And the wardrobe is always the same: two suits, a hostess gown and a negligee.

"The negligee comes in the seventh reel when I break down and cry. I'm sorry for what I did'."

Tragic Figures

Roz said she has known and studied many professional women, particularly department store executives.

"Many of them are tragic figures. They often have husbands who are sick or poor. They always claim they are going to quit after the next sale. But they never do.

"Some day I will do the real story of the professional woman. It will be a tragedy."

I supplied her the title for the epic: "Death of a Saleswoman."

Watch that Temper It Can Ruin Your Permanent

Don't quarrel with your husband or spank little Herbert today unless you want your hair to look a mess for the bridge club tonight.

That's the advice of top man of the permanent wave machines — Norman Hillier of New York. The gentleman has been studying and teaching permanent waving for 30 years (since the days of the first Nestles) and he's learned a lot about psycho-somatic hair conditioning. Especially in the last short time since the electronic photo micrograph (made possible by the splitting of the atom has turned the picture of a single hair into something resembling an oversized washboard.

For instance, it is now known that each hair, on the human head has a rim, or cuticle, which too many lacquers and untested preparations may effect strongly. But no more harmfully than a series of good temper tantrums, which have an impact on the whole body . . . right to the ends of the coiffure. You know what a nervous upset condition can do to your nail cuticle, says Mr. Hillier. Watch it!

By photographing hair color for the first time in its native habitat (the cuticle layer of the hair), experts believe color tone is constantly being washed out. Not that any one should go soapless through life. But washing with the purest soaps and shampoos at longer intervals, and plenty of brushing in between, is indicated.

For nothing can beat the efficacy of the hair brush, according to Mr. Hillier, if used gently but firmly, sweeping the way the hair grows. Women today, although more conscious of hair styling, take less care of their locks than grandma did. They are too prone to think a good permanent every so often takes care of the whole business. Mr. Hillier also advises mothers strongly against braiding children's hair too tightly away from the temples for fear of breaking and weakening hair roots.

To combat the traitorous summer sun as a drying agent, Mr. Hillier advises a sun visor with a hatlike top and plenty of good hair cream at night when face and hand lotions are being applied.

You know where the most bleached heads on the continent are? In St. Louis, Mo. Nobody can say why, not even Mr. Hillier.

But he does claim that there's still nothing really satisfactory as a cure for baldness, once it has really set in. He says so regretfully, rubbing a thoughtful hand over his own remaining locks.

GARAGE-TOP GREENHOUSE — Hemmed in by apartment buildings in a crowded section of Chicago, John Thompson chose a unique spot for his garden. He built a complete greenhouse on top of his two-car garage, connected by a runway to his rear porch. The aerial oasis can also be used as a family sun room. Thompson complacently waters his garden as he surveys his "rural" domain.

Pockets Offer Lots of Variety

NEW YORK.—Pockets galore make their appearance in the new Fall collections. Tradesmen's pockets, into which you dip at a moment's notice for change; newsboy's pockets—these inconspicuously slit in the sides of skirts, tempting you to strut with your hands in them — a tiny jewel pocket, or perhaps it's for perfume, high above the heart; bold patch pockets on coats; finger-tip pockets so small they become mere decor. But always somewhere—pockets.

Skirts go in for versatility. A basic tube skirt cuts all kinds of fancy capers. If it is made of worsted, it may have a button tunic, which, being somewhat fuller than the skirt, lends movement.

Board Asks For Estimates School Boilers

A decision to get estimates of the cost of installing new tubes the two boilers at the Prince of Wales Public School from local plumbers was reached by the Property Committee of the Board of Education Friday night.

Chairman Walter E. Bannon reported that a boiler inspector had looked at the boilers this week. The inspector had been able to easily knock a hole through several of the pipe tubing in the boilers with a hammer. Mr. Bannon said he thought the boilers would be a "very great danger if they were just patched up."

Frank H. Jobbitt said the pipes had been in about 30 years. Mr. Bannon reported the last boiled which had been refitted with the pipe tubing had been done in 1947 in South Central School at a cost of $563.60.

A motion made by Arthur Pitchford and passed by the committee authorized Chairman Bannon to contact local plumbers to get their estimates of the job. It was not decided whether a special meeting of the Board of Education would have to be called to decide to proceed with the work. When the estimates had been submitted, it was thought a poll by telephone might be sufficient to make the decision.

Accidents Fall With Rain

As the rain subsided, Mrs. McIntyre, 714 Bethune Street, backed her car on to the road in front of the house. A rear wheel sank into a recently filled-in hole, where the ground had been dug for work on the water main. The Utilities came to the scene and helped pull the car out.

Three Clash

On Water Street in front of J. K. Hughes' garage, three cars were involved in a minor accident shortly after the storm. Rev. D. P. Morris of Bridgenorth and John O. Ball, RR 3, Peterborough brushed fenders and Mr. Ball's car went onto a third car parked at the side of the road, in which Mrs. Hattie Thompson, 125 Hazlitt Street, was sitting. Damage was confined to fenders and bumpers. All three incidents were investigated by Constable Harold Mesley.

Shortly after midday Harold Coleman, 661 Aylmer Street, and Harold Lummiss, 285 Park Street, collided on Aylmer Street near Gillespie's garage. To avoid a truck Coleman pulled his car into the centre of the road and front fenders of both cars met. Constable Don Mackay investigated this accident.

15 British Officers Make Tour Of Canada

OTTAWA, July 30 (CP)—Fifteen United Kingdom military officers and civil servants, from a Major-General down, are due in Canada Monday for a 27-day tour of industrial plants and defence installations.

They are members of the student body and directing staff of the Imperial Defence College, formed in 1927 to train a body of senior officers and civil servants for key jobs in war. Its Canadian counterpart is the National Defence College in Kingston.

The Imperial college annually sends students on summer study tours but this is the first to Canada.

Their itinerary includes: Aug. 5, Sudbury; Aug. 9, Oshawa; Aug. 10, Niagara and Welland.

Dutch Couple Leave After Marmora Visit

MARMORA, July 30—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. B. Van den Berg of Rotterdam, Holland, who have been spending the past 10 weeks with their daughter, Mrs. Charles T. Archer and Mr. Archer left early on Friday morning for Montreal to embark on the merchant ship, Prince Alexander for the voyage home.

They are returning to their native land wtih fond memories of Canada which Mr. Van den Berg declares is a grand country of friendly folk.

Many residents called at the Archer home on Thursday to wish them "bon voyage".

To Ride Over Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., July 30 (CP)—Major Lloyd Hill, who plans to ride in a barrel through the Niagara River rapids, will enter his barrel at 2 p.m. today somewhere below the Horseshoe Falls. He expects to reach the lower whirlpool approximately 10 minutes later and that, barring difficulties, his trip will be ended at Queenston—about six miles down river from here—within an hour.

Saunders Hopeful No Blackout Needed

DES JOACHIMS, Que., July 30 (CP)—It's too early in the season to rule out power blackouts next winter, Robert Saunders said on Friday, but there won't be any if rainfall is normal in August and September.

Mr. Saunders, chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, said in an interview blackouts will not be necessary if conditions are normal.

He made an inspection tour on Friday of the giant power development near this Ottawa River village, 140 miles northwest of Ottawa, and also toured the Chenauk project, 10 miles north of Pembroke.

Trading Slows This Week On Stock Market

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Stock markets maintained the level of their summer rally this week, but trading slowed in the final two days with slightly easing tendencies.

At the moment it looks as though some encouraging news is needed to set them on any new upward movement. This may come with the more hopeful view of American business conditions and, in fact, the market rise of recent weeks probably is a reflection of it.

That there was a summer rally at all is interesting, because it had to buck the rather discouraging international trade and finance situation.

In New York, the association press average of 60 stocks declined Friday to 62.9 but was up .5 on the week.

Monday saw a resumption of the summer rally which had faltered in the closing days of the previous week, and on Tuesday prices weer at their highest level in 10 weeks. The rally stalled Wednesday, however, and tapered off in extreme dullness Thursday and Friday. The heat may have had something to do with it.

Canadian markets followed about the same course. The Toronto Exchange's index, made up from representatives issues, showed industrials ahead 1.64 at 170.61 after reaching 170.89 on Wednesday. This was its best figure since early May and a gain of 13.25 since June 14.

Spuds Are Slow And Fewer

Potato crops are likely to be only half of the average yield in this district according to Ernie Cavano, large-scale potato grower near Bethany, where most of the potatoes in this district are grown.

As well as being a poor crop, the potatoes are three or four weeks behind. However, farmers feel they have a fair crop considering the amount of rain they have had. Much depends on how much rain falls in the next few weeks.

Farmers' kitchen gardens have done poorly around Bethany. Some vegetables did not come up at all because they were planted just when the dry spell started. Many of the farmers say it is the worst year for rain they can remember. A great many of them will have to buy their vegetables from commercial growers for the first time in their lives.

Irrigation Helps

Frank Paterson, local agricultural representative, said with the help of irrigation, commercial vegetable growers in the district are having good crops. He said the supply of some vegetables and corn depended on the amount imported from the United States. The corn crop in the United States this year has been very good and farmers will probably be able to get all they want for checken feed.

Wheat and other grain supplies will depend to a large extent on how much can be exported to the United Kingdom as a result of future montary negotiations.

More Accidents Inspector Says, Holiday Warning

There has been a considerable increase in the number of highway accidents in the Peterborough district this year over last year, Inspector E. V. MacNeill, head of the Ontario Provincial Police here, stated today in issuing a warning to motorists to exercise "extreme care" on the highways over the coming Civic Holiday week-end. He said that while the number of people killed in road crashes so far this year was less than last year, the number of persons injured and total property damage was much higher than in 1948.

Inspector MacNeill said every available member of his force would be on duty over the week-end, with all 17 cars assigned to his district on continuous patrol duty. This will mean overtime work for many constables, as there are not enough on the staff to do otherwise.

Constables Alerted

Constables have been given special instructions to keep a close lookout for instances of "careless, negligent, or reckless driving." No motorcycles have yet been assigned to the Peterborough district, such as has occurred recently at Toronto, Hamilton and other larger centres, as traffic here is not considered heavy enough to warrant it.

Inspector MacNeill did not go so far as to advise motorists to use secondary roads to a large extent or to stagger departure hours, as he did not feel the situation in this vicinity warranted it. However, in view of this year's alarming increase in the number of highway accidents, the utmost care in driving was necessary. He said that many of those injured in crashes this year were just lucky, as in a large number of cases victims had narrow escapes from death.

Similar Warnings

Similar warnings have been issued by Commissioner W. H. Stringer, head of the OPP, Toronto, and Highways Minister Doucett. "For us there can be no holiday," declared the commissioner, who said that accidents on the highways can best be prevented by "courteous and efficient policing—the enforcement of the law whenever and wherever necessary.

Hon. Mr. Doucett said the fact that thousands of workers would also be starting vacations Monday would add to the Civic Holiday week-end traffic congestion. He urged that special attention be paid to chilren and that particular care be taken in driving through built-up areas.

The minister recalled that eight persons were killed in highway accidents in Ontario on the last holiday week-end, Dominion Day, and said that traffic this week-end is likely to be even higher with risk of accidents that much greater.

Quebec Police Seek Changes

VALLEYFIELD, Que., July 30 (CP)—The Canadian Brotherhood of Policemen Friday made a bid to have Quebec legislation placed on a par with that in Ontario when changes in wages and working conditions are sought.

Winding up of the second day of the three-day annual convention, delegates passed a series of resolutions directed at eliminating "the notion in high places that Quebec should not be compared with Ontario or United States centres" for wages and working conditions.

Delegates also adopted resolutions calling for abolition of regional zones established under the minimum wage law, the 48-hour week for all Quebec policemen and abolition of Bill 60 and the right of municipal or school corporations to appeal to the Quebec Municipal Commission against judgments.

Under existing legislation the Municipal Commission can upset an arbitration board judgment by finding thatt he corporation cannot afford higher expenditures.

Delegates also pledged to ask the government to enact legislation making it compulsory for all policemen to be paid $1.50 per hour for overtime work.

BALTIC COUNTRY

Lithuania has an area of 20,000 square miles and an estimated population of 2,442,000.

Trout, Struck By Lightning Dazed Dozen In Handfuls

TORONTO, July 30 (CP)—This is the story of the fish that were struck by lightning and were electrocuted. It happened a few days ago, before Peterborough county's sudden storm Friday.

Pete McGillen, reporting it Friday in his Toronto Daily Telegramf column "Outdoors," attributes the story to Herb Rodregue and J. Swan, of Harcourt, Ont., in the Haliburton district 100 miles northeast of here.

The two men were camped on the shore of an unidentified lake in the district when lightning split a tree on the opposite shore and set it afire. They paddled across and found a dozen large speckled trout floating on the lake surface.

They picked up eight, all more than 15 inches in length, while the others revived and swam away.

Two days later, they returned and counted more than 50 large trout dead on the lake surface. They apparently were killed by the lightning stroke.

CHAMP DETHRONED—Tommy Riddell, right, of Montreal, Quebec amateur champion, scored a sensational upset with a 19th-hole win over Frank Stranahan of Toledo, defending champion, in the fourth round of the Canadian amateur tournament at Riverside Golf and Country Club near Saint John, NB. Stranahan, who first won the crown in 1947, and repeated last year, congratulates Riddell after playing the extra hole.

Broken Supercharger Holds Up Miss Canada IV At Detroit

DETROIT, July 30—(AP)—The United States, thanks to Detroiter Jack Schafer's speedy Such Crust I, today was one leg up in its bid to retain the Harmsworth Trophy.

But in seeking to repeat today, the three-boat American team may have to fight off a comeback attempt by the Canadian challenger, Miss Canada IV.

The E. A. Wilson boat—reported to have been clocked at speeds upwards of 150 miles an hour in Ontario trials—suffered a broken supercharger in Friday's race. She finished with an average speed of 66.300 miles an hour.

Driver Danny Arena said that the 30-foot Such Crust "was never opened up" in outclassing the other boats in the field. She reached a lap record of 94.945 miles per hour, but her average time for the 48.3 statue mile course was 87.969 miles per hour.

That was roughly three miles an hour slower than British racer Kaye Don's record in the 1931 Harmsworth race. Don also held the lap record of 93.017 miles an hour, made in the same race.

The other two American boats in the race both had troubles of their own. Horace Dodge's My Sweetie, turned over finally to driver Wild Bill Cantrell, dropped out in the fourth lap with a broken water line. She was clocked at 89.5 miles an hour just before the mishap.

Bailed Out

Stanley Dollar's Skip-a-Long, which dueled with Such Crust in the opening laps, tried to pass My Sweetie in the fourth lap, but got caught in the wash and shipped too much water. Dollar and his mechanic, Ollie Meeks, spent 12 minutes bailing her out.

But they got the craft started under her own power and set a blistering pace to overtake the steadily plugging Miss Canada and win second place in the race.

Wilson, and his son, Harold, Miss Canada's pilot, had little to say except that they still hope to make a race of it. Harold Wilson said, however, that with the supercharger out, his engines would only turn over at approximately 1,700 revolutions per minute.

Gloom shrouded the hut of Miss Canada IV.

Harold Wilson told reporters he almost dropped out of the race after the fourth lap.

"I hurt my shin when the boat leaped in the air on the upper turn," Harold said. "My back hurt after that, but since we weren't running fast I decided to stick it out. I'll be all right tomorrow, I'm sure."

Beecham Turns "Disc Jockey"

LONDON, July 30 (Reuters)—Sir Thomas Beecham, British conductor famous for his caustic wit as well as for his musicianship, has turned "disc jockey" to earn dollars for Britain.

He is recording commentaties in a London studio on a series—called "talking about music," one of 26 one-hour programs which will be broadcast from New York in the fall.

The records will also be broadcast in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa—probably next spring.

Sir Thomas, 70, says he "Ab libs to my heart's content" on every conceivable aspect of music except jazz.

"I talk about every conceivable subject too—except politics," he added.

Each program consists of approximately one-quarter of an hour for his brilliant talk, interspersed with records of both his own and other conductors' performances covering practically every composer.

Made Flaming Torch

OWEN SOUND, July 30 (CP).—A tractor explosion here Friday severely burned Earl Byers, 34-year-old farmer in the Tara district near here. He told doctors here that a blast almost tore his tractor apart after he stepped on the starter. Blazing fuel oil showered him and set his clothing on fire. He put out the flames in his clothes by throwing himself into a stock watering trough beside the tractor shed.

Plan For Testing House Indicates Home Livability

(From Home Building in Canada)

"Throughout the whole lifetime of a house built for a home the actual layout of the building affects constantly and inescapably not only the comfort and long-term satisfaction which that home will provide for the original purchaser, but also the resale value and hence the security of any loan made on the property." So says H. U. Nelson, official of the National Real Estate Boards. Nowadays a good deal can be done to "lift the face" of a house that has displeasing appearance or to strengthen weak costruction when remarketing becomes necessary. But the basic plan of the structure, the fundamental proportionment of interior space, the relation of the building to the site and of the rooms to each other are things that remodelling ordinarily cannot remedy.

Test Your House Plan

Here we point out some basic factors of layout that make a home truly livable over a long period of time. To test long-range livability, ask yourself these questions as to layout:

1. PROPORTIONMENT OF SPACE: Has the interior space been properly proportioned between the various rooms and is each room of a size and shape for convenient and sociable grouping of furniture? Is the room shaped to admit maximum sunlight? A living room 12 x 18 feet, for instance, is generally preferred to one 14 x 15 feet, although the areas are approximately the same; a 11 x 12 foot bedroom is preferred to one having the same area but measuring 9 x 15 feet because of the problem of placing beds.

2. CIRCULATION: Is the relation of the rooms to each other convenient for the natural flow of living activities? Is the front door convenient to the kitchen? Are living room and dining room unfortunately so placed that they will become glorified hallways? (Particularly in one-bath, H-shaped houses, living rooms are very often traffic lanes.) Is access to the bathroom only through a bedroom or other principal room or is it from a hallway? Is sole access to any room through a bedroom?

3. WALL SPACE: Is there plenty of wall space for furniture—in all rooms? Is there more than one location for each piece of furniture?

4. KITCHEN: Does the size and shape of the kitchen offer working convenience? (Minimum size for small homes is sixty square feet—ideal size for smaller houses, eighty to ninety square feet.) Has sufficient space been provided to admit all standard makes of stoves and refrigerators? Are cupboards adequate? Is drainboard long enough and is sink along an exterior wall? (This will determine whether, so long as the house stands, the housewife looks out of doors over her dishwashing and potato peeling or whether she looks at blank wall.

5. BATHROOMS: Are bath facilities in proportion to the size of the house, the number of bedrooms, and the demands of the district? Are fixtures located properly or is the tub under the window, the toilet against the living room wall and the lavatory on a wall away from natural light? Is there a stall shower or space for installation of one? Is there adequate space for utility drawers, cabinets, (or, if need be, hampers)?

6. DINING SPACE: Is the location and size of dining space adequate to the character of the house? In a small house, does it consist of a nook in the kitchen, an alcove off the living room, or a separate dinette? In large houses are there both separate dining rooms and kitchen nooks? (In a house less than 800 square feet in size, a nook in the kitchen is sometimes acceptable. In a house between 800 and 1,000 square feet in size a separate dinette or secluded alcove off the living room is preferred. In a house 1,000 square feet in size a separate dinette or dining room and kitchen nook is desirable.)

7. BEDROOMS: Are the bedrooms well separated from the other portions of the house or do any of them open directly off the living room, dining room, or kitchen? Is it necessary to walk around the bed to reach the entrance to the room, the closet, or the dresser? Can the bed be made from both sides? Do any windows open over the bed.

8. HALLS: Is too large a percentage of the total area devoted to hall space? (Three to 4 per cent of total is proper area for hallways; if hallways are over 5 per cent, a restudy of the plans should be made.) Is the hall narrow, winding, dark? (Straight halls are preferred, as is a minimum width of three and one-half feet.)

CLOSETS: Is the closet and storage space adequate? Is there a coat closet off the entry? If there is no entry, is there a closet in the hallway? Are closets wide and shallow, so that things in them can readily be seen and reached, or are they so-called tunnel closets—narrow and deep?

B.C. Swimming Stars Win 9 Of 12 Berths

VANCOUVER, July 30 (CP)—British Columbia's aquatic stars have won nine of 12 berths on Canada's national swimming team to the British Empire Games at Auckland, N. Z., next February.

Two Ontario swimmers and one Quebec swimmer also gained places on the Dominion squad, chosen Friday night by games officials.

Named to the team following the three-day trials were:

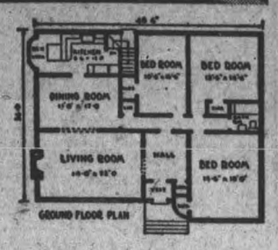
Pete Salmon, Victoria; Allen Gilchrist, Ocean Falls, B. C.; James Portelance, Ocean Falls, Dr. George Athans, Vancouver; Lucien Beaumont, Quebec; Leo Portelance, Ocean Falls; Irene Strong, Vancouver; Kay McNamee, Vancouver; Joan Morgan, Victoria: Kay Miles, London, Ont.; Evelyn Buchanan, Toronto; and Lynda Adams Hunt, Vancouver.

Named Chief Of Staff

LONDON, July 30 (Reuters)—Air Chief Marshal Sir John C. Slessor, 52, has been appointed British Chief of Air Staff, succeeding Marshall of the RAF Baron Tedder. Lord Tedder relinquishes the post Jan. 1, 1950, at his own request to facilitate the advancement of younger officers.

Newfoundland Talks

OTAWA, July 30 (CP)—Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland arrived in Ottawa Friday for talks with federal government officials. The premier said in an interview there still were some "loose ends" to clear up resulting from Newfoundland's entry into Confederation. These included such matters as the Dominion-Provincial tax agreement and the trans-Canada highway but most of the talks would be "routine."



HOUSE NO. 122—A snug cottage with unusually appealing lines in white stucco. Using the floor plan shown there are six rooms, three of them for sleeping. These rooms, are well separated by hall from the "living" area of the house. One of the nicest features is the splendid breakfast nook, with its big bay window. It is clearly incorporated with the kitchen, which is bright and efficient in layout. It will be noticed that windows are plentiful in this plan, and that the master bedroom is spacious. For further information write Home Builders in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

St. Catharines Sweeps Henley

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., July 30 (CP)—Bufafio's west side's four year domination as club champion of the annual Royal Canadian Henley appeared to be near the saturation point today. Its successor, dependent on outcome of the 13-event final-day card, probably will be St. Catharines.

The writing was on the wall Friday when St. Catharines crews took almost everything in sight, particularly in the fours and eights which have been Westsides' specialties for years. St. Catharines went into Friday's program runner-up for the club title, 1½ points behind Buffalo and when crews finished chugging up and down the choppy old Welland Canal waters, the scorecard read: St. Catharines 211, Buffalo 155½.

The Niagara district club has entries in nine point - scoring events today and in two of these—the senior 155-pound eights and senior 155-pound fours, it has two crews. Two St. Catharens crews also are in the high school eights but this doesn't count in the highly complicated Henley scoring system.

Westside is represented in only five events where points are awarded. The club has two double eights and senior 145 pound fours.

Remnants and Recollections Of City's First Industries Explain Industrialization

By HARRY THEOBALD

Notes of the first industries of Peterborough, written by the late Frank H. Dobbin proprietor of the old Daily Review, afford interesting glimpses of the backgound of the city's composite manufacturing establishment of today. These thumbnail sketches were based on newspaper records, amplified in some instances by Mr. Dobbin's personal memories, and by information he obtained from elders of his day.

The file recently turned up with some other papers which had escaped office waste baskets, and, as indicated in one paragraph, was closed in 1919. Presumably the notes were intended to provide direction to detail reports in the local newspaper of the years in which the industrial events took place.

That is the only introduction the Dobbin review requires. His facts and comments are quoted, as distinct from present references to some of the incidents which he passed on to posterity.

Beginning Power Use

"The beginning of the use of power derived from the waters of the Otonabee River was made by the completion of the first power dam, situated a little above what is now known as Inverlea Park.

This dam was built by Horace Perry for the Government of Upper Canada. It was finished in 1827, and the flour mill in the same year. Both dam and mill were afterwards sold to Moore Lee and John Hall (subsequently of Buckhorn, hence the previous name of that place as Hall's Bridge).

Leaving out of comment the several saw mills and mills for the manufacture of wood products, the real beginning of the industrial features of Peterborough was in the year 1852.

"In 1856 William Hamliton established the business long known as Hamilton's Foundry Co., manufacturing steam engines and boilers, sawmill machinery and supplies, pumping engines, etc."

This industry was located along the Jackson Park creek, at Reid St., possibly for some use of its directly available water power. Part of the premises are now occupied by Canadian Ventilating Shades Limited.

Steam Factory Whistle

"In 1858, William Toole set up a sash and door factory at the corner of Murray and Bethune Streets. It was destroyed by fire."

That site was near the creek, but did not draw operating energy from it. One of the older residents of the city said recently that the steam whistle at the Toole plant was the only industrial signal sounding the hours of work and rest in Peterborough in his recollections of boyhood. The factory must have been in use for quite a number of years. Mr. Toole had a lumber mill at Desaronto from which he obtained the material for his window and door frames, doors and other products.

It might interest the industry of today and its employees to know that at one time when Peterborough building costs were low, by present standards, you could buy a Toole door for $1.25.

"1862-3: Paton and Moir built the Auburn Woollen Mills. Later the property passed into the hands of James Kendry, R. Max Dennistoun, John Carnegie and others, as the Auburn Woollen Co. This textile industry has had a successful career. Lately, it has been absorbed by the Standard Woollen Mills, Inc."

Name of Auburn

It was from those mills of stone construction that the section of Peterborough north of Park Hill Road and east of the river acquired the neighborhood and sectional name of Auburn. In its busiest years under the Kendry management it provided employment for many families living on both side of the river in the north end of the city.

Eventually, the Auburn Mills passed into the hands of Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Ltd. who, only a few years prior to the second war, decided to scrap it. The old mill was demolished and its employees were dispersed, some of the staff remaining with the company by transfer to one or other of its plants elsewhere.

The comparatively new brick warehouse escaped the razing of this Peterborough industrial landmark, and is now used by G. Whitaker & Co., wool importers.

Dickson Raceway

"1860—Water has been let into the new raceway by Samuel Dickson. This canal extends from London St. as far as Murray St., following the curve of the high bank on the west side of the river. Its water power is available for industries."

Gleanings of information from time to time suggest that this waterway was extended across Hunter St., emptying into the river at the end of Simcoe St. Its course was largely through the present site of the Quaker Oats Company.

The Dickson lumber mill at the foot of London St., antecedent of the Peterborough Lumber Company, was one of the city's most active industries in the booming years of lumbering. Samuel Dickson harnessed the river at the foot of London St. by erecting a wooden dam at the present crossing of the Quaker Oats dam, and almost on the same footings.

Its sawdust mounted high on the east side of the river, and on the west side, almost to Waterford St., where the stables and the lumber piling ground of the Dickson mill.

Agent Of His Death

Samuel Dickson had lived at Nicholls Oval, but eventually he built for himself a spacious house at the top of Murray St. hill, northeasterly from the Court House. From that eyrie he could look down over the river which he had subjected to his will, and over the wide bay above his dam which somehow acquired the local name of Goose Pond. In the fullness of his success he could hardly have imagined that he had created the agent of his death. The river had yielded much to him, but it won the last round. In April, 1870, Mr. Dickson and two of his employees were repairing part of the dam. He slipped and was carried into the turbulent water below his dam.

The Dickson house must have occupied one of the most attractive residential spots in Peterborough. Its windows and lawns swept around the compass, long before the Quaker Oats mill raised its intervening heights of brick and mortar to reduce the prospect down stream and across the south end of the Scotch village to Little Lake.

Riverside Factories

"1865—Blythe flour mills rebuilt and in operation. Business is carried on by John Carnegie, Jr."

The Blythe mills were on the west side of the river at Auburn where several other industries were situated on the bank of the Otonabee.

"1867—New woollen factory built by Samuel Dickson at the Murray St. end of the power canal. It is 100 ft. by 60 ft.; three storeys. Leased to Mr. Brooks; afterwards destroyed by fire while under lease to Brodie & Co."

"1867—Samuel Dickson erects on the power canal a flour mill, 60 ft. by 30 ft.; three storeys; five run of stones."

That was the historic year of Confederation. The "run of stones" mentioned by Mr. Dobbin refers to the cereal mill equipment of those days. The grain was crushed between two moving surfaces of flat, round stones, whose surfaces were chipped in shallow narrow grooves which had to be renewed in their sharpness as the edge dulled in the grinding.

The building were used for several purposes. Now used by E. Roland Wilson for his machine works."

Wilson Machine Works

The Romaine building was at the east end of Dalhousie St., before the CPR bridge was constructed across the river. Later it was a bridge works. Its raw material of clay was brought up the river from a source several miles down in Otonabee. Only remnants are left today, and Mr. Wilson sold his interests in the property a few years ago.

"1881—Anson Sperry builds and carries on a new shingle mill on the east side of the river, just above the Locks. Its capacity is 60,000 shingles a day. Ran at full capacity for some years; destroyed by fire."

That site north of No. 7 Highway, on the east side of the river, and reaching Boylers Creek, appears to have continued its attraction for lumbering purposes. Ernest Mann, who died last month in Peterborough, was the last proprietor of a sawmill in that location.

"1867—White and Hamilton (Reid St.) extend foundry building, and enlarge facilities for manufacture.

1867: John Metheral builds carriage and wagon shop at the corner of George and Murray Sts.

1875—Robert Romaine builds the important industry known as Romaine brick works. This is one of the first structures to be constructed of concrete in the town. As planned, the clay is to be brought up the river on scows, hoisted to the building for manufacture under cover on the premises. An elaborate system of continuous kilns for building the brick has been installed. Power is derived from one of the disused Great Western locomotives, set up in an adjoining building. This enterprise failed,, largely from being wrongly planned as to supply of material, too far from the clay beds, too expensive handling, lack of adequate capital and a doubtful quality of product."

BOOKED IN 50-MILLION RACKET — All but one of six suspects in a tri-state, $50,000,000-a-year crooked numbers racket seem somewhat camera-shy as they're booked in New York after a series of lightning arrests. Left to right: Martin Martinson, Abe Goldberg, Jack Feldman, Edward Kane, Irving Bitz and Emil Strollo. All were held in connection with a ring which reportedly rigged financial house figures to gyp policy bettors.

Refugee Soviet Scientist Doing Cancer Research

By JACK MITCHELL

TORONTO, July 30 (CP).—A former Soviet scientist, refugee from the mental fetters of totalitarianism, wants to use his world-renowned talents to help put Canada at the forefront in the latest methods of cancer research.

Dr. Feodore Bohatirchuk, famous for his microradiography methods of probing cancer's mysteries, is Russia's loss and Canada's gain.

The greyish-haired scientist, a recent immigrant from a displaced persons camp in Germany, hopes to resume his research at the University of Ottawa. The University's medical facuty has applied to the National Cancer Institute for a research grant and a Fellowship for him.

Approval by the Institute, currently sponsoring 61 cancer research projects, would establish Canada's first research centre in this comparatively-new method of examining cancerous tissues.

Dr. Bohatirchuk is an example of the type of immigrant Canada's promise of freedom can lure from behind the Iron Curtain. Though internationally - known both as a chess master and a scientist, he found he was not excepted from Soviet Government dogmas.

He left Russia soon after the war ended and came to Canada last March, shortly after his daughter and her husband, Dr. George Jeletzky. He lives with them in the Ottawa suburb of Billings Bridge.

Pioneered Development

Dr. Bohatirchuk was a pioneer in the development of microradiographical cancer research and has written a number of works on the subject. Microradiography enables minute blood vessels to be examined by X-ray pictures taken after radio-opaque substances are injected into these blood vessels.

The developed pictures are studied under a microscope. Normal and abnormal tissues are examined in an effort to learn more about the nature of cancer.

Dr. Bohatirchuk conducted his research at the University of Kiev, where he was professor of clinical radiology from 1937 to 1943, and later in Russian government-sponsored X-ray laboratories.

Since arriving, he staged exhibitions in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, always playing a dozen or so opponents at once. They found his a brilliant if unorthodox chess player.

Black Market Gold

NEW YORK, July 30.—(AP).—A Federal Grand Jury Friday indicted four men on charges of million-dollar black market dealings in gold, United States Attorney John F. H. McGohey announced. The men, charged with conspiracy to violate the 1934 gold reserve act, allegedly set up a phony jewelry making business and then diverted about $2,500,000 worth of gold into the black market. They were identified as Achille Parrilla, 48; Allen James Geist, 24, Vincent Angeloni, 48, and Elwood Ward, 32, all from the New York area.

FISHING IS WHERE YOU FIND IT—When a nine-inch cloudburst swelled streams around Pleasanton, Tex., water rose to 18 inches in some stores, so store manager R. A. Royal took the opportunity to go fishing

Need Booster To Improve Water Pressure

"Water pressure in the district around Weller St. west and the Wartime Houses on the Hatton property will not be materially improved until the elevated tank and booster pumping station are constructed in October."

That is a quotation from the report of R. L. Dobbin, manager, to the Utilities Commission on Friday.

The water tower is especially needed to supply the new Civic Hospital. Commission decided to interview Mr. John Marshall, chairman of the Board of Governors of the hospital, about the location of the tank. Its estimated cost when ordered last year was around $25,000.

The June pumpage was 172,627,000 gallons as compared with 142,146,000 in June last year. This was the greatest monthly pumpage on record, averaging 5,750,000 gallons a day, an increase of one million gallons a day over June, 1948.

Reason For Restrictions

Mr. Dobbin reviewed the necessity for the restrictions in June on the use of water for lawns and gardens. The peak pumpage was June 19 at seven million gallons. Mr. Dobbin said that possibly conditions within the next two weeks, including the recent copious rains, might permit relaxing the lawn watering control.

"But, I'm not advising yet, not after our experience that Sunday," the manager said.

"By sacrificing some of the aesthetitc efects of the water, the capacity of the pumping plant was increased with no reduction in sterile quality," Mr. Dobin's report commented, presumably a reference to parched and brown lawns of those citizens who complied with the letter of the Commission's order.

King Okays Marriage

LONDON, July 30 (AP)—It's final and official now—the Earl of Harewood, 26, definitely can marry Marion Stein, 22. The consent of the King to the marriage was announced Friday night in the London Gazette. The King's consent was indicated when the engagement was announced July 20. Now it's a positive fact. The Earl of Harewood is 11th in line to the throne. Miss Stein is a Vienna-born pianist.

Central Fire College To Train Ontario Men

PORT COLBORNE, July 30 —(CP)—A central fire college for training of Ontario firefighters is expected to be in operation by 1950, E. F. Bevis, Chief of the Fire Services Division of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office, said Friday

He told the 48th annual convention of the Ontario Firemen's Association that his division now has six instructors to train men in Ontario departments. He said motion pictures will be used in some courses to be given during the next few months.

The convention continues today with demonstrations of various fire fighting equipment and a monster parade of Buffalo fire departments in the evening.

Have Heard Nothing

OTTAWA, July 30 — (CP). Both the Russian and Turkish Embassies Friday said they knew nothing of Doukhobor plans to leave Canada and settle in either Turkey or the Soviet. They were asked to comment on a dispatch from Krestova, BC, which John L. Lebedoff, leader of the Sons of Freedom, radical sect of the Doukhobors said his followers were leaving Canada and ready to settle in either Turkey or Russia, whichever country will accept them

Sabotage Tower

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 30. —(AP).—A $5,000 steel tower, erected for a new all-negro radio station here, was a mass of twisted wreckage Friday. Police said a cable supporting the 210-foot tower had been sawed through. The structure, completed Thursday ,fell Thursday night within 10 seconds after the cable was cut. Adam White, 33-year-old negro maintenance man at the station, said an automobile containing five white men drove to the tower. Two of the men got out while the others remained in the car. He said he heard a crash but "was afraid to go near."

Small Layoffs In Factories At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, July 30 — (ENS)—A survey of local industries made this week by an Examiner representative revealed that while there have been a few layoffs in some of the factories in recent weeks, only a comparatively small number were affected and the general picture continues favourable on the whole. The present uncertainties in the foreign market have had their effect locally in some curtailment in orders, but domestic markets are holding up well.

The largest employer of labor locally, the Campbellford Cloth Company, now has 360 on its payroll, with two shifts (night and day) in operation. A few employees were laid off recently while new machinery was being installed. There are still a few off the payroll at present, but their number is not large.

Markets of this company are "unsteady" at the moment, but reports are current that a new building is planned for the manufacture of carpets.

The Gair Company of Canada pulp mill is operating on three shifts at present, with practically all of the working force on the payroll, amounting to a total of 60 men. Domestic markets at the moment are "fair," but foreign markets are "poor."

The Breithaupt Leather Company has 60 men on its staff at present, with only a small number laid off. The plant is operating on a single-shift basis. Orders are small just now in foreign markets because of the uncertain state of international finances.

Campbellford Concrete Products is employing a small number of men on only one shift, but have not laid off any. The company's products are marketed locally only, but sales are holding up well.

At the Hogle Nursery Company sales are good, with plenty of work ahead for the landscaping crew CALLED LOTTERY RIGGER — White-haired Dennison Duble (left), secretary of the Cincinnati Clearing House Association, steps from his office in custody of a New York detective (centre) and an attorney after he was accused of conspiring to rig a lottery. He'll be extradited to New York in connection with a $50,000,000 crooked numbers racket.

Mrs. F. Reeve Funeral

HASTINGS, July 30 (ENS). — A large number of relatives and friends from Port Credit, Campbellford, Peterborough and other points attended the funeral of Mrs. Fred Reeve, which was held from her residence on Albert St., Thursday, with 9.00 requiem mass in Mount Carmel Church. Mrs. Reeve died on Monday at her home.

Rev. J. J. Garvey, pastor of the church, officiated and also conducted the service at the graveside in Mount Carmel cemetery.

Pallbearers were six nephews: Albert Crowley, Jack Lamey, John Lynch, Sylvester Lynch, William Lynch, and Frank Crowley.

Nipissing M.P. Remembered By The Public

By MEL SUFRIN

OTTAWA, July 29 (CP) — There are few things more disturbing for a politician than to go back home and find his own constituents don't recognize him.

That's why it's handy in the fickle field of politics to have a face that's different or a distinguishing feature which will help folks remember who you are.

When it comes to that, Jack Garland, Liberal member for Nipissing, has them all beaten.

He weighs about 500 pounds, and although it's hard to visualize a man that size, you don't forget him once you've seen him. Garland was in Ottawa for a day this week and it was evident around the Parliament Buildings that his fame as a heavyweight has spread.

Special Chairs

He was entering the parliamentary cafeteria when one of the centre block's many sightseers spotted him.

"That must be that new Liberal member from up around North Bay," she said to her friend. "You know, one of the men they're making those special chairs for."

Mr. Garland's seating problems are being taken care of by the public works department which is also handling similar difficulties for Mayor Camillien Houde, the Independent member for Montreal, who weighs something like 300 pounds.

Three specially-built, extra-wide, reinforced chairs are to be provided for each member. One will be placed in the House of Commons, a second in the offices of the two M.P.'s, and a third in the parliamentary restaurant.

The chairs are not ready yet, however, and on Mr. Garland's visit he had to use regular seat-facilities in the cafeteria.

He did not appear to be having any difficulty with the regular chrome-tubed chairs with leather seats while eating; and the chairs did not seem to be having any trouble holding those 500 pounds. Mr. Garland appeared to be comfortable although he did hang over substantially.

Mr. Garland is one of about 50 Liberal MP's who have visited Ottawa since the June 27 election. In most cases, the new members are making arrangements for their offices and getting familiar with the operations of Parliament, preparatory to the expected mid-September session.

Hon. C. G. Power, re-elected in Quebec South, was among the visitors.

George Drew, Conservative Leader, has been commuting between Guelph and Ottawa. He and his wife and children are spending the summer at Edward Johnson's Guelph home after selling their Toronto residence.

The Drews have an apartment in Ottawa but are still looking for a house in which to settle down again.

100 Citizens Volunteer To Help Police Track Down Toronto Killer

Law Officers Ask Assistance In Making House-To-House Search; Dress Up Dummy In Clothes Of Slayer

TORONTO, Aug. 2—(CP)—More than 100 citizens responded today to a special police call for co-operation in combing east-central Toronto for the slayer of Alfred Layng, 25, shot and killed Saturday while attempting to foil a robbery at a Parliament Street groceteria. Police said they asked for aid in making a house-to-house check of the district where the killer is believed in hiding. A $2,000 reward has been posted by police for information leading to his arrest. Meanwhile, a pin-striped coat, fedora hat, gloves and tie discarded by the slayer in his dash from the robbery scene, have been fitted on a wax dummy in the window of a Yonge Street cleaning establishment. Police hope the outfit may be recognized by an acquaintance of the gunman, who also wounded Leonard Lefty, 19, while making his getaway, chased by scores of stunned shoppers.

Layng, an RCAF veteran, was slain before his wife's eyes when he tackled the fleeing thief and tried to pin his arms to his sides. The bandit blasted two shots into Layng at point-blank range and fled as Layng crumpled at his wife's feet.

Seconds earlier, Leftly, a clerk in the groceteria, was shot in the hip after plunging at the bandit just outside the entrance to the store. However, Leftly won credit for causing the thief to drop his loot—approximately $1,000 in a brown paper bag. The bag of money rolled under an automobile and the robber left it there.

Police said later that the speed with which the man vanished indicated familiarit ywith that part of the city and suggested that he might still be hiding in the area. Chief Constable John Chisholm, who announced posting of a $2,000 reward, appealed to citizens to come forward with any information likely to assist the police.

The appeal soon brought results. Eyewitnesses of the shooting told police everything they could remember of the affair. Telephone calls to police head-

British Sloop Escapes Yangtze Trap

ABOARD HMS JAMAICA AT SEA, Aug. 2 (AP)—The battered little sloop Amethyst limped toward Hong Kong today where a rousing welcome awaits the doughty crew who brought her to freedom through Chinese Communist gunfire.

A squadron of Spitfires will dip in salute, bands will blare and a military honor guard will be waiting at the wharf when the shell-scarred Royal Navy craft arrives in Hong Kong harbor on Wednesday.

The medal of the Distinguished Service Order will be awarded Lt.-Cmdr. John S. Kerans, skipper of the Amethyst, which escaped Saturday night from moorings on the Yangtze river, 60 miles below Nanking.

The award will be made with the personal approval of the King, who already has commended the crew for its gallantry in bringing the ship to safety.

Trapped in Yangtze

The Amethyst had been pinned down in the Yangtze since April 20 when she got caught in Communist shore fire during a battle between British warships and Communist armies.

The Admiralty has asked the Far Eastern Naval Command to make any further recommendations for crewmembers who showed exceptional valor in getting the Amethyst out of her trap.

Police Locate Baby's Mother

MONTREAL, Aug. 2 (CP)—Police early today located the 41-year-old mother of a three-months-old girl found drowned in a pail of water in her parents' mid-town Montreal apartment late Monday.

Police said the mother, Mrs. Lionel Simard for whom they had been searching since Mr. Simard returned home from work Monday evening and discovered baby Therese dead, would appear at an inquest into the child's death.

Mr. Simard found his child's body lying head down in a pail of water on the floor at the foot of the bed in their one-room flat. There was no trace of the mother.

Reports Philippines Make Good Recovery

KINGSTON, Aug. 2—(CP)—Justice Delfin Jaranilla of the Philippines, visiting friends here with his wife and daughter, said today in an interview that the Philippines is recovering rapidly from the effects of the war, despite heavy damage to industry and economy.

He said close ties exist between the United States and the Philippines, which became independent in 1946, and U.S. business men are welcomed in the Pacific state.

Justice Jaranilla, who was imprisoned by the Japanese when they occupied the Philippines, was one of the 11 judges of the International Military Tribunal which sat for more than two years in Tokyo. He now is en route home after visiting Europe and the United States.

Pair Escape Seconds Before Train Hits Car

COBOURG, Aug. 2 (ENS) — Two men had a close brush with death at about 1 p.m. today when the car in which they were riding got caught in some loose gravel on a railway crossing at Smithfield, near here, after a trailer tire went flat. The lucky car occupants were Sid Andrews, of Smithfield, the driver; and his stepfather, William J. Perkins, 52, of Brighton.

Shortly after car got stuck on the crossing, Mr. Andrews saw the noon CNR train coming toward him. He and his father quickly jumped clear of the car, which was completely demolished by the train seconds afterwards. Mr. Andrews tried to signal the train to a stop, but the engineer could not see him because of a bend in the track.

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Peiping Communist radio, in its first news tonight of the escape of the Royal Navy sloop Amethyst, alleged that the ship sank a Chinese passenger vessel, drowning hundreds of passengers, in its dash down the Yangtze.

More Details Demanded On Truman's Aid Program

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP). —Democrats joined Republicans on the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee today in calling for more details on President Truman's request for a $1,400,000,000 program to help friendly countries arm against Russian aggression.

The Democrats, unlike their Republican colleagues, indicated willingness to take the program on faith if the details they seek are not forthcoming.

Specifically, they want to know whether there is any ironclad agreement that the countries receiving American arms will use them as a team if action becomes necessary.

Representative Mike Mansfield (Dem. Mont.) told reporters he still isn't convinced that a plan of co-ordinated action has been worked out and will be effective.

Like other Democrats on the committee, however, he said it may be necessary to take the program on faith upon the assurances of such men as State Secretary Dean Acheson, Defence Secretary Louis Johnson and Former Secretary of State George Marshall that the program is a "must."

Republicans still insisted that something definite in the line of assurances of co-ordinated action be provided. Unless it is, they said, they won't be inclined to favor the program, but will vote for an interim setup of about half the amount requested.

Military heads of the United States army, navy and air force now are in Europe conferring with leaders of some of the countries listed for aid under the President's program. They are scheduled to testify when they return next week.

2,000 Enjoy Veterans' Picnic

Favored by ideal weather and an address by Ontario's Premier, Hon. Leslie M. Frost, more than 2,000 men, women and children spent an enjoyable afternoon and evening on the Civic Holiday taking in the annual Peterborough Veterans' parade and picnic. The parade was spiced by the presence in it of several of Dailey Brothers' Circus attractions, including large and small elephants, the caliope, horses, and clowns.

The parade, which started at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Sts., was halted at the Cenotaph on George St. long enough for Premier Frost to lay a wreath

St. Laurent Hints Meeting With Frost A Possibility

OTTAWA, Aug. 2—(CP)—Just back from vacation, Prime Minister St. Laurent Monday indicated he feels Premier Frost of Ontario may be willing to talk business on Dominion-Provincial relations. He also indicated that the date of the opening of the new parliament will be announced following a cabinet meeting this week. Sept. 15 or 22 are considered likely dates.

Mr. St. Laurent's statement about Ontario came in the thick of reporters' questions about chances for revival of the 1945-46 conference which broke up without reaching general agreement on federal proposals to rent provincial tax sources as a prelude to action in the field of social security.

He said nothing that amounted to blunt prediction but his words could be interpreted as a feeling that Ontario and the Federal Government may get together before another general conference. Seven of the provinces have signed individual agreements and Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland is in town in connection with the signing of an agreement with his province.

Have Responsibility

Mr. St. Laurent, arriving by train from Quebec City after a three-weeks' vacation in Bathurst, N. B., recalled:

"I had an interview with Mr. Frost before leaving here and although we spoke only of generalities I got the impression we both realize we have a responsibility to our constituents and that they expect us to act accordingly."

At Toronto, Acting Premier Doucett said today the Ontario government would be "very glad" to meet the Dominion to discuss the complex Dominion-Provincial issues.

This government would be quite willing to consider any suggestion they wish to make," said Mr. Doucett, Highways Minister in the Ontario cabinet who is acting for Premier Frost, now on vacation.

Centralized Rate Control Urged For Transportation

MONTREAL, Aug. 2—(CP).—Centralized control of rates on all forms of transportation in Canada was suggested to the Royal Commission on Transportation to-day by Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

The brief from Dosco, one of the country's three producers of basic steel, declared co-ordination of charges on transportation rates generally was necessary if shippers and carriers were to be treated equitably.

Disco also complained specifically about the treatment given products of its own Maritimes plants under the 21 per cent freight-rate increase awarded the railroads last year by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

This "ill-advised" action had the effect of aggravating geographical handicaps affecting those plants in relation to competitors nearer market centres, hte company said.

In calling for centralized control of all transport rates, the company declared that this should be sought by "agreement"—presumably between the Dominion and the provinces—or by constitutional amendment.

At present, highway transport is under provincial control. The Federal Government has jurisdiction over railways, inland shipping, and air services.

Both Countries Now Given Added Rights For Commercial Aircraft

Important New Phase Of Pact Principle Of Intermediate Traffic Rights, Can Make Extra Stops For Passengers

LONDON, Aug. 2—(CP)—Canada and the United Kingdom today concluded a new bilateral air agreement, giving both countries added rights to operate commercial aircraft in each other's territory. Announcement of the new agreements was made by Canada's Transport Minister, Lionel Chevrier, who initialled the pact on behalf of the Dominion. Formal signature is expected to take place at an early date in Ottawa.

Mr. Chevrier said in a statement that the new pact will replace various anglo-Canadian notes and agreements on the operation of commerial air traffic signed in 1945, 1947 and 1948. It will not come into effect "until certain points therein requiring the concurrence of some of the British colonial governments have been cleared with these governments."

Generally, the agreement means that air lines established between Canada and the UK, such as Trans-Canada Air Lines and British Overseas Airways will continue operation over existing routes between Montreal and UK airports.

Fifth Freedom

A new and important phase of the agreement is that for the first time the principle of "fifth freedom" or intermediate traffic rights will be recognized.

Previously, Anglo-Canadian Air Lines were limited to "fourth freedom" traffic, that is moving passengers between the two countries without the right to stop and pick up extra passengers in intermediate countries.

The new agreement makes specific provision for the carriage of this intermediate traffic by commercial air lines in both countries.

This will mean that Trans-Canada Air Lines on its service to the UK from Montreal and Gander Airport in Newfoundland will be able to stop off in Iceland, Ireland and the Azores and pick up passengers for the UK.

British Overseas Airways Corporation, the UK Air Line, will be able to do the same kind of business in flying passengers to Canada.

Hill Risks His Life On Rapids For $2.50

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 2 — (CP)—Major Hill counted up the "take" to-day and found he had risked his life in the swirling rapids of the Niagara River Gorge for $2.50.

That, he told reporters, was the amount collected by a friend who passed the hat among some of the thousands who watched Saturday and Monday when he braved the Rapids in a 625-pound steel drum.

Major — that's his christian name, not a military title—already is preparing to attempt a second journey Labor Day.

Malay Woman 121

PENANG, Aug. 2 (Reuters). — A Malay woman aged 121 years, and generally believed to be the oldest woman in Malaya, has died here. Born in Penang 42 years after Captain Francis Light declared the island a Crown colony, she is survived by her descendants of the fifth generation.

Policemen Hurt In Clash With Dockers

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 2 — Several policemen were injured to-day in clashes with dock workers attending a protest meeting in downtown Sydney.

Twelve men were arrested following violent fighting which surged in and around the city's busiest intersection.

The dockers, who have been holding weekly demonstrations to protest imprisonment of two of their leaders, came to blows with some onlookers who cheered the police. Other onlookers were knocked over by wild punches and many women shoppers screamed and fainted.

Three policemen were injured.

Earlier, 4,000 dockers walked off 42 ships in Sydney Harbor in protest against a move by shipowners to have "attendance" money stopped.

The "attendance" money, 12s ($2.40) daily, is paid the men when they report for work, but there has been no work available for some time as a result of the coal strike.

The dockers' leaders were jailed for contempt of court for failing to disclose what they had done with £600 ($2,400) of union funds alleged to have been drawn from the bank to assist the coal strike.

Trapped On Rock For 11 Hours

COLUMBIA, S.C., Aug. 2 (AP) —Two city firemen early today rescued a 21-year-old man from the perilous rocky perch he had occupied in the middle of the swirling Broad river for 11 hours.

The firemen brought Robert Monroe Leek to safety in an outboard motor boat after a risky, quarter-mile round-trip run.

A navy blimp, sent from Savannah, Ga., hovered nearby, hampered by rolling fog. Also at hand, but taking no part in Lee's rescue, was a helicopter which had been sent by truck from Pipe Field, B.C.

Lee had been marooned on the rock since early night when he and a companion were trapped by rampaging flood waters released in part from a power dam 10 miles upstream.

Lee and his companion, 25-year old James Dent, were trapped by rising waters as they fished on a rock about 75 yards from the bank. Dent made his way to safety soon after the pair were marooned, but Lee—unable to swim—was forced to remain.

Puts Radio In Car To Swindle Bookies

DETROIT, Aug. 2 (AP)—Police Monday reported the arrest of a man who, they said, had been relaying race track results to eastern United States gamblers with an elaborate radio outfit at a local track.

Officers said the man was Anthony J. Pecukonis, 26, of Waterbury, Conn. They said they believed his radioed information may have enabled gamblers to swindle bookies of thousands of dollars. When arrested, Pecukonis was in an expensive car at the Detroit fairgrounds track. The car was equipped with a radio telephone and a short-wave radio which could transmit messages across the continent.

Plants Make Weapons On Big Scale

Find More Uranium In Own Backyard Push Peace Uses Too

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The United States has gone into production of the more effective atomic bombs tested at Eniwetok in 1948, and has made advances on other atomic fronts, Congress was told Monday.

The information was presented by the Atomic Energy Commission in its semi-annual report. President Truman said in a statement that the country has "reason for reassurance and faith" that the atomic program is being effectively pressed, both for defence and human welfare purposes.

This apparently was his answer to the charges of "incredible mismanagement" which Senator Bourke Hickenlooper (Rep. Iowa) made against A. F. C. chairman David E. Lilienthal. A Congressional investigation of the charges has been in progress.

On Industrial Scale

The AEC reported:

1. Its Eniwetok-tested bombs —more effective than those used before 1948—are being produced on an "industrial basis." This means that they have progressed beyond the laboratory-made stage and are being turned out by private manufacturing companies working for the AEC, and in AEC plants.

2. Fissionable uranium and plutonium—the sources of atomic energy for all purposes— are being produced in greater amounts than ever before.

3. Increasing attention was given in the last six months "to reactor development, an item of prime military and eventual civilian importance."

(A reactor or pile is a device for the controlled release of atomic energy. It is with such devices that scientists hope eventually to achieve propulsion for aircraft and ships, and also furnish electrical power for industry.)

4. The United States has found new sources of precious uranium to its own backyard—"enormous tonnages" of materials having a low content of uranium.

Golds, Base Metals On March In Toronto

TORONTO, Aug. 2 (CP)—Golds and base metals were on the march today as they showed sweeping gains across the board. The rise brought a large increase in activity with it.

The industrial list was spotted liberally with gains in fractions and in a few isolated cases the dollar sign was tacked onto the increase. Among the bigger gainers were Canadian Vickers, up a point, Niagara Wire Weaving, up five, Dominion Tar preferred, a ¼ gainer, Dominion Textiles, up the same amount. Others includes Canadian Car A, ahead by a half a point, Gypsum, which gained ½, Argus, up ¼ and McColl preferred, a half point winner.

Senior golds forged ahead with Dome half a dollar richer. McIntyre ⅝ in the same direction, Wright Hargreaves, eight cents on the plus side and Tech Hughes up five cents.

Junior gainers included Giant Yellowknife, a 15 cent winner, Malartic Gold Fields, ahead nine cents, Buffalo Ankerite, a holding issue, also 15 cents on the right side and Pamour, a 10 cent gainer.

Base metals kept rolling along on a three point gain by Consolidated Smelters, a ¼ increase by International Nickel and ⅝ tacked on by Noranda.

UN Refuses Reds Names Of DP's

GENEVA, Aug. 2 (AP) — The United Nations Economic and Social Councils' social committee Monday rejected a Russian demand that it be furnished with complete lists of 418,000 displaced persons living in camps of the International Refugee Organization.

Walter Kotschnig, U. S. delegate, told the committee he found something sinister in the Russian request for this information.

"What do they ask?" he inquired. "That information be delivered to police authorities which would help them in their work of repression."

Anatoli G. Kulajenkov, Soviet delegate, presented the resolution asking for this information and other data concerning the allocation of camps the nationality and other aspects of the refugees. He charged that displaced persons were being held against their will.

Kulajenkov claimed that a large number of these refugees were Russian and that certain obstacles were being raised to their repatriation.

The Soviet Union, he said, had repatriated 22,000 Americans, 24,000 Britains and 113,000 French citizens, but these countries had not repatriated Russian citizens.

The bicycle industry increased its exports from £8,451,509 to £10,905,949 and the motor cycle industry from £3,779,477 to £3,937,514.

Pensioner Dies As Cabin Burns

COCHRANE, Ont., Aug. 2 (CP) Provincial police said Monday Antian Leino has been released from hospital here after treatment to a head wound which they said apparently was inflicted by Elis Asorsagd, 70-year-old pensioner, with whom he lived in a shack in the Finnish settlement of Arbin.

Asorsagd died in a fire which destroyed the shack shortly after the attack on Leino, who fled the building and ran to neighbors for assistance.

Arbin is 22 miles southeast of here.

District sergeant I. R. Robbie said Asorsagd had been "acting a bit queer" recently. He quoted Leino as telling police he had been struck from behind by Asorsagd, standing behind a door, as he entered the shack Saturday evening. He ran to neighbors for help.

After treating Leino, the neighbors noticed the shack afire by the time they had extinguished the flames Asorsagd was dead from asphyxiation.

Police said they found a knife and a pair of taped "knuckle dusters" on Asorsagd's body. A woodbox in the front room smelled strongly of kerosene and investigation established that Asorsagd had bought a can of kerosene Saturday morning. The can was found empty.

Skips Out of Hospital Hill Finishes Barrel Trip

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 2—Still bruised and battered from Saturday's interrupted trip, Major Lloyd Hill walked out of the Greater Niagara Falls Hospital Monday morning, unnoticed by nurses, and four hours later resumed his trip down the Niagara River and through the rapids in his barrel.

His barrel was re-launched at 3.25 p.m. Monday 500 feet down stream from the Whirlpool where he almost met his Waterloo Saturday night in the swirling eddies and at exactly 4.28 he stepped out of the barrel at the Canada Steamship dock in Queenston after finally winning a clear-cut decision over the river and the rapids.

Saturday's trip was halted in the Whirlpool, three miles downstream from the starting point, after it became evident that the barrel could not navigate the swift eddies. The 30-year-old daredevil, his left leg injured, stepped out on the barrel and was hauled 265 feet out of the gorge in a life saving basket.

Hill was taken to hospital in an ambulance and Monday morning he walked out while nurses were looking for a doctor to arrange his discharge. Half an hour later he called reporters and revealed that he would go back in his barrel this afternoon.

Has Slight Limp

The ex-paratrooper, though limping slightly, showed no outward signs of Saturday's injuries. He was lowered part way into the gorge by a rope and then walked down the remainder of the incline to the point where he was hut on Saturday. He entered the barrel in the whirlpool and was towed by attendants 500 yards down the river to a point an eighth of a mile above the boiling rapids for his relaunching.

Only a handful of people watched Monday's trip from both sides of the gorge. Hill's barrel made a clean start and plunged into the swirling rapids almost faster than the eye could follow. It bounced and twisted in the foaming waters, finally coming into view seven miles downstream in front of the HEPC plant at Queenston.

From here it was clear sailing for the young riverman. He opened his hatch and waved to the people above him on top of the gorge. The barrel ran into difficulty in front of the power plant when again undercurrents caught it and for a time it looked as if the trip was going to end here after the barrel twice washed into the American shore. It finally found its way back to mid-stream and was picked up below the Lewiston Bridge by two motor boats which guided it to the Canada Steamship dock at Queenston.

Gored By Bull Farmer Dies

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 2 — William Boulter, 64, was gored to death by a bull on his farm near Dorion, 40 miles southeast of Port Arthur. He died while being rushed to hospital in Nipigon in the family car.

Boulter left home shortly after 7 to bring his cattle from near-by pasture to the barn. He found that his bull had broken through the fence around an adjoining field and was grazing among the cattle.

Boulter ignored the bull and started to lead the cattle home. The bull followed docily and even permitted itself to be placed in a small shed. After putting the cows in the big barn, Boulter returned to the shed to place a rope on the bull and lead it back to its own field.

As he entered the shed, the bull rushed him, one of its sharp horns piercing his chest. As the animal stood over him, Boulter shouted to his wife and other members of the family and asked them to bring boiling water to throw on the animal. A man rushed in with a pail of water and threw it at the bull, which shied away.

Bleeding profusely, Boulter was picked up and rushed to Nipigon, but he was dead on arrival.

Record Circus Crowd

The combination of a circus and a holiday meant a record crowd undes the big top of the circus Monday afternoon and evening.

The tent which housed the five-ring circus was probably the largest ever seen in Peterborough and it was jammed full with excited children and their parents for the afternoon performances.

The railroad cars rolled into town Sunday morning. Soon hundreds came down to see the unloading and examine everything from dwarf elephants to clowns without their makeup.

In the early afternoon many of the performers joined in the Canadian Legion parade to add their gaudy glamor.

in honor of the city's war dead. It then continued up George St. to Parkhill Rd., and thence to Nicholls Oval, where Premier Frost, himself a veteran of World War 1, addressed the crowd from the bandshell.

The Premier, who was introduced by a fellow Cabinet member, Hon. Harold R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, of Peterborough, paid tribute to the great work the Canadian Legion has done, not only for wounded and needy veterans and their families, but also for Canada. He said that the Dominion had had "no more stabilizing influence" in the difficult times through which the country has gone of late years than the Legion, and declared that he was very proud to be a member of such a public-spirited group. He brought the greetings from his own branch, Sir Sam Hughes No. 67, Lindsay, and from he Legionnaires of Victoria and Haliburton.

Beside the parade, other big attractions were a display by an RCAF jet aircraft from Trenton and a demonstration of aerial ladder technique by the Fire Department.

Asks Dedication

Hon. Mr. Frost urged the veterans to dedicate themselves to the great continuing cause of helping to build a bigger and better Canada. He said it was not sufficient simply to rest on the laurels they won for their country in two world wars, as there are other enemies in our midst still to be fought.

"It is our duty to make sure that the gains we have won on the battlefield are consolidated and not be allowed to go for naught. We must strive for a better standard of living for all and see that our children are protected from having to undergo the trials that we have gone through. We must do a real job for Canada, the greatest country in the world to-day."

Official Welcome

Mayor M. J. Swanston extended an official welcome to the Premier on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough and added his praise of the good work the Legion is doing. His Worship said that he was pleased to be able to say that the majority of the members of his council at the present time are war veterans. The Premier was thanked for his speech by Ald. Hurrell Dodds, a Legion member, who acted as chairman. Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., presented a trophy donated by him, to Doug Anderson of the Lions Club, for the group having the best float in the parade.

Following the addresses Legion officials tendered a reception to Premier and Mrs. Frost in the main tent at which a gift of a "Travelarm" clock, made in Peterborough, was presented to Hon. Mr. Frost and a vase of flowers to Mrs. Frost.

Members of the City Council and their wives were presented to Premier and Mrs. Frost by Mayor Swanston and members of the Legion executive and their wives by President Harold Yelland. Presidents of the service clubs and a number of other organizations were also presented to the Premier. Also present at the reception were Lt.-Col. Max Clarke and Mrs. Clarke.

Besides the Lions Club float, other prize-winning parade entries were: decorated motorcycles, 1, Mrs. Clare Heard, 146 Park St.; 2, Mr. Heard; decorated bicycles, 1, John Watson, 677 Rogers St.; 2 Ricky Hosker, 16 Wallace St.; 3, Marilyn Devlin, 474 Park St.

Man Kills Wife, Self As Customers Watch

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2 (AP) —A man shot and killed his estranged wife today and then fired a fatal bullet through his own heart as two women who had entered a small luncheonette to eat breakfast looked on.

The dead: Mrs. Jean Weiner, 50, and her husband, Abraham, 55.

Police said Weiner, in a note left on the soda fountain, said he came to the small restaurant, which his wife operated, in the hope he could effect a reconciliation with her.

New Store Uses Glass Exterior In Modern Mode

The front of the new Cherney Brothers' furniture store at the corner of George and King Sts. is the last word in exterior arrangement and decoration. It incorporates many new ideas which the brothers picked up on trips they made to New York, Detroit, and other American metropolises for this purpose during the past year. The first floor frontage is entirely of glass, including double-swinging, glass doors, except for about a foot at the base, which is of green terazzo. Stainless steel has been used for window frames throughout.

One of the leading features of the modern storefront is a revolving platform 16 feet in diameter, on which can be displayed three types of household furniture at the same time. This is located at the northwest corner of the building.

A modern, stainless steel canopy generously sprinkled with flush-with-ceiling spotlights, runs the whole width of the frontage of the building.

Another feature is a system of window lights, which can be adjusted to different intensities and effects.

A completely new and wider sidewalk has been constructed on both the George St. and King St. sides of the building, the new store having been set back three feet beyond the frontage of the building formerly located here.

In addition to the main entrance on George St. there are two entrances on King St., together with entry from a right-of-way which extends from the south side of the building at the rear to Sherbrooke St.

To Invest $141,440 In Building Projects

Building permits issued in July from the office of City Engineer A. E. Chalmers were slightly less than in the seventh month last year, but the total value for the year is still nearly twice the amount for the same period in 1948.

Seventy-three permits last month, including 14 dwellings, represent an investment of $141,440 as compared with 123 permits for $168,991 in July last year.

Total value of the permits for the seven months of 1949 to the end of July was $2,674,864, as against $1,382,482 for the corresponding period last year.

Details of how the accident month were: 6 garages $1,580, 14 houses $87,500, miscellaneous permits (53) $52,360; total, $141,440.

And in July last year: 11 garages $2,530, 21 dwellings $104,700, 91 miscellaneous $61,761; total, $168,991.

Marshall Aid In Denmark Boosts Agricultural Work

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 2 (Reuters).—The stream of United States Marshall-Plan dollars flowing into Denmark now is beginning to show results in a steady rise in Danish agricultural production and exports.

Primarily a dairy-farming country, Denmark's chief national asset is her 2,000,000 head of cattle. The Danish Government has concentrated its spending of Marshall dollars on oil cakes for these cattle, coarse grain for pigs and machinery for the mechanization of farms.

From April 3, 1948, to June 30, 1949, Denmark's allocation of European Recovery Program dollars amounted to 528,000,000 kroner ($105,600,000). At April 1 of this year, 478,000,000 kroner had been converted into import licenses including actual imports totalling 300,000,000 kroner.

Of this latter amount, imports of agricultural material accounted for more than half. Some 30 per cent of that total was for fodder.

Agricultural experts here believe that, to Denmark, animal fodder is in effect capital investment. Sufficient fodder imports mean more and more agricultural produce which will provide the means of payment for other goods in great demand.

Marshall-aid mechanization of the farms has also made good progress. In 1944, Danish agriculture owned some 4,500 tractors. Today, that figure has increased to 12,000. This has enabled Danish farmers to meet the problem caused by a drift of farm labor into the towns in search of higher wages.

During the last 10 years, the numbers employed in agriculture have fallen by some 30 to 35 per cent. But mechanization has enabled production to be maintained and improved.

As plans went forward for a semi-military funeral Wednesday for the slain man, his widow, the former Shirley Sheridan, bowed with grief, told a reporter:

Blows Self Up Blinds Wife Over Jealousy

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 2 (AP)—A jealous miner apparently used a case of dynamite—48 sticks—to blow up himself and his estranged wife Sunday night in downtown Clarksburg.

J. Duane Secrest, 41, was killed. His wife, Dorothy Marie, 36 is unconscious and on the critical list at a hospital. She was blinded and injured internally.

Secrest had told his wife he would "blow you to hell and back" if he saw another man go into her apartment.

Police Chief E. F. Amsler learned from witnesses that Mr. and Mrs. Secrest had another argument around Sunday midnight in front of the apartment house.

She turned to go into the building and Secrest tossed something after her, saying, "This is it."

The front of the four-storey apartment building was wrecked. Windows blew out of 25 near-by homes and front porches were smashed off some. Three houses caught fire.

Power and telephone service were cut off from 200 homes. Dishes rattled off shelves two miles away. Nine persons were given emergency treatment for shock and cuts from flying glass.

The Secrests were married three years ago. Their 2-year-old son Gary Duane, was in a back room of the apartment and unhurt.

Truman Signs Bill To Admit Dr. Raff

WASHINGTON, August 2 (CP) — President Truman Monday signed a bill to admit to the United States Dr. Rudolph A. V. Raff, an Austrian by birth but a resident of Canada since 1939.

A Senate Judiciary Committee spokesman said Raff since 1941 has been a research chemist at the Howard Smith Paper Mills, Limited, in Cornwall. He added that Raff is now a naturalized Canadian citizen.

An official of Koppers Company, Incorporated, of Pittsburg, told a Congressional inquiry committee the company searched the United States unsuccessfully for a chemist skilled in polymerization, particularly in the plastics field. He said the firm finally located Dr. Raff in Canada and that he "fully meets the requirements of the company."

PARK YOUR CAR CLOSE TO THE CURB

When you do find a parking space on the street, be sure to tuck your car close into the curb. By doing so you not only make it easier for the vehicles ahead and behind to get out, you leave more room in the traffic lane and so cut down accident hazards. It may take an extra minute, but your thoughtfulness will be appreciated by others. Yes, it's a little thing, but "Good Citizenship" is made up of a lot of little things.

Dunbar Praises Courage Of Hastings Pioneers At Centenary Celebration

TWEED, Aug. 2 —(ENS)— A crowd of over 1,500 gathered in Tweed's beautiful Memorial Park on Monday to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the historic county of Hastings. Driving force that made it possible was S. A. McCarey, the county's 100th warden.

Speaking at the celebration, Mr. McCarey said that one hundred years is a long time, but for the people of the county of Hastings, it has been one hundred years of progress and of satisfactory achievement because we have been fortunate enough to be situated within the confines of the British Empire.

Little to Give

"I can only look back," he said, "with respect and admiration for the early wardens and councillors. They had little to guide them; communication was difficult or non-existent; and interest was in the success of the locality rather than that of the county. It needed the pioneering spirit of the people from the British Isles and the enterprise and determination of the United Empire Loyalists, to weld the county into one compact municipality."

Introducing the guest speaker, Hon. George Dunbar, Provincial Minister of Municipal Affairs, E. S. Denyes, county clerk, referred to the purpose of the celebration.

"Today", he stated, "we celebrate the Baldwin Act of 1849, sponsored by a loyal citizen, Robert Baldwin, who preferred honor to place, and the father of our present municipal government".

"Municipalities are my family," declared Hon. Mr. Dunbar, "952 of them, and the finest men we have today are members of our county councils."

He paid tribute to the spirit, foresight, courage and determination of the pioneers of the county men and women who remained steadfast to the principles of British democracy and justice in the face of fearful adversities. "We must face the future," he said, "with the same spirit and hand down something worth while to the generations that are to follow."

Big Achievement

He referred to Captain Meyers who in 1794 built the first brick house in Canada on the property where the city of Belleville now stands. "In 1878," Mr. Dunbar said, "the county of Hastings shipped 600,000 bushels of barley to England and produced $600,000 worth of butter and cheese.

"Your county is the largest county in the province," he said, "and is rich in both natural resources and scenery. The southern part is one of the finest farming areas anywhere and the northern section is a tourists' paradise. The tourist trade," he stated, "is new found money and can be developed through the construction of good roads and the provision of satisfactory accommodation."

Prizes were given to Joseph Hughes, 89, Stoco, for being the oldest resident on the ground; Robert Hannah of Hartsmere for having the largest family, 10; Col. R. Vanderwater, Sidney, for the greatest number of years, 10, since acting as Warden; and James Moore of Elzevir municipality for the greatest number of years, 30, since being a councillor. Stirling citizens' band was in attendance.

Motor Fails On Boat 4 People Marooned

DERBY, N.Y., Aug. 2—(AP)—Two men and two boys, all from Port Colborne, Sunday were rescued from a disabled fishing boat by the crew of the lake freighter John J. Boland.

The Canadians said their motor failed Saturday night while they were trolling for yellow pike. They drifted 16 hours across Lake Erie to a spot off Sturgeon Point near here.

Sidney Bisbee said he and Maclaren Longwell burned their shirts and under-clothing in futile effort to attract attention during the night.

Longwell's sons, Donald, 11, and Maklon, seven, were the others aboard. None suffered ill effects.

Ask Agreement Delayed

WASHINGTON, August 2 (AP) —Forty-nine Senators Monday asked President Truman to hold up an agreement with Canada under which Canadian airlines would fly the Montreal-New York route. The Senators complained that this agreement was reached by secret negotiations. They said United States carriers thus were "deprived of valuable property and other rights without opportunity to be heard."

Making Progress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—President Truman told Congress Monday that the Greek government, with United States help, is making "solid progress" toward winning its civil war with the Communists. He attributed this to improved Greek leadership, accumulating United States military supplies, months of training of Greek soldiers, and "determination, decisiveness and aggressiveness" in the orders of the Greek high command.

Admits Killing Wife

SWEETSBURG, Que., August 2 (CP)—Philippe Laporte, 34-year-old farmer of nearby Brigham, was held criminally responsible for the strangulation murder of his wife in their farmhouse bedroom early Saturday morning at a coroner's inquest held here Monday. Laporte, father of six children, was said by police to have confessed to the murder when he walked into the Granby police station at 7.30 a.m. Saturday and gave himself up with the simple explanation: "I have just killed my wife in a fit of jealousy."

Traffic Heavy Over Holiday Across Ontario

By The Canadian Press

In those parts of Canada where it is celebrated, Civic Holiday found Canadians in holiday mood.

A Canadian Press survey Monday night showed that the main celebrations were in Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta and that weather in those provinces favored the usual outdoor celebrations.

Traffic on highways in Ontario was reported extremely heavy but accidents were relatively few. Cool weather, welcome relief from last week's heat wave, helped to hold water mishaps to a minimum.

The influx of weekend visitors taxed accommodation from Cornwall to Windsor. Crowds were attracted to a dozen centres by special events which ranged from regimental reunions at Hamilton and Haileybury to centennial celebrations at Tweed and Bornish, near London.

The largest gathering was at Windsor where 50,000 participated in mass spiritual services on the occasion of Emancipation Day. At Midland, another 15,000 witnessed a five-day religious pageant at the Martyrs' Shrine.

Highland games featured celebrations at Cornwall and Bornish. A crowd of 15,000 watched the second annual Highland games at Maxville, near Cornwall, and 500 turned out at Bornish for the Scottish entertainment at the community's centennial observance.

Traffic was comparatively light at Niagara Falls despite the influx of 700 from St. Thomas making their annual Canadian Legion excursion to that city.

7,000 Attend Cobourg's Civic Holiday Celebration

COBOURG, August 2 (ENS)—Cobourg's Civic Holiday celebration doubled the town's population. At least 7,000 people took in the big program that started Friday night and wound up last night. A crowd estimated at in excess of five thousand people jammed the park yesterday evening. The registration of visitors by the Business and Professional Women's Club listed one thousand Cobourg old boys and old girls.

The calithumpian parade was over an hour traversing the two-mile route, and had a record number of entries. Local police had the problem of looking after the heaviest holiday traffic ever to pass through Cobourg. On Friday, the traffic heading east through Cobourg at times was bumper to bumper and jammed traffic the entire length of the business section of No. 2 Highway.

The Kinsmen Club operated a carnival in the park with the proceeds going to the recreational centre fund. Sunday afternoon saw a big Legion drumhead service with visiting Legion branches from all over central Ontario. Guest speaker was Rev. Major John Foote, V.C., M.P.P. A parade of over 1,500 veterans with several bands highlighted the drumhead service.

Pensions Lagging

Imperial war veterans should receive the privileges enjoyed by Canadian veterans, Major Foote declared.

Taking as his theme "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" Mr. Foote said a sense of brotherhood should exist in regard to the Imperial veterans.

He lauded the present Minister of Veterans Affairs as a capable office-holder. The pensions board, however, was too small to do all the work and their duties were piling up so much that some of the applicants would be dead before their cases could be considered.

Chairman of the service was Jack Jordan, president of the local legion.

Others on the platform were: Ontario Welfare Minister W. A. Goodfellow; Dr. Fred G. Robertson, MP for Northumberland; Mayor Joe Smith, Warden W. Runnals, Legion Padre A. E. Larke of Gore's Landing, and Zone Cmdr. W. Lovell of Oshawa.

Following are the calithumpian parade winners:

Have The Gangsters Moved In On Los Angeles?

Evidence has been produced and published during the past year which leads to the suspicion that Los Angeles has contracted the disease of gangsterism which inflamed Chicago and New York in the 'twenties. Whether the Los Angeles case will become as virulent remains to be seen, but the early symptoms are typical. Three gangsters have been placed on the spot marked "X" in the California metropolis during the past year; one died there and the other two slid off, perhaps only temporarily.

* * *

The story of Benny the Meatball running out screaming with five bullets in him could have been lifted from any of several episodes in the life of the late Jack (Legs) Diamond, who was probably the most punctured gangster of the 'twenties. About once a year it seemed, Diamond would be reported hanging out with a fresh batch of wounds. His total was once estimated at fifty-four bullet wounds, as well as a few scratches and lumps left by knives and blunter instruments. And what happened to Bugsy Siegel—shot to death at the home of his girl—happened to scores of mobsters in the days when Machine-Gun Jack McGurn was chopping them down in Chicago, while the killers of Dutch Schultz and Owney Madden were doing the same thing in New York.

* * *

An even more striking parallel, for those interested in the records of gangsterism, may develop in the case of Mickey Cohen, latest Los Angeles gangster to be shot. Cohen, it seems, desired the appearance of respectability, and opened a haberdashery, just as Dion O'Bannion opened a florist's shop in Chicago before Capone acquired complete control of that city's vice and bootlegging rackets. O'Bannion received a warning wound, but persisted. The flower shop, and its wholesale connections, came in handy for the funeral of O'Bannion and several of his associates. It will be interesting to see if the Cohen haberdashery provides garments for the laying out of its proprietor.

Superstition In The Modern World

Few people will admit to superstition as readily as William Dexter Christianson, a 17-year-old Oakville crook who was given four years in penitentiary in a Toronto court on Wednesday last. Twenty-three charges of housebreaking, robbery and forgery were brought against him and he pleaded guilty to twenty of them; he also revealed that he never committed a crime on a Tuesday; "I was allergic to Tuesdays", he said, "I was shot at in Burlington on a Tuesday and I was scared, so I never went out on a Tuesday again".

Superstition—a groundless belief in a mystical relationship between two apparently unrelated objects or happenings—is a common characteristic of criminals. They are great carriers of rabbit's feet, lucky charms and whatnot. Christianson appeared to be convinced that Tuesday was his unlucky day; if he had been a little more intelligent he would have grasped the fact that any day in the week is likely to be unlucky for a man engaged in burglary and forgery. There is nothing in the report of his trial to show that he was arrested on a Tuesday, and it was on a Wednesday that the magistrate gave him four years.

There are a surprising number of superstitious people in the world, and anyone who is on the lookout can see many examples of superstition near home. Indeed, there seem to be few people who are completely free of superstition of some sort, though well-educated people often take great pains to avoid attention as they throw salt over their shoulders, or avoid black cats and ladders.

The heathen in his blindness
Bows down to wood and stone—says the well-known hymn. And not only the heathen. The civilized man who does not carry, deep in himself, some irrational belief in good luck and bad luck, is a rarity. Furthermore, many modern psychologists are inclined to give credence to the existence of good and bad luck. Like the theologians, however, they think that we make our own good and bad luck in a variety of little-understood ways. Certainly Christianson's bad luck was all of his own making.

Not An Unwelcome Guest

On Tuesday last George Bernard Shaw completed his ninety-third year. As has been his custom for some time, Mr. Shaw declined to celebrate, but he said a few words to one of the reporters who called. "Death, now knocking on my door, is not an unwelcome guest", he said. This remark has attracted wide attention, and the Ottawa Journal expresses doubt that Shaw really meant what he said.

We cannot prove that he did mean it, but we believe that he did. Shaw is a remarkably clear-sighted man; much of his fame and his reputation as an original thinker rest upon his willingness to face and admit facts that other people seek to escape. He is now a very old man; his life has been triumphantly successful and it is extremely unlikely that the future can add another laurel to his wreath, or a penny to his purse; his wife, who was his companion from 1898 until 1943, is dead, and very few of his intimate friends are left; the future holds the threat of invalidism. Is it surprising then that Shaw should say that he is ready for death?

If the truth were known, we doubt if his admission of this readiness would seem strange. Few people want to die until they have had their innings, but when they have had it we suspect that their attitude toward death changes, and that what seemed in youth to be a most unlikely event, and what seemed in middle age to be a terror, becomes an accustomed and gentle realization. Sir William Osler said that he had never seen a man die in terror; surely the diminution of the terror is gradual?

Observe carefully that Shaw did not say that he wanted to die; he said that he would not shrink from death when it came. We all hope to see another dawn, but the wise and the old know that when no more dawns are to come, resistance is useless, and that courageous resignation is the last example that a man can show to the world which he is about to leave.

How Real Is The Secret?

For several days reports have been heard from Washington in which various American authorities—people who might have some influence in the matter—express themselves as for or against releasing the "secret" of the atomic bomb to Great Britain. No decision appears to have been reached yet.

The "secret" is in itself something of an illusion. The making of an atomic bomb is not a matter of a recipe, like the making of a cake. There are Canadians who know the principle by which it is done; Mr. C. D. Howe has said that we could make atom bombs here if it were necessary. We have no doubt that the same thing is true of Great Britain. After all, British and Canadian scientists worked with American scientists in atomic research, and it has never been suggested that they were mere helpers, who were not let in on the important jobs. Let us not forget, either, that the Germans were doing some work on atomic research during the war, and undoubtedly the Russians know everything that the Germans found out. Nor must we discount the Russians; they are said to have some fine scientists. Probably they could make an atom bomb or two if they wanted them.

The U.S.A., however, appears to be the only country in the world which actually possesses the extremely complex factories and laboratories in which workable bombs have been manufactured. What they possess is not the secret of atomic fissure, but the method of incorporating that secret in a bomb. Techniques of manufacture, however complex, are not impossible to discover. If the U.S.A. wants to keep her secret she cannot expect that every other nation in the world which has scientific pretensions will consider that decision as the last word on the subject.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A psychologist says that woman's most dangerous age is between 35 and 50. She looks most dangerous, however, between 17 and 35.

A report from Western Ontario tells of a man who beat his wife into submission with a golf club. How many strokes?

"Los Angeles Grand Jury Seeks Link Between Police and Underworld", says a headline. A few pairs of handcuffs should provide desirable links in that case.

Incentive Pay

(SYDNEY DAILY TELEGRAPH)

MOST Australian trade unions are afraid of incentive pay because their members fear that over-production would put them out of jobs.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Chifley) approves incentive schemes, with adequate safeguards, but the Australian Council of Trade Unions is not confident that safeguards would be effective.

In the past union officials have never feared that incentive payments would cause overproduction.

They claimed that the schemes might lead to employers exploiting the workers by unfairly speeding up working rates.

◇ ◇ ◇

EMPLOYERS who favor incentive payments say that employees can—and do—insist on adequate safeguards against exploitation.

They answer the argument that incentive payments may lead to over-production—and consequent loss of jobs—by pointing out that Australia and the rest of the world are so short of goods of all kinds, and will remain short of them for so long, there is no danger of serious over-production.

Anyhow, while the A.C.T.U. opposes incentive payments, thousands of employees solidly support the incentive-payment schemes operating in their factories or businesses.

◇ ◇ ◇

IN June, 1947—the latest date for which statistics are available, some weaving and engineering industries, some boxmakers, some electrical industries, and several mines—notably Electrolytic Zinc's lead mines at Broken Hill (lead bonus).

Many Sydney barbers also receive a bonus. Their award rate is £8/1/8, but most employers pay a bonus on earning above that rate. The bonus is usually equal to half a barber's takings above £10/10/- a week.

Nearly all the incentive-payment schemes that have operated for any length of time in Sydney are based on careful investigations.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE primary requirements of all incentive schemes are:—

They must not be put into operation until the employers have thoroughly studied them, and made certain that the basis for the extra payments is scientifically sound and completely fair to the worker.

Rates of extra payment should not be altered unless the methods or conditions of work change.

The system of extra payments should be simple, so that the worker does not feel he may be cheated by complicated tables he does not understand.

In most schemes operating in Sydney representatives of employers and employees sit on a joint advisory panel to administer the scheme.

◇ ◇ ◇

ONE of the simplest schemes is profit-sharing, which Mr. Harold Meggitt adopted some years ago at his linseed mill at Gladesville.

Mr. Meggitt pays his employees award wages, and each year divides half the firm's net profits equally among them.

Last year every employee of the firm received a bonus of £62.

There has never been a strike at the Meggitt works, and a member of the staff told me that everyone was happy with the arrangement.

Another firm operates different schemes in each of its three factories.

One factory has a scheme similar to Meggitt's.

In the second factory workers share a portion of the profits according to merit. Each employee receives a points grading from the foreman of his department.

A man with, say, a grading of eight points gets four times the share-out of a man with two points.

The foreman allots points for the worker's efficiency, punctuality, diligence.

Under this system much depends on the judgement of the foreman, but the workers are happy with the way it works.

Recently one man at this factory received a bonus of £27 for five pay-days in one month.

◇ ◇ ◇

IN a third scheme, the firm scientifically works out a daily quota for its machinists.

For example, a machinist earning an award wage of 27/- a day might have a quota of 27 articles a day. That means he is earning 1/- for each article he produces.

If he produces more than 27 articles in a day he gets a bonus of 1/- on each extra article.

The owner of these three factories told me: "The workers are on a pretty good thing, but they are not getting something for nothing.

"Some of the men's bonuses equal 60 per cent. of their award wages."

As a preliminary to introducing its incentive scheme, this firm—like all others where the schemes have had the greatest success—streamlined its processes, so that the worker gets more money for about the same effort. The employer got the benefit of a better output from his expensive machines.

Davies Coop Ltd., cotton spinners and manufacturers, who have factories in three States, pay their 2,000 employees bonuses based on the "time-study" method.

Experts examined all the jobs in the firm's factories, and determined the time an operative of average ability shouldo take on each job, making allowances for the relaxation necessary to avoid fatigue.

◇ ◇ ◇

EMPLOYEES working at a faster rate than that determined by the experts as being a fair average for the job receive extra payment for extra work. For instance, if they they receive a bonus equal to a third work a third faster than the fixed rate of their award wage.

Since the firm sarted the scheme four years ago, man-hour output at the company's plant has increased about 60 per cent.

Experienced women winders receiving a wage of £4/18/6 for a 40-hour week frequently receive a bonus of £1/13/- a week. Men on a wage of £6/12/- often get a bonus of £2/17/6 a week. Many workers earn a bigger bonus—some up to 50 per cent. of the ward wages—and all workers get some bonus.

In the past three years the 230 employees of P. J. Firth and Co., cardboard box makers, of Redfern, have shared £27,000 in bonuses—or nearly £40 a year each.

Although incentive payments have stepped up production and increased wages, the schemes have not necessarily taught the worker how to make the best use of his extra earnings.

The representative of one firm recently distributed £10,500 among its 200-odd employees as a year's bonus, told me a doleful tale.

The firm prides itself on the success of its incentive plan.

Its workers have been very contented over the three years the plan has operated, and relations between workers and management have been good ever since the scheme started.

There have been no strikes and little absenteeism.

The firm pays one portion of its profits as a straight loading on employees' wages, irrespective of their output or behaviour during the year.

It pays another portion of its profits to the employees in proportion to individual performances.

Regular attendance, punctuality and general diligence qualify the workers for this aditional bonus.

All the workers were on their best behaviour, and there was no absenteeism—and little latenhs for work—until the big pay-out.

Next day one-third of the employees failed to turn up for work; some went "on the scoot" for a week.

Now they are all back into their stride again, and production is booming.

◇ ◇ ◇

MY investigation has convinced me that modern incentive-payment schemes, while giving the workers complete protection from exploitation, boost production by making the most efficient use of plant and labor, and give the workers more take-home money.

For instance, the Lincoln Electric Company, a U.S. firm which established an Australian subsidiary at Alexandria in 1938, has fully lived up to the stated objective of its founder, millionaire James F. Lincoln, who, in starting an incentive-payment scheme in his factories, said:

"We must make the worker a member of the team. Production can be stepped up to four times that of another plant doing the same work where the worker is not a member of the team.

"This does not mean that a man is nervously working four times as hard, but that in one case he is consciously working, while in the other he is consciously trying not to work."

◇ ◇ ◇

IN this firm employees and employers sit on a joint advisory staff to supervise the incentive-payment scheme.

The firm, which has reduced the price of its products four times in the past seven years, pays its employees 11.6 per cent. above award rates, and incentive pay in addition.

Employees at Alexandria working on an award rate of £8 a week received last year amounts ranging from £11/10/- to £16/8/3 a week.

And, even after tax is deducted, that's nice take-home money.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be temped. Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ . . .

As we have therefore oportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith. (Gal. 6:1,2,10.)

◇ ◇ ◇

For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. (Gal. 5:14.)

◇ ◇ ◇

Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor. (Ex. 20:16).

◇ ◇ ◇

Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice. (Eph. 4:31.)

Letter To The Editor

APPROVES ANTI-LITTER SUGGESTION.

Sir,—I would like to congratulate you upon your editorial of July 27, regarding the need for an Anti-Litter League in Canada. Picnic places in our district are too scarce to have them abused by rubbish everywhere. As you suggest much of it would seem to be done by careless, rather than dirty people, for where the Department of Highways provides rubbish cans beside its picnic tables people leave the places much tidier.

May I suggest that such a program of tidiness in public places might begin in the school yards? Why should children be allowed to cover their playgrounds with a collection of candy and gum wrappers, paper towels and Kleenex? It seems a waste of civic employees' time to have janitors spend part of every morning collecting this litter from the grass. (On the actual playing field, what does not blow on to the surrounding yards is just tramped in from year to year). A few trash cans on the playground and instruction from the staff should do much to improve our school grounds, and graduate children who have some respect for public parks and highways.

In this regard the Recreation Commission is to be congratulated on the improvement in a school yard as soon as July 1 comes and they take over the responsibility for clean grounds.

Thank you,
J. I. W.

Garvey Homers Bases Loaded For 7 to 1 Win

Ed Murphy's Seniors defeated Canisius College baseball nine 7-1 on Saturday evening at Riverside behind the seven-hit pitching of Gunner Whitehill. The veteran fanned five and issued no walks. Fred Garvey realized the ballplayer's dream in the fourth when he caught one of Fitzgerald's fast balls and drove it far over the left field fence with Foley, Estlick, and Whitehill on bases. The 350-foot smash virtually won the ball game, though the locals added three more in the fifth, before Owen took the hill for Canisius.

Brown and Dadson each had two safeties while the entire team turned in a good effort to even the seasonal series to date between the two clubs, with two wins apiece.

Crescents Bow To Tigers 10-3

By The Canadian Press.

Big Harry Kazarian is finding a jinx spot in Hamilton during his Ontario Senior Lecrosse Association games.

The Owen Sound Crescents' ace defenceman suffered what is believed to be a broken bone in his left foot when his team went down 10-3 last night under the force of fifth place Hamilton Tigers. Kazarian was taken off the field for stitches in his head during the last game he played at Hamilton.

For Tigers, Elmer Lee was top-notch. He tallied two goals and three assists. Coach Powers, who only recently joined the playing roster, showed well although he did not score.

In another league game, Weston Lions playing on home ground, defeated Mimico Mountaineers 10-8. It was the second defeat in two games for Mountaineers.

On Saturday, St. Catharines Athletics trounced the Mimico Mountaineers 24-6 at St. Catharines. The Athletics chalked up nine goals in the first period. Joe McNulty and Pat Smith led the winners with four goals apiece. Ken Dixon notched two for Mimico.

Hamilton Tigers Defeat Lumberjacks 12-8

Hamilton Tigers battled their way to a 12-8 victory Saturday night in Miller Bowl over the Lumberjacks. The game was rough with 31 penalties, including three majors, being handed out by referees Bill Arthurs and Bill Anthony, of Brampton. Goalies Ralph Speck, of the Lumberjacks, and Favell, of Hamilton, were the stars.

At the close of the game the referees were booed by the irate fans who protested a number of the penalties handed out. One woman even took a swing at one of the referees as he started for the dressing room.

Hamilton started the scoring as Masters connected on a passing play with Davidson from the face-off. Horton later started a rush, passed to Lou Vitarelli who returned it to Horton who tucked it behind Favell. Petes were slack in their checking with Howse letting his man get away with several times. Finally Welsh rushed in to score. Both teams started to lay on the wood with the result six penalties were handed out, Horton staved off the penalties of Magee and Frick with some good stalling. Speck saved the day for the Petes several times. Finally Welsh went well for Hamilton.

The score ended five-all at the half with McNulty, Horton, Teatero and Frick connected for the Petes while Jameson and MacDonald tallied for Hamilton. Slashing penalties were handed out four to Hamilton and two to the Lumberjacks.

Petes Held Scoreless

Favell starred in the third quarter keeping the Petes off the score sheet. Between saves by the goalies the players were having a jolly time seeing who they could cut down. Twelve penalties were handed out in the period with three of them majors. Davidson and Howse sparred off in the closing seconds of the period to earn majors while Lee, of Hamilton, received one for interference and tripping. Earlier Powers and McNulty swung at each other with their sticks to earn roughing penalties.

While Masters was serving his sixth penalty of the game, the Petes banged in two goals to make the score 9-8 for Hamilton. But later goals by Love, Davidson and Masters cinched the game for Hamilton. Several times Speck stopped Love and Masters on breaks. The rough play continued throughout the game with nine offenders being sent off to the sin-bin.

Masters led the scorers with four goals as teammate Love tallied three. Singles were scored by Davidson, Welsh, MacDonald, Jameson and Dorney. For Peterborough, McNulty and Horton each had two while goals were scored by Teatero, D. Vitarelli, Frick and Dugan.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

There was no bowling at the club last evening. It is rather unfortunate that no one in the organization thought it worth while to stage a tournament of some kind. It was a great night for it.

In the afternoon, in spite of the abbreviated arrangements, eight mixed rinks were out and enjoyed three hours of good bowling under ideal weather conditions. They played two 10-end games and were all through before six o'clock. The winning skips were Mrs. R. Dyer, J. Adams and Geo. Soulby.

Tonight the men begin their second schedule, groups No. 1 and No. 2 playing.

Visitors Lose Again

MARMORA, August 2 (ENS)—The third game of softball between Lakesiders, representing teams known as Bonter's and Tipperary, was played on the latter's grounds on Thursday. The visitors put on a better showing than at the two previous games, but again suffered defeat, this time by the score of 10-6.

Additional Sports On Pages 7, 8.

SPLIT DIFFERENCE—Chuck Diering of the Cardinals executes a passable split at the Polo Grounds plate scoring in the first inning after Nippy Jones' fly to Bobby Thomson. The center fielder's throw got away from Ray Mueller. The umpire is Lon Warneke. Four-run seventh won for the Giants, 7-4.

Joan Townsend Captures Title

KAWARTHA PARK, Aug. 2 (Special).—Joan Townsend, 12-year-old blonde athlete from Young's Point, won the Kawartha Park regatta championship for the second consecutive year Saturday afternoon when she scored 37 points against strong competition. She holds the Birks Trophy, formerly called the Ed. Shipp Trophy for a year and if she repeats in 1950, the huge silver prize becomes her property.

Michael Wotherspoon, Toronto, was the only competitor to threaten her supremacy, and his total was 17. Miss Townsend tallied five firsts, three seconds and a third.

Weather was ideal and more than 800 people watched the events. The unusual feature was the number of entries, and in the boys' open crab race, 22 canoes lined up. In the men's single skiff event, 17 skiffs whipped down the course. There were 17 in the mixed tandem canoe open also.

Events were restricted to resident cottagers of the Kawartha Park and Clear Lake section and their guests,, and the affair was strictly a children's competition in its development. A few adults entered the events, but all found plenty of competition from their sons and daughters. Two war canoes from the Kawartha Camp carried full complements of boys under the direction of Don Duncan.

Michael Allen, Toronto, whose father Stewart Allen, was regatta chairman, won the canoe sailing, to take the J. McLellan Trophy. Mrs. Allen presented the prizes.

Dr. George Zimmerman was master of ceremonies with Jack Skitch, Peterborough, assisting.

Officials Set TVL Playoffs

HASTINGS, Aug. 2 (ENS). — A meeting of the Trent Valley League was held in Frankford on Sunday to make arrangements for the play-offs.

Representatives were present from Frankford, Stirling, Wooler, Campbellford and Hastings. President Carl Austin of Wooler was in the chair.

It was moved by Stan. Stevenson, Hastings, that the first four teams play-off—1 and 3; 2 and 4, a best of three series, the deciding game, if necessary, to be played on the grounds of the leading team. Finals to be a best of five series. Play-offs will commence Tuesday, Aug. 9.

Busy Week

This week will be a busy one in order to finish the schedule, with Stirling at Campbellford, Hastings at Wooler, Colborne at Frankford, Tuesday. On Thursday, Wooler plays a double header at Frankford, and this game will mark the grand opening of Frankford's new lighted park. On Friday, Frankford travels to Hastings for a single game with the possibility of a double header if it has a bearing on the standing.

At present Wooler is on top, with Stirling, Campbellford, Hastings, Frankford and Colborne following in that order, but all standings can be affected by this week's schedule, with the exception of Colborne, who are the cellar team with but only two wins to date.

Default Game

Toronto Grace Church B cricketers defaulted their game in Toronto Saturday with the Peterborough Whitakers Club. This is the second time that the church team has defaulted a game this year with the local club. The game in Ottawa with the Carleton County team was postponed until a later date by mutual agreement.

Oshawa Blanked By Dadson In 5-Hit Game

By FRED MAYBEE

Bill Dadson twirled five-hit ball, struck out nine and walked none in a masterful display as Ed. Murphy's senior baseball squad defeated Oshawa 3-0 at Riverside yesterday in a regular COBL morning contest.

Ross Knights opposed Dadson in a fine pitchers' duel fr five innings of scoreless ball. Successive walks to Menzies and Wilson in the sixth, however, followed by a sharp double by Danny Brown to left, netted two runs and sent Knights to the showers. Foley then greeted Gingerich with a hard single to score Brown as he relieved his mate with none away, to give Marines a comfortable margin—sufficient to win, in fact. Thereafter, the locals were unable to score further while Merchants were also powerless against the slants of Dadson. It was a well earned shutout with Marines playing errorles ball afield and casning in on what opportunities came their way as well.

A big holiday crowd was on hand to see their favorites climb to within one and one-half game of the league leading Merchants. It was a fine game all though, keenly contested with but one error afield and that to Oshawa. Dalton, Brown and Garvey shone for the locals with Stewart as dependable as ever on first. The outfied trio looked good; Menzies was never better behind the plate. For Oshawa every man gave his best and the beter team won, on the play. Marines now have a record f 11 wins against five defeats. Oshawa has a recrd of 12 and three. The locals may play an exhibition here, Saturday. Further announcement later.

WORTH WATCHING—Laurie Roland, 16-year-old member of Vancouver's Royal Marine Drive Golf Club, has been burning up the course at Riverside Golf and Country Club near Saint John, N.B., in championship style this week. Young Roland posted a 161 for 36 holes to finish second in the junior competition. Then he entered the senior contest and really turned on the heat. He came through the preliminaries to become the first 16-year-old in Canadian golf history to reach the semi-finals in the senior amateur contest. He opposed Dick Chapman, former U.S. amateur champion, in the semi-final round. (CP Photo).

Skip-a-Long Takes Trophy

DETROIT, August 2 (AP) — Stanley Dollar and his speedboat Skip-a-Long now have unquestionable title to powerboat racing's biggest honor—the Harmsworth Trophy.

The San Francisco millionaire and the 30-foot red speedster earned sole rights to the big plaque by besting Detroit Jack Schafer's Such Crust I in the Harmsworth run-off race on the Detroit River Monday.

Then they went on to capture the gruelling 100-mile Detroit marathon race by trimming a stricken Such Crust I—this time by a lap and a half.

Such Crust had to give up after one lap of the runoff because of oil line trouble, and the same difficulty hampered her marathon efforts.

The United States Saturday retained the historic trophy when R. Stanley Dollar's Skip-a-Long took the second heat of the speedboat classic. Canada's lone challenger, Miss Canada IV, finished fourth.

Miss Canada IV again was unable to get top speed out of her Rolls-Royce power plant. Harold Wilson, of Ingersoll, said trouble developed Friday in his boat's super-charger and that he and a crew of engineers were unable to remedy it.

Remember When—

Charlie Grimm was appointed manager of Chicago Cubs 17 years ago today. First baseman with the National Baseball League club since 1925, Grimm succeeded Roger Hornsby. The Cubs entered the World Series in 1932 and 1935 but lost both attempts.

Oshawa Pedlars Defeat K of C In Charity Game

Oshawa Pedlars defeated K. of C. 15-4 at the Bowl Saturday night in the delayed exhibition between the two clubs, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus Athletic Association for charity.

The game was a rather one-sided affair with the Pedlars showing good class afield and McConkey twirling fine ball. Pedlar's hitting however, was the big feature while the locals seemed unable to fathom McConkey's slants, save in the seventh, when they netted four. A fair crowd attended and the lucky ticket holders were as follows:

Refrigerator—Mrs. R. Crowe, Armour Road; outboard motor, F. McKenzie, Weller St.; rod and reel, N. O. Beach, Wolsley St.

Bobby Gray Holds Millar Cup, Title

ISLINGTON, Aug. 2 (CP) — Mild-mannered Bobby Gray of Toronto Scarboro today holds the Millar Cup and the professional Golfers Association title. He turned aside a jinx to get it.

The shotsmith Saturday outlasted Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconsfield in a marathon final that went 25 holes to take the first-prize pot of $725 and regain the cup that was lost to Quebec's Stan Horne last year.

It was a familiar jinx that Gray overcame. Twice he had came up against Kerr in a final match and twice he was forced to take second place money of $425. Saturday he sank a 15 foot putt good for a birdie three on the 25th hole while Kerr settled for a par four to end the match.

Indians Blow 4-3 Triumph To Advancing Boston Sox

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Washington's cellar-diving Senators currently the sorriest looking club in the majors, may decide the American League pennant race.

Through a strange quirk in the schedule, Washington and the third-place Boston Red Sox have played only seven games against each other. That means they will meet 15 more times this season.

On the other hand, the weary Senators, now only 3½ games out of the basement after winning only 12 of their last 50 games, have met the league-leading New York Yankees 13 times and the second-place Cleveland Indians 15 times.

The way the Senators have been floundering, it would come as no startling news should the Red Sox win 13 of those 15 games.

The Red Sox advanced to within 2½ games of second and seven games back of the Yankees Monday, turning back the Indians 4-3 before a turnout of 35,248 fans at Boston. The victory gave the Red Sox a 3-2 edge in the series.

Southpaw Mel Parnell gained his 15th pitching triumph, besting Cleveland's Bob Lemon with a nine-hitter. Lemon allowed 10 safeties. Ted Williams batted in the winning run in the seventh inning.

Brooks Get Shutout

Brooklyn's Dodgers shaved St. Louis' first-place lead in the National League to a slender half-game Monday shutting out Pittsburgh Pirates 9-0 while the Cardinals were blowing an 8-1 decision to Boston Braves.

Ralph Branca, back in form, limited the Bucs to four hits — three by Ralph Kiner—to register his 12th victory. He has lost only three.

Warren Spahn, helped by home runs by Ed Sauer and Bob Elliott, coasted to his 13th triumph, limiting the Cards to eight hits. A fourth inning homer by Enos Slaughter prevented the southpaw from pitching a shutout.

St. Louis Browns shut out the Senators 2-0. Karl Drews, pitching one of his good games, allowed eight hits for his fourth triumph. He has lost eight. Rae Scarborough was the loser.

Bob Dillinger, bespectacled third baseman, paced the Brown's 10 hit attack with a trio of singles. The three hits raised his league-leading batting average to .349, five more than runner-up Dom DiMaggio's .344.

New York Giants took undisputed possession of fourth place in the National League, walloping the Chicago Cubs 11-3. Bobby Thomson led the attack on three Chicago pitchers with a triple, two doubles and a single. Clint Hartung went the route for his ninth victory. Bob Chipman was the loser.

Jersey Giants Trounce Montreal 11-8

By The Associated Press.

Don't waste time shedding tears for Jersey City Giants. They're holding their own in anybody's pennant race in the International League.

There were muttered oaths and curses July 5 when the parent New York Giants plucked Monte Irvin and Henry Thompson out of the regular lineup and brought them up to the big league.

That followed less than a month after the Giants recalled home-run hitting catcher Wes Westrum.

Instead of losing ground, the Jersey actually gained. Since the two star Negroes left, the Giants have won 14 and lost 10 to pick up five full games on the league leading Buffalo Bisons.

Whereas they were 7½ games behind July 5, they now trail by only 2½. They hold third place by two percentage points over Toronto.

Spot Montreal.

They gave an indication of their pluck Monday night when they spotted Montreal Royals a 7-0 lead then came on to win 11-8. A rousing eight-run seventh inning, followed by a three-run eighth, did the trick. The big rally was staged at the expense of Dan Bankhead and Charley Lare. Red Hardy was the winner.

Baltimore Orioles moved to within three percentage points of sixth place, defeating the second-place Rochester Red Wings 5-3. Doubles by Jeep Handley and Ken Wood gave the Orioles two runs in the bottom of the eighth to break a 3-3 tie. Johnny Wittig, who relieved Joe Payne in the eighth, was the winner.

Toronto and Syracuse split a doubleheader, the Chiefs winning the opener 11-5 and the Maple Leafs taking the nightcap 8-2.

Syracuse scored eight runs in the seventh inning of the first game to coast to victory. Home runs by Frank Drews, Johnny Pramesa and Dutch Mele accounted for nine of the Chief's runs. Bud Byerly went the route for his fifth victory.

The Leafs counted five times in the fifth inning of the nightcap to insure righthander Ed Wright's 11th triumph. Mike Schultz was the loser.

The game between Buffalo and Newark was postponed to a future date.

Ernie Bentley Placed First W. Hall Seond In Play For Walker Trophy

By DON GRANT

Ernie Bentley of Weston took the Hiram Walker Trophy with a 148 for 36 holes at the Kawartha Lakes Amateur Golf Tournament Monday. Saturday Bentley placed second in the low gross to J. Davidson of Oakville having a 75. Monday he came through with a 36 and 37 for a 73 to place him well in front for the trophy. W. Hall of Oshawa placed second with a total gross of 154. Last year the trophy was won by Gerry Kesselring, Ontario Amateur Champion.

In the first flight net score George Provias of Chedoke took the honors with a 143 while Les Reid of the Kawartha Club and C. Jacobs of Credit Valley each had a 145. The day prize for Saturday went to Jack Davidson with a 74 and for Monday to Bernie Johnson of Chedoke with a 75.

Low gross score in the second flight went to J. A. Gibson of Cedar Brae and A. Robinson of Oakville who each had a 159. R. Surgeoner of Cedar Brae captured the first place honors in the net score with 138. He was followed by J. Wagstaff, Sr., with a 140 and Ray Coole of Glendale with 141. A. Moss and George Louth of Lakeview tied for fourth with 142. The day prize went to J. Wagstaff, Jr., for Saturday's 80 while Monday's went to Sam Hutchison of Chedoke with 82.

C. Grant of the Kawartha Club took the first place in the low gross in the third flight with a 183. Gordon Burns of the same club grabbed second place with a 185. Low net score went to a Kawartha golfer, E. Malfant, while J. R. Murray of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club placed second. The day prize for Saturday resulted in a tie of 92 between W. Regan of Lakeview and J. Costigan of London. H. O'Connell of Cedar Brae took Monday's day prize with a 93.

Kawartha Golf and Country Club's golfers took the honors in the team net score with Gord Burns having a net of 65. He shot a 41 and 44 with a handicap of 20. Ed. Riley had a 67 (37 and 46, handicap of 16) while the two others, Les. Calladine scored 67 (44 and 43, handicap of 20) and J. McIntyre scored 69 (43 and 42, handicap of 16).

E. Bentley, of Weston, was second in the low gross for the day's play with a 74, three above par, while E. Creed, of Barrie, followed close behind with a 39 and 36 for 75. J. Davidson, of Oakville, had a 76, while A. Robinson, of Oakville, had a 77 with D. Stedman a 78 and J. Mann a 79.

Walker Play

J. Davidson, of Oakville, took the lead in the Hiram Walker Trophy play Saturday scoring a 74, two above par. E. Bentley, of Weston, followed close behind with a 75 gross. L. Reid, of Kawartha, had a 76 gross with a handicap of 6 to give him a net score of 70 as did C. Jacobs, of Credit Valley, who had a gross of 79 with a handicap of nine. A. White and E. A. Asker, both of the Kawartha club, and A. White, of Glendale, had 71 net scores.

In the field of 70 first flight golfers only 12 managed to score into the seventies.

Another Oakville golfer, A. Robinson, took the honors also on Saturday with a 76 gross to lead the second flighters. Ray Coole, 18-year-old golfer from Glendale, had a 36 and 42 for a 78. They were the only golfers in the second flight in the seventies. Robinson with a 10 handicap had a net of 66 while Coole had a handicap of 12 for a net of 66. W. R. Johnson, of Lindsay, had a 69 net score while J. Wagstaff, Sr. and Jr., each scored a 71 net. Most of the second flighters were well up into the eighties, nineties and hundreds in their gross scores.

C. Grant, of Kawartha Club, took the third flight honors in the gross score with high 92. J. Legros, of the same club, took second place with a 93. Four gross scores of 95 were chalked up by J. K. Murray, E. Malenfant, and T. Cranfield, all of Kawartha, and H. O'Connell, of Cedar Brae. Legros and Murray had net scores of 66 while Malenfant had a 68 net. C. Grant sored a 70 net with O'Connell and Cranfield with a net of 71.

Between 9.30 and 10 Saturday night the golfers were entertained by the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club under the floodlights at the Kawartha pond. After the demonstration a dance was held in the clubhouse.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Calumet Farm's Ponder Saturday came from last place at Chicago in the $87,750 Arlington Classic, ending Arlington Park's highly successful 36-day meeting.

Seemingly hopelessly last at the half-mile post, 16 lengths behind, the plodding Ponder charged on to take the lead at the stretch turn of the 1¼ mile race. He flashed under the wire three lengths ahead of Admiral Lea, owned by Mrs. Ada L. Rice, Chicago. It was the same margin by which Ponder defeated Capot in the Kentucky Derby.

In third place, two lengths back of Admiral Lea, came Isidor Bieber's Palestinian, which finished in the same spot in the Derby.

The victory was worth $65,450 to Warren Wright, owner of Ponder.

Sam Snead Saturday fired a five-under-par 67 to give him a 72-hole total of 268 and victory in the Western Open Golf Championship at St. Paul, Minn.

Snead's total bettered the Western Open record of 270 set by Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., at Salt Lake City in 1947. It also tied the record of 268 for the 6,537-yard Keller course, set by Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill. in 1946.

Snead finished four strokes ahead of Cary Middlecoff, the United States open champion from Memphis, Tenn., who carded a seven-under-par to finish with 272 for second money.

Red Douglas' Sarnia Imperials are in for another week of conditioning before they start any tackling or scrimmage, and Douglas said Monday at Sarnia that the Imperials should be a vastly improved club over last year's senior ORFU entry.

He was basing his predictions partly on the acquisition of George Curtis, former Western Mustang and more recently of the Hamilton Tigers.

An able replacement for Curtis seems to be Red McKelvie, a youngster up from the junior ranks.

Irvin (Ace) Bailey, former rightwinger for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, has been appointed coach of a senior hockey team which Niagara Falls hopes to enter in Ontario Hockey Association competition next winter, it was announced at Niagara Falls Saturday. Practices for the team start the last week in September.

Holidaying visitors from western Ontario carried off a good share of the prizes in the Civic Holiday regatta on Mary Lake near Port Stanley, Muskoka district resort.

Gil Marks of Brantford won the men's isngles canoe race while Lorraine Roberts of Winona took the girls' singles title.

John Proud of Guelph teamed up with Nancy Watson of Detroit to win the mixed doubles canoeing. Don McGill of Hamilton piloted his five-horsepower outboard to a win. Frank Metcalfe and Eileen Small, both of Dundas, placed first and second in a swimming race for contestants 10 years and under.

At Orillia, the Jake Gadaur Memorial sculling race ended on Monday when one of the two contestants collided with a motorboat that wandered onto the course.

The contestants were Jack Guest Jr., of Toronto and Gabe Beaudry of Ottawa. Beaudry was leading after about 200 yards when his shell came into collision with the motorboat. The impact holed the frail craft, which quickly sank.

The race was called off. The trophy is to be held here until next year.

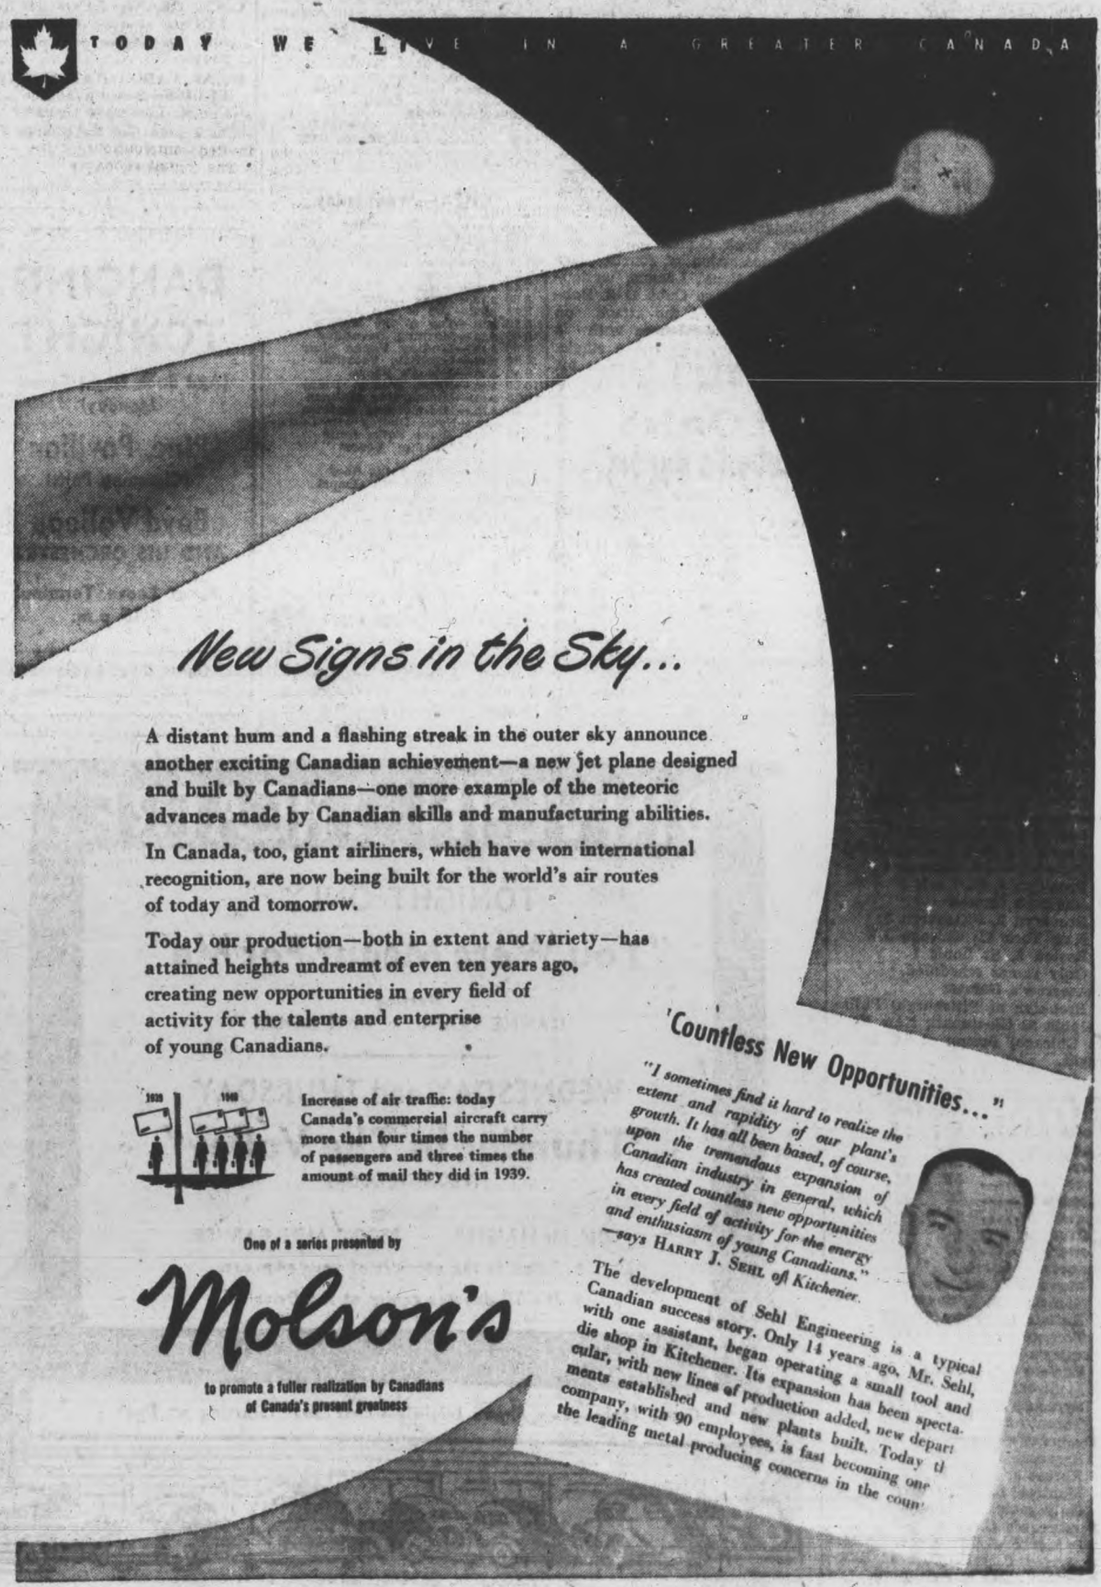
TODAY WE LIVE IN A GREATER CANADA



New Signs in the Sky...

A distant hum and a flashing streak in the outer sky announce another exciting Canadian achievement—a new jet plane designed and built by Canadians—one more example of the meteoric advances made by Canadian skills and manufacturing abilities.

In Canada, too, giant airliners, which have won international recognition, are now being built for the world's air routes of today and tomorrow.

Today our production—both in extent and variety—has attained heights undreamt of even ten years ago, creating new opportunities in every field of activity for the talents and enterprise of young Canadians.

Increase of air traffic: today Canada's commercial aircraft carry more than four times the number of passengers and three times the amount of mail they did in 1939.

'Countless New Opportunities..."

"I sometimes find it hard to realize the extent and rapidity of our plant's growth. It has all been based, of course, upon the tremendous expansion of Canadian industry in general, which has created countless new opportunities in every field of activity for the energy and enthusiasm of young Canadians." —says HARRY J. SEHL, of Kitchener.

The development of Sehl Engineering is a typical Canadian success story. Only 14 years ago, Mr. Sehl, with one assistant, began operating a small tool and die shop in Kitchener. Its expansion has been spectacular, with new lines of production added, new departments established and new plants built. Today the company, with 90 employees, is fast becoming one of the leading metal-producing concerns in the country.

Separate Workshop Rooms Supply New Customer Service

While the average shopper will not have occasion to visit the third floor of the new Cherney Building, corner of George and King Sts., it is nevertheless the location of several important functions of the growing business of Cherney Brothers, leading retail furniture house of Peterborough.

Among the services rendered to their customers by this up-and-coming firm are making and installation of draperies, servicing of radios and major appliances, and installation of air-conditioning and heating systems. The last named service will be under the competent direction of a factory-trained technician, who will be fully qualified to instal the famous Chrysler air-conditioning and heating equipment.

Separate work rooms have been provided on the top floor of the new building for workers engaged at these tasks. Several women will work in the specially planned drapery room putting the finishing touches to curtains, drapes, etc., after the necessary measurements have been made in the homes of purchasers. In another room about half a dozen workmen will be employed at sheet metal work associated with heating and air-conditioning systems.

By far the greater part of the space on this floor, however, will be given over to warehousing of merchandise, which will be brought up in an automatic elevator from the main floor at the rear of the building. The warehouse section has been fitted with specially-built racks and bins which are suspended a few feet above the floor.

The goods will be unloaded on arrival at the building on to a ramp which is located well inside away from the vagaries of weather conditions. The ramp is quite close to the elevator, so that very little handling is required. Delivery trucks will also load merchandise here. Two trucks can be accommodated at the ramp at one time. The main door opening on the ramp is controlled by pressing a button and there is a special chute by which goods can be transferred to the basement (ground floor).

WHILE MANY SECTIONS OF CANADA were enduring one of the hottest months of one of the hottest summers on record, Australia was also experiencing record winter-weather breaking conditions. But "down under" it was the opposite extreme — record snowfalls. Top photo is the Prime Minister's lodge at Canberra, where it snowed continuously for 36 hours at one stage.

Still Trying To Find Secret Of Rain-Making

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Aug. 2 (AP). — Scientific rainmaking with dry ice, now in its third summer, is still unable to make useful rain.

The General Electric Company scientists who discovered the rain-making methods have gone back to their laboratories to study further the intricacies of clouds. They have not given up, but their chief, Dr. Irving Langmuir, says:

"You can't make rain out of any old cloud, any old place, any old time."

The United States Weather Bureau has just finished three rain-making experiments, with the same negative results that they got last summer in Ohio when 150 attempts failed to show how to make rain of economic importance to farmers.

One of these new experiments tried out the furnace that makes silver iodide particles, on the ground, to float into the air and produce rain.

On Negative Side

In Central California the Weather Bureau had United States Air Force planes flying over the clouds, dropping dry ice pellets and also silver iodide particles.

Similar experiments have just concluded around Mobile, from the Mobile Air Base, with Gulf Coast cumulus clouds as targets. These are the clouds that most frequently give the most rain.

All three experiments are on the negative side, in that to date the studies show nothing startling. The search of this new rain information, however, is not concluded, and the Weather Bureau has not given up. Plans are under way to work on tropical cumulus clouds and on stratus clouds next year.

Hint Communist Comeback Likely In French Politics

PARIS, Aug. 2 — (Reuters). — A Communist comeback in French politics is believed likely as a result of the recent decision of the Confederation of Christian Trade Unions to act in unity with the Communist-dominated Confederation Generale Du Travail in pressing for wage increases.

The decision represents a reversal of policy by the Christian trade unions.

Bitterness among industrial workers is acute. The government of Premier Henri Queuille is being blamed for being reactionary and anti-working class.

Observers fear the situation may result in national strikes in about three months when the current ferment has been at work a little longer and the paid-holiday period is over.

Badly Worried

Several factors have contributed to this return of aggressive trade unionism in France:

1. The factory worker is worse off than a year ago. There is less money in his pay envelope because in many industries he is working shorter hours—40 a week instead of 46.

There also is some unemployment in the consumer industries, and, while it is not yet serious, it is frightening the workers.

2. Prices are still high, the worker feels that he is again "on the outside looking in."

3. The workers allege that profit margins in industry are larger than before the war while the effective standard of living of the worker is lower. Industrial statistics show these assertions to be justified.

Need Something More

Trade union leaders have found that anti-Communism is not sufficient to run successful membership campaigns. More pay for less work remains the basic appeal to which French trade unionists, like those of other countries, respond most instinctively, and the pro-government trade union bosses have now decided to lead a movement of discontent which they can no longer head off.

Past experience suggests strongly that once national strikes break out again, the Communists would have no difficulty in directing them towards their own political objectives.

For this reason, some observers here forecast the eventual formation of another "popular front" government—one of the major objectives of the French Communist party.

Dreaded Locust Threat Quelled In East Africa

LONDON, Aug. 2 (Reuters) — The dreaded locust threat to East Africa and the Middle East has been quelled, for the moment.

Dr. D. P. Uvarov, world famous authority on locusts, said recently that "the immediate danger is past."

With an expert staff at the anti-locust research centre at the British Museum of Natural History here, he has been directing the offensive against the locusts.

"We must still be careful," he added, "for we do not know the exact details of the situation in the interior of Arabia. There might be some recrudescence of the threat in the winter, so we are not relaxing our vigilance. We are making comprehensive arrangements for scouting patrols in all accessible areas."

A vast offensive was launched about a month ago when the menace of invading swarms of locusts from Arabia threatened Britain's Aden protectorate. The immediate danger was that the locust invasion might spread into British Somaliland, Ethiopia and Eritrea, and eventually into British East Africa.

Keeps In Touch

Battle-front headquarters of the East African desert locust survey at Nairobi, Kenya, have co-operated with the research centre here: While P. R. Stephenson, director of the locust survey, led operations on the spot, Dr. Uvarov and his experts here have kept the men in the field informed at every stage of any new locust invasion and have supervised supplies to the "battle fronts."

Every day news of every move of the campaign has been telegraphed to London and warning telegrams of any new "front" transmitted back immediately to the men on the spot.

Victory was signalled when the news was received in London that the swarms were "very disturbed" after the first week's full-scale operations on many "fronts." Then came the further news that the swarms had mostly disintegrated.

Break Windows

HASTINGS, Aug. 2 (ENS). — Chief Constable Kemp and Provincial Constable A. A. Kellogg are investigating an outbreak of vandalism in which several windows were smashed in the Public School.

Find Albino Swallow

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 2 (CP) — This Eastern Ontario town has turned up a pure-white albino swallow. The albino, first noticed here four days ago, apparently is the "black sheep" of a flock nesting in an ice house. The other birds ignore it.

36,000 Sq. Feet Floor Space Cherney Bldg.

The new three-storey home of Cherney Brothers, leading Peterborough furniture house, will be the most modern of its kind in Canada. Even more important to Peterburians, it has been designed with the particular shopping needs of the citizens of this city in mind. Much thought and effort has gone into planning the whole layout of the store in such a way as to provide the utmost service and convenience to customers.

The building has been constructed of concrete, buff brick and stainless steel and has 36,000 square feet of floor space. It has a total frontage of 110 feet and a depth of 133 feet.

Erection of this handsome new building is a distinct acquisition to the city's business section and signalled the beginning of a new expansion south on George St. in keeping with the rapid growth of the city as a whole in the post-war years. Construction of the new store has been followed by building of the new Dominion store and decision of Loblaw's Groceteria to erect a new building in this area also.

Modern Lighting

One of the leading features of the new building, which is located at the corner of George and King St., is the completely modern lighting system. It embodies a combination of recessed fluorescent brackets and incandescent spot lights flush with the ceiling.

The flooring is very modern also, being half terrazo and half linoleum, both in very attractive designs. The bases of the floors throughout the building are of concrete, with steel joists.

A major characteristic of the new Cherney store is that the basement (or ground floor) has been designed for selling and not just simply a repository for merchandise. A big feature of it is the model kitchen, which will be a delight to the eye of every housewife. Here will be displayed also draperies, linoleum, carpets, breakfast furniture, etc.

Air Conditioned

An important branch of the Cherney Brothers' business is the Trade-In Department, a specially-planned room for which has been set aside in the basement.

The building is air-conditioned throughout and equipment for this, the latest and most efficient obtainable, is also located on the ground floor.

One thing that quickly catches the eye of the shopper on entering the store is the specially-designed display facilities installed on the north side for showing paintings and mirrors to the best possible advantage. Also on display on the main floor will be crockery and dinnerware, electrical appliances and radios, living room and occasional furniture, gift furniture, lamps, etc.

General offices of the firm are located on the south side of the main floor, within easy access of customers.

Fierce Controversy Rages Over Music In Red Area

By JOHN PEET

BERLIN, Aug. 2 (Reuters). — A fierce controversy has broken out in the ranks of the Communist - dominated Socialist Unity Party concerning whether swing and boogie-woogie are deviationist, bourgeois and decadent.

The debate began two months ago when the official party organ, Neues Deutschland published an article condemning as sectarian those members of the Socialist Unity Party who condemned modern dance music in principle.

"There is no living folk music or folk dancing in a highly-industrialized land like Germany," the article said.

"The attempt to press the lust for dancing of the younger generation into the narrow forms of the old, estranged folk dances, to music which has no appeal to them, would merely result in stupidly serious exhibition dancing, appalling to watch.

Must Be Happy Music

"A new folk music, based on contemporary forms, must be developed and our composers will have to write dance music instead of, as at present, rejecting it as below their dignity.

"This new dance music will have to be 'applied music' with positive, optimistic, happy words instead of the decadent hit tunes of today."

The newspaper said the article was only intended to serve as the starting point for discussion, and invited contributions.

The contributions were not slow in coming — and the majority of those published were sharp attacks on the writer of the original article for daring to defend, with whatever reservations, modern ballroom dancing.

One critic wrote: "When are we going to make an end of this rotting refuse of a decaying order or society?

"Unfortunately 'boogie-woogie' and 'choo-choo' music is played by far too many radio stations and dance bands in the Soviet zone."

Another opponent of modern jazz wrote: "Modern dance music not only offends the ear, but the sight of the dance turns the stomach of anyone who has the slightest respect for decency."

Another correspondent said "There is still room for hope. Anyone goes to a dance with a mixed program finds that waltzes, mazurkas, and polkas are danced with at least as much pleasure as modern hits. This shows us the way.

One of the few voices raised in defence of "hot" music came from a young Communist, who wrote:

"When I meet my friends in the evening after a long day's work, I like to sing with them. When we sing together, we mix serious songs, folk songs and modern hits.

"We sing 'Sentimental Journey,' 'The Anthem of World Youth,' and Goethe's 'Rose On The Heath,' one after another."

Seymour Man Injured As Cars Sideswipe

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 2 (ENS).—Jack Meiklejohn, 17, of Seymour, was rushed to Campbellford Hospital Saturday night with a severe gash on his forehead after two cars sideswiped each other on a steep hill on the 9th concession of Seymour township, about six miles east of here. His sister Marie, driver of the car, received ankle lacerations and a passenger, Jean Morton, was uninjured.

The other car involved was driven by Karl Innes of Healey Falls. A passenger, Alex Johnston of Campbellford, received minor cuts about the face and suffered from slight shock. Both vehicles were badly damaged.

Provincial Constable Arthur Kellogg of Hastings investigated.

Seven Gardens Put In Contest

OMEMEE, Aug. 2 (ENS).—The July meeting of the Omemee and District Horticultural Society was arranged by director John Green and took the form of an inspection of seven Wellington St. gardens.

The gardens were an interesting study in beauty and variety, no two being alike in design.

After the inspection, members gathered on Mr. Green's lawn where lunch was served by the Wellington St. folk. President John Bent made a few announcements about the Fall flower show and discussed ways of preventing the devastations of the corn borer. He also mentioned it was less than nine years since Wellington St. had been opened up and homes built there.

The owners of these gardens in the southeast corner of Omemee are Messrs. Wilfred Wilson, John Green, James Gladding, Fred Faulkner, Lloyd Hart, Gordon Robinson and Gerald Nelson.

Await Decision On Protest Of CPR Shunter

City Council has not yet received reply from the CPR to relayed complaints of residents west of Park St., against the make-up shunting of the way freight that usually takes off westerly from Peterborough around 1 a.m.

There was some comment at the time of this protest that householders knew the possibilities when they built, bought or rented on streets adjacent to the railway. But, neighbourhood reply to that cold view of the nocturnal nuisance that has developed in their midst has been to the effect that it is a comparatively recent change in the railway habits.

Made Up In Havelock

The way freight is made up in Havelock. It is of interest to Peterborough because the CPR has advanced the making-up business here, resulting in earlier arrival in Toronto. And that is unanimously regarded as desirable, but it is contended that the company does not begin its shunting early enough, or does not get out of Havelock early enough. The hub of objection is to the shunting noises in the quiet on both sides of midnight when people are trying to get to sleep, are entitled to the ordinary facilities of sleep and need it as an aid to health.

Nobody pays any attention to the CPR local arriving at night. The midnight train usually coasts into Peterborough with a minimum of noise, but this new shunting shift is a real problem to the neighbourhood, south of the CGE, west of Park to the Western Ave. boundary. That is the information from some of those when petitioned the council to ask the CPR to ameliorate this new disturbance of the bedtime hours from nine to ten o'clock to 1 a.m., or thereabouts. It is argued that this is not a nuisance of long standing, something which was known to the people when they located their homes in that area. They say it is of recent interference with their quiet, and, for that reason alone, they have every right to protest to the CPR without being accused of unfriendliness to the company and the manufacturing interests of the city. Their argument is that the freight should be made up and out of here not later than 10 p.m.

Not The Gunman

A flutter of excitement spread round the city Monday evening when a Peterborough taxi driver thought he recognized a passenger as the bandit who killed one man and wounded another Saturday after a robbery at a Toronto groceteria.

Rumour was running high this morning that the killer had been arrested in a Peterborough hotel.

Story behind the rumour is that a Kingston visitor to Peterborough was questioned at city police station Monday evening by Constables Gordon Trennum and Dennis Traynor after a taxi driver had told them one of his passengers resembled the wanted man.

Like the Toronto police, Peterborough police are keeping on the alert and feel they cannot afford to ignore any suggestion which might lead to the arrest of the man.

The Kingston visitor and his Toronto companion were not detained after police were satisfied that neither was the hunted man.

WINS GRAND PRIZE

Roy Emery, 558 Rogers St., was the holder of the lucky ticket for the grand prize, a complete living room set, which was drawn for Monday at the annual Canadian Legion picnic in Nicholls Oval. The set contains a three-piece Chesterfield suite, two end tables, two table lamps, an electric clock, and a smoking stand.

Child Injured When She Runs In Front Of Car

A car accident on Aylmer St. only a few minutes before midnight, in which Bill Donaghue, 449 Rogers St., suffered two fractures to his right arm, was an unhappy ending to an otherwise road accident free city during Civic holiday.

The holiday week-end started with two incidents Saturday. Five-year-old Margaret Trueman, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Trueman, RR 8, Peterborough, was knocked down by a car at the corner of King and George Sts., when she darted into the road. She is now in Civic Hospital where she is reported to be doing well. She has a fractured arm and is suffering from cuts and bruises.

Second Accident

The other incident Saturday was a broadside collision between two cars at the intersection of Hunter and Aylmer St. As a result of the crash Elmer Gardiner, 220½ Brock St., a passenger in one of the vehicles, had a badly cut forehead requiring several stitches. He was not detained at St. Joseph's Hospital, however, after receiving treatment.

The accident on Aylmer St. on Monday at midnight was the result of a sequence of unfortunate incidents.

While John Smith, 97 Bennett St., was proceeding north on Aylmer St. between Brock and Murray Sts., the lights failed and the car caught fire owing to a short circuit. Smith called the Fire Department and while waiting for the firemen, J. B. Cavanagh, 380 Queen St., drove along. As Smith was opening the door of his car, Cavanagh's car hit the side of his car. Bill Donaghue was sitting in the back of Cavanagh's car with his arm hanging out of the window. According to Dr. Robert Young the arm was fractured above and below the elbow. St. Joseph's Hospital reports today that Donaghue's condition has improved.

Passengers in the cars at the time of the accident were Mrs. Cavanagh, Sheila Gray and baby, M. Cavanagh, Bill Donaghue, Sherman Killin and Mrs. John Smith. Constable Sherman Kellele investigated the accident.

Young Margaret Trueman met her injury when returning home from a show with Walter Ridley and four other children. Before anything could be done to prevent the accident, the girl ran apart from the party and into the road in front of the car.

Driver of the car was Ralph Brown, Richmond Hill. Constable Harold Mesley investigated. Treatment was first given by Dr. John T. Stewart at the clinic and the child was then taken to Civic Hospital.

The broadside collision at Hunter and Aylmer Sts. was between cars driven by Douglas Markwick, 227 Bethune St. and Herbert Tully, 243 McDonnel St.

Markwick was proceeding east on Hunter St. when the side of his car and the front of Tully's car, going north on Aylmer St., collided.

Markwick had a scratched arm, Tully, a scratched forehead and arm and the passenger, Elmer Gardner, in Tully's car, was treated for a cut head by Dr. J. E. Howes. Both the right side of Markwick's car and the front of Tully's are completely caved in.

Constable George Shaw investigated.

Early Sunday morning Constable Andy Dalton discovered an abandoned truck on Water St., the front end of which was smashed. The truck was resting against a tree and had apparently been involved in a collision.

When Oliver Pearson, 242 Euclid Ave., came to recover the truck later in the morning he discovered it had been removed. He was told by city police that it had been towed to a garage.

Monday night William K. Carroll, 834 Water St., complained at city police station that his car had been struck on the left front fender by a car which he met at Sherbrooke St. while driving north on George. The driver of the other car had not stopped, he said.

REGATTA DAY AT JUNIPER ISLAND attracted the largest crowd on Monday during its many years of existence, according to officials and old timers. Childrens' events were held in the morning and adults in the afternoon, with prize-giving and dancing at night. Long shot photo, Left, shows crowds on the west wharf watching the start of the women's single canoe race. Insert in same, seven in a skiff, paddled, coxswained by Ken Walters to second place. Not winners but admirers of the silverware are shown in the Centre photo, Left to Right, Norma Shaughnessy, Peterborough, Ann Washington, Oshawa; Mary Braund and Jane Abbott, both of Peterborough. Canoe tilting, Right photo, was finally conceded to the Evans brothers, at Right. Takeoff of the boys' 12 years and under swimming race, children's morning regatta, is shown in the Insert, Right photo.

The giving of racing trophies for the full three days of events took place in the pavilion in the evening, followed by the large annual regatta dance. One of the officials pointed out that nearly all the trophies this year were replacements, the originals being kept by one-year winners instead

Girl 12, Rescued From York River

BANCROFT, Aug. 2.—(ENS).—A twelve-year-old girl almost lost her life in the York River at Bancroft trying to match the swimming feat of her girl friend Monday afternoon.

Marilyn Haydon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Haydon, Bancroft, attempted to swim three times across the river, a total distance of 225 yards. Her girl friend had made the distance in the morning during a Lions' Club aquatic day.

Young Marilyn made two crossings and was attempting the final lap when she sank out of sight. Bill Delyea happened to see the girl and ran to tell Lifeguard Frank Wright of Peterborough.

Young Wright dived for the girl and found her lying on the bottom across some logs. He brought her out and applied artificial respiration. She recovered and was sent to the Red Cross Hospital by Dr. O. W. Anderson. The girl was expected to be released and sent home this afternoon.

Frank Wright, a Collegiate student, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wright, 580 Bolivar St. He was a swimming instructor at the YMCA last winter and a lifeguard at the Y camp a year ago.

SPUDS LIKE TOMATOES

Albert Anstey, 160 Maria St., got a surprise over the weekend when he visited his vegetable garden and found that several of his potato plants had sprouted tops which looked much more like those of tomatoes

Navigates High-Wheeler In Veterans' Annual Parade

Sidelights on Monday's Civic Holiday Veterans' parade and picnic:

Don Smedmor, in top hat and tails, did a mighty good job of navigating an old "high-wheeler" bicycle in the parade. When he got to Nicholls Oval he was worried for a while as to how he was going to get down safely to terra firma again, but he made it—without so much as a scratch.

George Hutcheson, courageous member of the Lions' Club, made a big hit with the crowd mincing around as "Miss Peterborough, 1893," a wig of flowing blond curls an outstanding part of his costume. At one stage of the parade he did a dance on top of an army truck. "It was the hardest day's work I ever put in," said George after it was all over.

Parade organizer Barney Chambers was a very unhappy man. The reason: He went to all the trouble of decking out several attractive young Peterborough ladies in white riding habits and red helmets, only to have their horses show up, but minus saddles, if you please.

"Cap" Tivy looked as though he was having the time of his life riding on the back of one of Dailey Bros.' Circus elephants.

Futile efforts of a clown to remain on the back of a small donkey brought laughter to the children. Incidentally, many of the kiddies were taken for donkey rides by the clowns in Nicholls Park, much to their delight.

Picnickers watching the Fire Department's aerial ladder demonstration laughed heartily when the first fireman to slide down the canvas life-saving chute from a height of 65 feet reached the bottom at the exact moment that an RCAF jet aircraft arrived from Trenton to begin a display of its powers. The plane roared by quite low in front of the raised ladder.

Three bands played in the parade, the Peterborough Civic Band, Canadian Legion Pipe Band and the Orono Band.

Among the most attractive parade floats were those of the YWCA, J. A. Marchen & Son, Millard's Sporting Goods (five bicycles hooked together abreast), and T. J. Cavanagh Appliances.

Summer Theatre Players Present Rebecca

By ROBERTSON DAVIES.

The Peterborough Summer Theatre provides its supporters with a marked change of atmosphere this week. The succession of comedies and farces which have filled the first five weeks of the season gave place on Monday night to "Rebecca," a melodrama based on the popular novel by Daphne du Maurier. The audience received the play with the keenest attention, and applauded with unmistakeable approval at the final curtain.

The play is one of atmosphere and mood, and it depends not only upon the personalities of the actors and their ability to create tension, but upon the stage setting and its furnishings. In the first of these requirements the Summer Theatre company was able to serve the play well. Several of the actors to whose work we have become accustomed showed new and interesting resources of talent, and there was a sense of teamwork through the whole production which was its chief strength. "Rebecca" is not a good play in a literary sense; many passages in it are reminiscent of the melodramas of an earlier day, and several of its situations are trite. But it is a good acting play, for all that. The actors are called upon to fill out the lines and make believable the quick leaps of the plot; if they can do that, "Rebecca" comes to life. It is a play which demands acting of star quality; the players at the Summer Theatre were not yet stars, but they were a first-class team, and they gave the play credibility, and they gave the audience a good many thrills.

A Fine Performance

The best performance in the piece was given by Miss Jeri Sauvinet, who played the part of a shy bride with tenderness and charm; she showed the development of the character with clear but subtle strokes, and the play was very much her triumph. Mr. John Primm, as her husband, carried the heaviest load, and played with vigour, resource and distinction. The third leading part was played by Margot Christie with admirably controlled intensity. These three gave performances far above the usual "stock" level, and gave yet another proof that Canada could create her own "stars" if our theatre permitted it.

The supporting cast was excellent, Mr. Michael Sadlier gave a most sympathetic performance in a somewhat thankless role and Paul Horton made the most of an effective "bit." Mr. Michael Lynd managed, in two scenes, to give a well-rounded portrait of a plausible rascal. Frank Perry and Brenda Davies handled their brief comedy scenes with pleasing warmth, and Bill Needles was better as the old family retainer than we have any right to expect old family retainers to be in summer stock. Mr. Jerry Sarracini appeared in the last act and resolved the plot capably.

The setting, showing the beautiful old mansion in Cornwall, was not one of Miss Jamieson's happiest efforts, suggesting an exercise in Pugin-Gothic. It was quickly forgotten, however, in the excitement of the play and the excellence of the acting.

Police Village Plan Rejected By Cottagers

Cottagers of Chemong Park decided to reject a proposal to form a police village, at a meeting held Friday night in the old pavilion.

President of the Chemong Park Cottagers Association, Dr. Ralph Clark, reported the general feeling was that the cottagers and Smith township should make greater effort to co-operate in matters affecting Chemong Park.

Cottagers decided a police village would mean too much trouble and expense.

Under the police village arrangement, taxes paid to the township would be returned and the village would have to provide garbage collection, road maintenance, police protection and many other services which would all run into a good deal of money.

W. B. Gordon described to the cottagers the legal procedure for the formation of the police village. Alex Edmison, clerk of Smith township, said he thought both the township and the cottagers would find it more advantageous if the police village were not formed.

It was announced at the meeting that a children's regatta was scheduled for Aug. 10 and there would be sailing races at Chemong Saturday.

Poems To Rescue Prairie Lilies

REGINA—(CP) — A one-woman campaign to save Saskatchewan's floral emblem has been launched by Mrs. Dorothy Morrison of Regina. Her attractive booklet, "The Prairie Lily," written for Saskatchewan school children, is just off the press.

"The prairie lily used to grow in profusion," Mrs. Morrison writes in her preface. "Now the lily population has decreased so much that flower lovers are alarmed."

The booklet contains a collection of stories, poems, essays and photographs concerned with the lily, all slanted toward preserving this fast-disappearing flower.

Saskatchewan chose the lily as its floral emblem in 1941, Mrs. Morrison recalls, when the legislature passed an act making the flower known botanically as 'lilium philadelphicum andinum'—and popularly called 'the prairie lily'—the emblem of the province."

Despite dry years— drought is the natural enemy of the lily—the flower has made a comeback of sorts within recent years only to be faced by another mortal enemy—man.

The flaunting beauty of the lily impels the thoughtless flower-picker to raid lily stands. It is with the idea of educating children, and through them the grown-ups, to the need for conserving the lily that Mrs. Morrison has written her booklet.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served, and later the bride changed to her travelling ensemble, a beige suit with Nile green nylon blouse and beige and brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall attended a reception in their honor at Sudbury on Friday night, and are spending their honeymoon at the groom's cottage, Lake Penage. On return they will live on Woolwich St., Guelph.

Serving Chicken on Sunday Roast Beef On Wednesday

By MARY MOORE

Peter and I are all that are left at home of our family this month and friends and relatives have been very kind in inviting us for dinners

We were having steak at my brother's home last Saturday night and I was praising my sister-in-law's broiling technique when my brother said "I'd rather have steak than chicken wouldn't you?"

Because I wanted to be polite I said "certainly" but I always order chicken instead of steak or roast beef when I am dining in a public dining room. Do you want chicken every Sunday? I think I do—with roast beef on Wednesdays (But we don't get either by a long way.)

Well, if you are still with me I will tell you how I served the chicken (that was given to us) last Sunday. While we have not had enough corn on the cob yet for me to know it is summer I had enough courage to cut some from the cob to make corn-stuffed tomatoes, because a dietitian who lives in New York told me it was wonderful with roast chicken.

Roast Chicken

(With corn-stuffed baked tomatoes)

(With Corn-stuffed Baked Tomatoes)

Select a 4 or 5½-pound roasting chicken (with soft breast-bone tip), and have it drawn and cleaned. Wipe with cold damp cloth. Put in stuffing (see below). Tie wings and legs close to body. Spread 3 tablespoons butter over breast and legs and sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour. Sprinkle bottom of roasting pan with flour Place chicken, breast up, in pan and roast at 450 deg Fahr., for 15 minutes, then baste with 3 more tablespoons butter melted in 2- 3cup boiling water. Reduce heat to 330 deg. Fahr. and cook until breast is tender—about 2 hours, basting every 10 minutes.

Poultry Stuffing

One small onion chopped finely, ½ to ¾ cup finely chopped celery, 3 tablespons butter, 3 cups soft breadcrumbs, 1' teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, and 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning or half poultry seasoning with sage. Saute the onion and celery in the butter about 5 minutes, gently—do not brown them much. Add this to all remaining ingredients, and stuff into the chicken skewer closed or sew.

Bake Corn-Stuff Tomatoes

Select medium sized tomatoes, cut slice from top, scoop out seed centres; turn upside down to drain. Cut raw corn from cobs—you will need about ¼ cup for each medium sized tomato. To 2 cups corn add ¼ cup boiling water, 2 tablespoons butter and shake of salt and pepper. Bring to boiling point. Fill into prepared tomatoes. About 15 minutes before chicken is ready to serve place the stuffed tomatoes around it in roasting pan, to bake. Do not be tempted to peel the tomatoes—for if you do they will not keep their shapes.

Make gravy from drippings in pan after you have removed chicken and tomatoes, by stirring 4 tablespoons flour into it, then adding 2 cups boiling water or liquid in which giblets were boiled made up to 2 cups with boiling water or the same of water in which potatoes or other mild flavored vegetables have been boiled. Add the finely chopped giblets, stir until thick, serve very hot. Some folks like to strain this gravy before adding the giblets, but we like the crisp bits in the gravy that stick to the pan during the baking. Salt does not need to be added as the chicken was so liberally sprinkled with it when first prepared.

Men Naturally Conceited Female Attitude Adds To It

DEAR MISS DIX: Why are the boys of today so terribly conceited?

SADIE.

✧ ✧ ✧

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: Well, my dear, it is partly a matter of sex. Every male creature is born with the settled belief that merely because he belongs to the masculine persuasion he is vastly superior to everything feminine. It is a complex and boys have it in most virulent form.

Mainly, however, the reason that boys are conceited is because you girls make them so by ministering to their vanity. You put them on a pedestal and kowtow before them and treat them as if they were little tin gods. Hence it is not surprising that boys think more highly of themselves than they should.

A boy may be loutish. He may be ignorant and rude and offensive in his manners. He may be dull and stupid. He may get beastly drunk. But even so, with all his faults thick upon him, girls are flattered to death to receive attentions from him.

Then look at the way girls run after boys. They don't wait for the boys to come to see them. They chase them down. They don't wait for the boys to make the dates. They hound boys over the telephone to come to see them, or to take them to places, and they are so grateful to a boy who will go out with them that they will buy the tickets to places of amusement, or get up the party and pay for it, and go and fetch the boys in their automobiles.

And why shouldn't boys be all puffed up over their own importance when girls will stand for the "keeping company" custom, which gives him every advantage and shows that the girl is so anxious for dates that she will enter into an unequal bargain? For "keeping company" binds the man to nothing. It leaves him free to quit whenever he pleases with no harm done to him, but it shuts a girl off from all chances of making a good match during her most attractive years.

If girls had any spunk and independence, they would demand that boys come up to certain standard before they would have anything to do with them. That would jar a lot of egotism out of their systems, and if you girls would refuse to run after boys, you would have them hot-footing it after you, for you are just as necessary to the boys' good times as they are to yours.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: At 17 I married a man ten years older than myself. He is a good man and treats me kindly, but I have come to loathe him. His very touch makes me shiver. We haven't an idea or thought in common. We quarrel constantly. I have one child. Must I go on this way to the end of my life? Why can't I take my child and go away and make a new beginning? Would not having my boy half the time be better than this fighting for him? What of his memories of his childhood in such a home? I suppose you will say stay for the sake of the child. It is all such a mess.

C.

ANSWER: Nearly every girl who marries at 17 has lost her taste for her husband by the time she is 25 and resents being tied down by husband and home and children and having missed all the fun of girlhood.

But there is no real remedy for such a mistake. So far as leaving your husband is concerned, that is a step that nine women out of ten regret after they have made it.

You have never tried making your living. You are trained to no trade or profession and if you take your child and go away from your husband and home you could not get any but the most menial job, and what little you could earn would not go far toward supporting the two of you. Food and clothes and shelter may not seem much to you now when you are letting your mind dwell upon your sentimental grievances, but if you had no roof to cover you and were hungry you would wonder why you ever bothered about such a little thing as whether your husband understood you or not.

No one now advocates a quarreling wife and husband staying together for the sake of the children. Unless they are willing to sink their differences and control their tongues and tempers and make a peaceful and quiet home for their children, it is far better for them to part.

Psychologists tell us that the children who are brought up in homes where the parents squabble all the time carry the ill effects of their environment through life. They are mentally and spiritually warped and are far more subject to nervous breakdowns than are the children who have fathers and mothers who live amiably and peacefully together and who are brought up in a harmonious home.

It seems to me that any woman who loves her children should be willing to forego making snappy comebacks at her husband for the sake of their whole future welfare.

Directions

Some of you, like my sister, may be experts at arranging a cold salmon and salad plate or platter. I think it is one of my favorite summer suppers. Chilled canned red salmon is almost as good as cold boiled Restigouche or Gaspe. Place this on cold dinner plates on crisp inner lettuce leeaves; garnish with rings or sticks of cucumber, wedges of lemon, radish roses and dill pickle sticks. At other side of plate arrange a potato salad made in your best manner. This involves having the potatoes slightly undercooked and cut into ½-inch dice, and mixing with an equal quantity of cooked or uncooked vegetables; celery, cucumber, peas, beans, chives, parsley, radishes and maybe some hard-cooked eggs sliced. Flavor this generously with salt, and moisten with plenty of mayonaise.

Serve chilled tomatoes too on your salmon plate.

I have a new type of meat loaf to suggest to you. I like it because of its shape and because it is best when sliced cold—for dinners during this hot weather, when you assemble a meal rather than cook it.

Steamed Meat Loaves

One pound shank or shoulder veal, ½ pound shank or shoulder pork; ¾ pound smoked shoulder pork. If your butcher will grind this for you it is ever so much better; if not grind it yourself, making this a little easier by putting 1½ cups broken crackers through the grinder with the meat. Add 2 beaten eggs, 1½ to 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups whole milk and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Press this into buttered baking powder tins and steam 3 hours covered, adding water to steamer as needed. These are best served cold with any variety of relishes, for the meat slices nicely when chilled; but if you want to serve one of the moulds hot when you first steam them, serve also a tomato sauce; a good accompaniment when hot is creamed or French fried cauliflower.

French fried cauliflower is made by parboiling flowerets of cauliflower about 10 minutes. Drain well and dry and dip in crumbs and egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat until golden. Drain a little before serving.

Fruit Compote

For fruits like plums, peaches, pears, apples, cherries: Boil together 1½ cups sugar and 2 2-3 cups water 5 minutes. Add prepared fruit to make 1 layer and cook until fruits are just tender enough to eat but not soft. Skim out of syrup and drain. Add remaining fruit in layers until all is done. Serve cold in cold syrup.

New Mop Whirls The Dust Away

WASHINGTON, D.C.—An innovation in dust-mop shaking has come at last! The new whirl mop duster neatly handles the problem with a sturdy steel spiral shaft and a hand grip, both of which make for a whirling action which is said quickly and easily to whirl all dust and lint away. Where shaking dust out of windows is prohibited, it can be cleaned, with little fuss, in a large paper bag. The removable, washable mop head is of "pancake" design to fit under lowest radiators and furniture, and "refills" can be purchased.

Budd-Belch Rites Solemnized At Millbrook

The wedding took place in Grace Presbyterian church, Millbrook on Saturday of Martha Elizabeth, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Belch, Millbrook, to Donald Wilbert Budd, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Budd, of Port Hope. The Rev. Walter Patterson officiated.

The church was decorated with mauve and yellow gladioli, hydrangea and fern. Hydrangea with white satin streamers marked the seats for the guests. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Roy Bickle and Mr. Bickle sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the bride entered the church, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and she wore an original Juliet gown of ivory bridal satin with panels of lace, a pleated bodice with tiny covered buttons, styled with a sweetheart neckline, and long fitted sleeves with lily points over the hands. Her three-quarter veil was of silk embroidered net caught to a tiara of seed pearls and silver beads, and she carried red roses.

Miss Mary Buckam, in yellow taffeta, was maid of honor, and Miss Gwendolyn Budd, sister of the groom, in mauve taffeta, was bridesmaid. Their gowns had sweetheart necklines, puff sleeves and full skirts with bustle effect. Both wore picture hats of net, and mittens in matching shades. They carried bouquets of mauve and yellow gladioli.

The groomsman was Mr. Willoughby Belch, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Tom Belch, brother of the bride, and Morley Budd, cousin of the groom.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where her mother received, wearing navy petit point crepe, navy felt hat and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore pink silk jersey with navy accessories, and pink and white carnations.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Charles Roberts, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Orme Beatty, the groom's aunt, both of Port Hope. Friends of the bride who helped in serving were: Misses Vera Fallis, Jean Wilson, Bernice Greatrix, Kathleen Ord, Ruth Peters, Margaret Aiken, Ethel Belch and Jean Bickle.

For travelling the bride wore a navy polka dot crepe dress with navy and white accessories and a corsage of red roses. The couple left for trip to Northern Ontario and on return will live on the groom's farm near Port Hope.

6—In Memoriams

BISHTON—In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Charles Bishton, who died one year ago today, Aug. 2, 1948.
Today recalls sad memories
Of a dear son and brother gone to rest,
Day by day we think of him,
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
When all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green
And never fade away.
—Ever remembered by Mother, Sisters and Brothers.

FAUX—In loving memory of Mrs. John Faux, who died August 2nd, 1946.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow,
Memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died three years ago.
—Ever remembered by husband and daughter.

LESLIE—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Loretta Leslie, who died July 31, 1947.
The world may change from year to year,
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one I loved
From memory pass away.
—Ever remembered by her daughter, Helen, Charles and Freddie.

YORK—In memory of Wilford York, who was killed in action, August 1, 1944.
Not till the loom is silent,
And the shuttles cease to fly,
Shall God unroll the canvas
And explain the reason why.
The dark threads are as needful
In the weaver's skilful hands
As the threads of gold and silver
In the pattern to be planned.
—Always remembered by Mother, Margaret and babies.

Juniper Island

of being returned. This year winners signed for cups and will be requested to turn them in by the association secretary well in advance of next year's event.

Juniper regatta is more than test ground for aspiring athletes. It is a gathering place where cottagers meet but once a year. Indeed, a great many, who have seen the events year after year, go to the regatta to visit only, and it is surprising how quickly family histories can be sorted out.

Favoured with excellent regatta weather stiff winds for sailing on Sunday to a breath of air and heat on Monday, contestants were attracted from one end of the Kawartha chain to the other. It was observed by old timers, who attended the Juniper event for more than three decades, that the turnout at that spectacle was the largest it had ever been.

On Monday morning children competed in canoe, skiff and swimming races and showed great eagerness in crowding into each event and above all the finest of sportsmanhhip. It took three hours to run off the 16 items listed and a final tally showed Joan Townsend and Al Barker, trophy point winners with 16 points each to their credit. The children's regatta results were as follows:

Boys' single canoe, 14 years and under, John Cumberland first and Peter Mason; girls' tandem in the same age group, Joan Townsend and Sarah Johnston, first, and Betty-Anne and Gail Wilkinson, second; mixed tandem skiff, Ross Ward and Terry Hickey, first, and Richard Weatherstone and Connie Hickey, second place; boys' tandem canoe, 14 and under, Joe Norwich and Al Barker, first, and John Cumberland and Mike Allan second.

Girls' Canoe Races

In girls' single canoe, 14 and under, Joan Townsend, Betty-Anne Wilkinson. Gail Wilkinson and Jerry Barker won the tandem skiff, 10 years and under, and Penny and Pan Moore, second; gunwale race, 14 and under, Mike Allan, first, Al Backer, second; mixed tandem canoe, 14 and under, Joan Townsend and John Cumberland, first, Betty-Anne Wilkinson and Al Barker, second; boys' single canoe, 12 and under, Ricky Merry, Bricky Eason; boys' skiff, 14 and under, Mike Allan and Al Barker.

There were six swimming classes and winners, listed first and second, respectively, won in the following age groups: ten years and under, John McMurtry, Dan Yarmay; boys' 12 years and under, Dave Moore, Don Cherry; girls' 12 and under, Joan Townsend, Gail Wilkinson; boys' 14 and under, Al Barker, Roger Fairburn; girls' 14 and under, Allison MacKenzie, Barbara Quartermain; in a special event, girls 10 years and under, the trophy went to Gail Wilkinson and Jenny Moore was second.

Tourists Bring Fewer US Dollars

A check-up at four of the city's banks to discover to what extent U.S. dollars are coming into Peterborough, reveals that the inflow is about equal with last summer's revenue although there are more Americans here. All four banks report that the amount coming in is much the same as last year but one claims it is spread over a larger number of visitors, who are not spending so freely as before.

"They are coming in with $20 bills to exchange for 20 $1 bills," one accountant said. From conversations over the counter, the accountant concluded that American visitors were staging a sales resistance because they claimed prices were lower in the States.

The amount of Canadian currency exchanged by Peterborough residents for U.S. dollars is about the same as last year all four banks say.

Detroit Woman Injured In Crash

An American woman tourist was badly injured and three other occupants of the car she was driving escaped with cuts and bruises in an accident caused by a rear tire blowout on No. 7 Highway, three miles east of Peterborough, Saturday afternoon. The injured woman, Mrs. Adam Raby, Detroit, Michigan, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with two fractured wrists, a broken shoulder, and a dislocated arm. Hospital authorities reported her condition was satisfactory.

Mrs. Raby's husband received several cuts on the head and chest bruises. Their son Patrick was uninjured and the fourth passenger, Howard Gustafson, also of Detroit, was cut about the head.

The car was forced off the road by the blowout and ended up in the ditch with wheels in the air. It was badly battered, damage being estimated at about $800. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable E. J. Crough, assisted by Corporal L. A. McClure. The officers said that it was remarkable that there was not at lease one person killed in the accident. The car was being driven toward Peterborough at the time.

Boy Falls Six Feet Playing At Inverlea

A swing from the jungle gym to the monkey bar resulted in an injured arm Sunday for Jack O'Rourke, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke, 224 Dublin Street.

The young boy was playing in Inverlea Park on the bars when he slipped and fell about 6 feet.

Lifeguard Trevor Davies applied splints and sent the boy off to a doctor. It is believed one of the bones above the wrist was broken.

QUIET AT FIRE HALL

Only one emergency call to the fire department was made during the holiday weekend, when a car caught fire Saturday evening on Aylmer St. Cooler weather kept all but the keenest swimmers away from the water with the result there were no reported incidents of people getting into difficulties in deep water. Unlike the last holiday weekend, the fire department's respiratory equipment was not required.

POSTPONE POLICE COURT

City police court was postponed today from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. as Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, presided this morning at Bowmanville police court.

Backwash Upsets Rowboat; Three Nearly Drown

HASTINGS, Aug. 2 (ENS) — Three Toronto men narrowly escaped drowning on Sunday afternoon when their rowboat was overturned on the Trent River by the backwash of an American motor cruiser just below First Island one mile from here. Those in the fowboat, all of whom were able to swim to shore, were Arthur O'Bourne, 12 Maple Grove Ave.; George Keetch, 12 Frankish Ave., and George Fleeker, 450½ Montrose Ave. O-Bourne received a cut on his ear when he struck the overturned rowboat on coming to the surface.

Eye witnesses told Provincial Constable A. Kellogg that the launch slowed down, only to speed up again soon after and continue on its course up the river. They said a man stood up in the stern and looked toward the men struggling in the water as the launch slowed down.

Several residents of the area reported the incident immediately to Constable Kellogg, who arrived at the lock bridge just as the launch was tying up preparatory to going through the lock. He said the cruiser was piloted by Sam H. Miller, 4297 Hopkins Rd., Youngstown, Ohio, who was accompanied by his son S. H. Miller, Jr., his daughter Barbara, and George Strong, Johnstown, Pa. Constable Kellogg said that the case had been turned over to the Cobourg detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who have sole jurisdiction over pilicing inland waters.

Funeral On Saturday For Wm. McCormick

Funeral service for the late William John McCormack, 65, of 858 George St. N., was held on Saturday at the Kaye funeral home.

Mr. McCormack died in hospital Thursday following a short illness. He was born in Lakefield, son of the late John McCormack and Matilda Gibson, and had lived in the city for the past 46 years.

He was a well-known figure in the stationery business for almost half a century, first in a business conducted by the late A. H. Stratton, and latterly with the Trebilcock Brothers. Mr. McCormack was a member of St. Andrew's United Church, and left three sisters and a niece; he was not married.

Injured In City Park

A complicated fracture-dislocation of the hip brought Lawrence Dinsdale of Brockville to Civic Hospital at 5:45 p.m. Monday afternoon. He is being treated by Dr. R. K. Magee.

Details of how the accodent occurred are not certain, but the middle-aged man was apparently running in Jackson Park and slipped. His general condition is reported "quite good."

AT THE TENDER AGE OF THREE MONTHS, Tuka Tuka, a smoke-grey kitten, has discovered that epicurean delight, corn on the cob. Her master, Jimmy Krout, of Los Angeles, Cal., 13, says the kitten first sampled it when his baby sister tossed an ear to the floor. Now she sets up a clamor for two or three ears every time it's served.

Thomas H. Blanchard Buried On Saturday

The Rev. Dr. Bruce Gordon conducted the funeral service of the late Thomas Howard Blanchard on Saturday, July 30, 1949, at the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons.

Simcoe Memorial Will Go To Canada

EXETER, ENGLAND, Aug. 2—(AP)—A memorial to Lt.-Gen. John Graves Simcoe, first lieutenant - governor of Upper Canada, which was erected 150 years ago in Exeter cathedral, will be shipped soon to Simcoe, Ont.

The memorial was severely damaged when the cathedral was bombed in May, 1942. A request for it was made recently by Rev. C.C.W.Mixer of Trinity Church, Simcoe.

He has now been informed that the Greater Chapter of the cathedral is willing "to hand over the Simcoe memorial in its broken condition to you, with a view to arranging removal and transport to Canada and for its repair and erection in Simcoe parish church."

The memorial consisted of two large marble figures, both of which were broken, and a central medallion, bearing the head and shoulders of the general, which was damaged only slightly.

RELIEF FROM HAY FEVER MISERY

LANTIGEN "E" contains extracts of pollens of grasses, weeds and spores of Canadian origin to which Hay Fever sufferers are usually allergic. Sufferers from Hay Fever are well advised to start taking Lantigen "E" about a month before their usual attack begins. The severity of the attack may be greatly reduced, if not eliminated entirely, when LANTIGEN "E" is taken as directed. Since bacterial infection of the upper respiratory tract frequently occurs with Hay Fever, LANTIGEN "E" combines the antigens of these organisms, a vaccine, with the pollens of grasses, weeds and spores.

You too may enjoy the relief found by thousands! Get a bottle of LANTIGEN "E"—and avoid the bother and discomfort of hypodermic injections.

Hollywood's Tommy Dorsey On Wagon For 5th Year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, August 1 (AP) —Tommy Dorsey recently heard a report of a Hollywood know-it-all who remarked: "Too bad Tommy's hitting the bottle again."

The bandleader, who hears about such comments every so often, merely smiled and chalked it up to the usual trade misinformation. He will soon mark his fifth year on the wagon.

Dorsey relaxed in the sun outside his Hotel Cabana and told me how it all happened.

"It was five years ago next month," he related. "I was sitting in Mocambo with a bunch of friends, getting loaded. I looked up at the birds flying back and forth and I realized how silly the whole thing was.

"I walked out of the place, went up to my apartment and slept for a day and a half. That was in 1944 and I haven't had a drink since."

One day he met Arthur Michaud. "Where've you been?" Dorsey asked.

"Frankly, Tommy, I've been ducking you," was the answer. "That booze is making you a hard man to get along with."

Dorsey's Deal

Tommy made a deal: $500 if he could stay on the wagon six months. The transaction has been extended several times and not long ago Dorsey tore up Micaud's cheque for $1,500, payment for 18 drinkless months.

"I figure me and liquor don't get along," he said. "Certainly I couldn't do the amount of work I do if I drank."

What about the incident on the balcony some years ago, when Jon Hall's nose was almost sliced off?

"That probably wouldn't have happened if we had all had our wits about us," he admitted.

Era To Blame

Dorsey said it was associations that put him on the drinking jag.

"Back in the days when we were playing with Paul Whiteman, we worked hard. We didn't have enough time off to play golf or catch a ball game. We just had time enough to go across the street and grab a few drinks.

"Also it was due to the era we grew up in. It was during prohibition when the hip flask and bathtub gin were the rage."

He said the new crop of bandmen are different. "With that band that I've got, you could put a bottle of whisky on the stand with them and it wouldn't be emptied for two weeks."

ASTRONOMICAL FIGURES

Plan To Have Defence Group By '50

Ask Arms Resources Merge In Framework Under Atlantic Pact

LONDON, Aug. 3 (AP)—A defence organization under the Atlantic Treaty "might be set up before the end of the year," Admiral Louis Denfeld said today.

That brief statement from the naval member of the American joint chiefs of staff was the first direct indication of their progress in meetings with the military leaders of the pact countries.

Denfeld spoke after he, the Army Chief-of-Staff, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, and the Air Force Chief-of-Staff, Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, met for more than three hours with the British Chiefs of Staff.

Asked how soon a defence mechanism for the Atlantic Pact could be established, Denfeld replied: "I should think it will not be too long. It might be before the end of the year."

Responsible officials said the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff want Britain and other pact partners to promise prompt large-scale military unity in a common defence program.

The United States Staff Chiefs —Army Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Air Forces Gen. Hoyt E. Denfeld —arrived Tuesday night from Germany for two days of conferences in London before going to Paris Thursday.

Admiral Denfeld told reporters Britain and the United States were considering how the 12-country Atlantic Alliance would absorb the military staff already set up by the five-country western European union. Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg last year established a joint military committee headed by Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery.

Want Tight Framework

Well-informed sources here said the United States chiefs of staff want the five western union powers to merge their forces and defence resources into a tightly-knit Atlantic pact framework.

Some reluctance against such a full-scale merger has been unofficially reported among the western union partners.

The informants said the United States military chiefs hope to get an agreement on unification to allay any doubt among members of the United States Congress that the Atlantic treaty partners might not pull together as a team in case of aggression.

PLANE CRASHES, PILOT SAFE—A Harvard training aircraft crashed and burned Tuesday afternoon at Hoard's Station, 8½ miles west of Campbellford. US Of Indonesia To Be Formed, Will End War

BATAVIA, Java, Aug. 3 (AP) —Representatives of the Indonesian Republic and 15 Netherlands-backed states of the East Indies agreed Tuesday to form a United States of Indonesia, which will accept sovereignty under the Netherlands crown.

The agreement still needs Netherlands approval. It will be submitted at a forthcoming round-table conference at The Hague.

The agreement calls for a European-type provisional government to be formed as soon as possible, covering all 72,000,000 inhabitants of the islands the Netherlands once ruled as colonies

It marks, presumably, one of the final steps toward ending the fevolt against Netherlands rule that has resulted in sporadic fighting since Indonesia's liberation from the Japanese in 1945.

The United Nations Commission for Indonesia has announced that a formal cease fire between the Netherlands and the Republicans will be proclaimed today and go into effect a few days later.

The provisional government will rule under a temporary constitution until a constituent assembly is elected.

It will comprise a president to be named by the conference delegates and an inner cabinet of five ministers, to be supplemented later by a two-house provisional parliament.

Plane Crashes In Flames Farmers Save RCAF Pilot

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 3 (ENS)—A charred mass of twisted metal was all that remained of a Trenton Harvard Trainer, piloted by Flight Cadet Eric Chapel, 19, of Fort William, after striking a high tension wire on the main power line, connecting Beauharnois, Que., with Leaside, Toronto, at about 3 p.m. Tuesday. The accident occurred 8½ miles east of here and ½ mile west of Hoard's Station. The pilot was severly injured.

The plane travelled about 300 feet, after coming in contact with the wire, before making a pancake landing in a field on Clayton Thompson's farm. The terrific impact caused the machine to catch fire and in a few minutes it was an inferno of burning metal.

Hearing the crash, Stanley Williams, Carleton Phillips and Ralph Johnson, who were combining ¼ mile west, rushed to the plane and found the pilot lying unconscious close to the right wing in a pool of blood. They arrived as the flames were almost licking at the R.C.A.F. flier.

Give First Aid

Williams and Phillips used their shirts for bandages and tourniquets to stop the flow of blood, while Johnson phoned for an ambulance from Belleville. The pilot was taken to Belleville hospital suffering from severe head gashes, fractured ankle, chest burns and other internal injuries.

Four guards from Trenton airport are guarding the plane until an investigation is held.

There were no witnesses to the crackup.

Momentarily regaining consciousness in the ambulance, the young trainee told attendants: "I was coming down. . . gunned the motor . . . that's all I remember."

Cause of the crash remained unknown. Gauges showed the aircraft contained 14 gallons of gasoline in its starboard tank. The port tank was full.

The injured pilot had two weeks' more of training to complete his course.

Rochester Faces Oil On Beaches

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Aug. 3.—(AP).—The turmoil over oil boiled today both in Toronto and along the Rochester lake front. Beach users were oil-covered. Officials are mystified.

It looks like tar globules. Toronto reports say it's greasy. Rochester beach front mothers say it comes off with difficulty from small feet and legs. They're using turpentine.

What is it?

The Rochester Gas and Electric Corporation says its chemists may analyze it. Paul Windt, chief engineer of the Rochester and Lake Ontario Water Service Corporation, says he hasn't seen any of the current crop, but thinks he knows what it is.

"They're grease balls," says Windt, "and they may come down the Genesee river. They're grease, mud and fibre. If Toronto has anything like them, they probably come from Buffalo, where all the ships dock."

The coast guard at Summerville Station was more mystified. Officials there, who received some complaints from the lake front about the "tar balls," suggested they might have come from a ship throwing out bilge.

Maj. Gen. Weeks Leaving Army

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Ernest G. (Bunny) Weeks, C.B., C.B.E., M.C. and bar, M.M. and bar, is leaving the army at 53 to make room for others because he remembers when he came to the conclusion—after 12 years as a captain—that the brass just never quit or died

After 38 years of soldiering that brought him four gallantry awards, took him through just about every rank from private to major-general and saw him as a key figure in the reorganization of Canada's post-war army, he goes on retirement leave as adjutant-general Aug. 15.

He leaves behind an enviable record as a soldier both in action and at a desk. But the military small fry will always remember him particularly as a big humane man who could always be seen with a minimum of red tape and who could go to almost any length to eliminate injustice.

Defence Minister Claxton saluted his departure by calling him "a distinguished fighting soldier and a great administrator" and saying his "capacity, hard work, experience and absolute fairness were responsible for overcoming most of the problems" during the army's readjustment after 1945.

Hong Kong Goes Wild Over Sloop

Reds Try To Make Commander Admit He Invaded China

HONG KONG, Aug. 3 (Reuters). — Lt.-Cmdr. John S. Kerans, captain of the Royal Navy sloop Amethyst, said to-day the Chinese Communists had tried to force the British Government, through himself, to admit to the charges of invasion and infringement of sovereignty, and to agree to make an apology and pay compensation.

He brought his ship to this British colony early to-day after running her past Chinese Communist gunfire from the banks of the Yangtze where she had been marooned after being crippled on her way to Nanking.

Telling this story of the three-month "siege," Kerans said the Communists had made their demands the prerequisite for a safe conduct down the Yangtze.

Negotiations for the ship's release were lengthy and extremely difficult, he said.

Kerans said his decision to attempt an escape was influenced by the Amethyst's dwindling fuel and food supply.

Kerans denied Tuesday's Communist radio accusations that the Amethyst had fired on a Chinese passenger steamer during her escape.

No Firing On Ship

He said that when the Communists began firing, shortly after the Amethyst started downstream behind a Chinese passenger steamer, some passengers may have panicked, jumped in the water, and been drowned.

"There was no possibility that I hit the passenger steamer," he said. "When I fired at the Communist batteries, it was in self-defence, and only as a last resort."

The passenger steamer pulled off course in front of the Amethyst, which missed her by about two feet as she raced downstream.

A Chinese infantry landing craft in the vicinity was apparently set afire by the Communists' own shelling.

He admitted Communist claims that they allowed the Amethyst to get supplies from Shanghai and Nanking and buy produce locally.

"They also charged terrific prices," he added.

The Amethyst was given the biggest reception ever seen in Hong Kong when her crew, tired out and smiling triumphantly, she tied up in the Royal Naval Dockyard.

Go All Out

Five days after making her daring escape from Communist "captivity" in the Yangtze River, the little vessel was cheered and greeted by ships' sirens and low-flying Spitfires.

"They are really overdoing it," one officer said modestly as the Amethyst entered port.

Sir Alexander Grantham, Governor of Hong Kong, and services commanders greeted the crew. Then the crew began piecing together the story of the Amethyst's weeks of "captivity" and her escape.

They told how Kerans ate and changed his clothes on the bridge during the four-day voyage from the river.

New Zealand Voters Approve Conscription

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Aug 3 (Reuters)—New Zealand voters today rolled up a huge majority in favor of peacetime compulsory military service.

The preliminary count of votes in the dominion-wide referendum put the final vote in favor of the draft of 535,401 with 152,810 votes against.

Government and opposition parties united in supporting draft.

Frank Langstone, former High Commissioner to Canada, was the sole prominent Labor member opposing. May labor unions said they would continue to support the "traditional labor policy of no conscription in peacetime." They were joined in their opposition by Communists, Christian Pacifists and Quakers.

5th Toronto Slaying in Week Find Woman's Body in Car

TORONTO, Aug. 3—(CP)—The fifth murder in less than a week in the Toronto district was uncovered today when police found the bullet-riddled body of Mrs. Gloria McKay, 23-year-old wife of Robert Smith (Red) McKay, 25, whose body was found in suburban North York yesterday. Mrs. McKay's body was found in the family car, parked in a lot at the former Christie Street military hospital. She had been shot four times. The body was covered with a club bag and a blanket.

Police said she had been brutally beaten before being shot.

Police were first attracted to the car by the barking of the couple's pet dog, Toby, who was sitting by the right front wheel of the car.

The car door was open and the woman's head and feet were protruding from underneath the blanket.

Rifle Not Fired

The body had been stuffed face down on the floor under the back seat. Police also found a .22-calibre rifle with telescopic sight which the McKays took with them on their Civic holiday week-end. It had not been fired, police said, and was definitely not used in the slayings.

Police said they believed the slayer killed both McKay and his wife in some as yet unknown spot, took McKay's body to the suburban township and then hid the car in the parking lot.

Police said that thorough investigation had shown that the woman was neither criminally assaulted nor robbed.

Police said they are sending a .38 calibre bullet removed from McKay's body to Ottawa for ballistics tests to compare with a bullet taken from the body of Alfred Layng, slain Saturday afternoon trying to capture a man who had robbed a groceteria. They said the man who killed Layng may also have killed the McKays.

Tried To Escape

Police said one bullet had pierced the middle of the woman's back and another was found near the base of the head. It is believed she was shot in the back as she tried to escape her assailant. Police said an empty wallet found on the front seat of the car indicated the motive may have been robbery.

Mrs. McKay's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Powell, of Toronto, were informed of the double slaying while they were holidaying in Atlantic City. They will return here immediately, police said.

72 Prisoners Escape Jail With Arsenal Police Assault Defences, Kill 6, Take 8

MORELIA, Mex., Aug. 3 (AP) —Police early today battled 72 prisoners who escaped from the city jail Tuesday night.

Six prisoners were killed in the fighting and eight captured, police headquarters said. One policeman was reported dead and two wounded.

The escaped prisoners, armed with rifles, sidearms and other weapons from the jail, were surrounded on a small hill outside the city. Police dug in around the hill for an all-night battle.

The prisoners broke out of jail shortly before nightfall. They made a concerted rush on guards and overwhelmed them.

They ransacked the jail for weapons before fleeing and are believed to have at least eight rifles and quantities of ammunition. Six of the prisoners are listed as "dangerous convicts."

Police, reinforced by troops from the local garrison, overtook the band of jail breakers at the city's outskirts and forced them to take up a defence position on the hill.

Accuse Russia of Using 10 Million Slave Laborers

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 3—(AP)—Britain today formally accused Russia of maintaining 10,000,000 slave laborers in "a new slavery organized on a mass production basis." Russia retorted in the United Nations Economic and Social Council here that the British charge simply was a smokescreen to cover up Britain's own labor troubles.

The United States proposed appointment of a United Nations Commission of 11 to inquire into "the nature and extent of forced labor" throughout the world. The United States resolution suggested emphasis in such an inquiry be placed on "situations involving large numbers of persons or wide-spread practices of forced labor."

The British charges were made by Corley Smith, British delegate who presented what he described as a copy of a "corrective labor code of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic" on rules for labor camps in the Soviet Union. The RSFSR is Russia's largest republic, with Moscow as its capital.

Humane System

Russia retorted that the codes presented by Britain actually represented a humane system with "re-education of the people" as one of its aims. The Soviet delegate said the code's object was to place persons sentenced to penal servitude . "in conditions which make it impossible for them to do anything hostile to Soviet society."

Smith asked for a straight answer from the Soviet delegate—"yes or no"—as to whether the Soviet Union would permit an investigation.

Soviet delegate Amasasp Arutiunian countered with the charge that Britain's Labor Government had initiated a hostile campaign against the Soviet Union to detract attention from its own economic difficulties.

Mediators Visit Asbestos Plants

THETFORD MINES, Que., Aug 3 (CP)—Sittings of the arbitration board to settle the asbestos labor dispute today moved to the plants of three Thetford Mines companies to investigate asbestos dust conditions.

The move was granted the Federation of Asbestos Workers' Syndicates at the opening session of board Tuesday despite opposition from company representatives.

The Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor, to which the Federation is affiliated, called in two experts to visit the plants along with the board composed of Judge Thomas Tremblay, of Quebec, chairman, Theo Lesperance, of Montreal, representing the Federation and Raymond Caron, also of Montreal acting for the companies.

The experts who will visit the plants of Asbestos Corporation, Johnson Company and Flintkote Mines, Ltd., are Dr. Albert Cholette and Dr. Roger Potuin, both professors at Laval University.

The investigation was ordered on a motion of Federation counsel L. P. Pigeon, of Quebec, who said the board should consider every aspect of relations between workers and companies.

T. K. Ker of Montreal, counsel for Johnson Company, in opposing the motion, said the asbestos dust conditions were a matter for the Mines and Health Departments and not for the Labor Department.

Says Rookies Rights Ignored

WINDSOR, Aug. 3 (CP)—Alleged "dictatorial" methods of Windsor police officials in dealing with rookie members of the force were attacked last night by Controller Gordon B. Ellis.

Ellis said he objected particularly to a form which new policemen had to sign in which they forfeit any right to appeal their dismissal from the force for a violation of regulations.

"This is strictly against all democratic procedure, if it is true" he said. "I think this council should be given a complete report on methods employed by the police department."

Mayor Arthur J. Reaume said the matter was coming up for discussion at an early meeting of the police commission and he would see that council was given a report of the discussion.

Boy 12 Rescues Pair Gets Thanks, 20 Cents

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 3 (Reuters)—A 12-year-old boy Tuesday rowed a quarter of a mile in rough seas to rescue a man and his son, thrown into the water when their yatcht capsized near here. He also salvaged the yacht.

Safe on shore, the man said "Thank you" to the boy and gave him one krone, the equivalent to 20 cents.

Ex-Soldier Picks Wife In Hurry

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Aug. 3 (AP) —Charles Donaldson said today he has found the "hurry-up wife" for whom he had advertised.

But the 21-year-old former soldier declined to reveal her name. He said she was 18 and that they met last night in a drug store for the first time.

A flood of telephone calls had overloaded the dial system ever since Donaldson advertised that he wanted a girl younger than 21 get married by next Saturday.

After numerous calls from prospective brides, Donaldson arranged a meeting with one of the callers Tuesday night. The girl waited at a drug store. Donaldson said he walked in and out of the place four times, before the girl identified herself.

Driver Of Stolen Car Offers To Pay Damage

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 3 (CP)— The car driver was affability itself after he struck the motor bike on downtown Pinnacle Street here.

He smiled, showed his driver's licence quickly, said "send me the bill, I'll pay the shot" and drove away.

Bill Williams, owner of the bike, reported the accident to police.

The law glanced at the name and licence number of the erring car.

Then it smiled. It was a stolen automobile they had been looking for the past two days.

3 Indians Drown

COCHRANE, Aug. 3 (CP) — Word was received here today of the drowning of three Indians at Lowbush, 40 miles east of here. The men drowned Tuesday night were Baptiste Singer and his son whose name could not be learned and a youth named Black. Police left today to investigate but further details were not expected to be available until tonight.

11 Industrial Monopolies Smashed By MacArthur

TOKYO, Aug. 3 (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur's controversial program for breaking up Japan's economic giants ended today. The allied occupation commander said it was "accomplished effectively."

Eleven big corporations were tagged for deconcentration by a five-man review board which came here from Washington 15 months ago to make recommendations on 325 firms listed as "excessive concentrations."

The board recommended divestment of certain holdings for nine others.

The 325 companies were selected for board action out of about 1,200 which had been affiliated with the Zaibatsu holding companies. Through this powerful setup, headquarters said, "a small number of families exercised all-pervasive control over the industry, commerce and finance of Japan."

From its beginning, the deconcentration program was a matter of hot international and domestic debate. In the United States as well as Japan some called it "socialization." Others criticized it as "fragmentation of industry."

A press statement issued today by MacArthur's headquarters said:

"The elimination of monopolistic economic power which dominated pre-war Japanese life has been accomplished effectively without adverse effect upon, and no 'fragmentation' of, finance or industry.

"On the contrary, competent observers point to the 50 per cent increase in production along with considerable progress toward stabilization during the past year as evidence of the growing health of the Japanese economy."

France Enjoys Prosperity As Political Scene Calm

By STUART UNDERHILL.

PARIS, Aug. 3 (CP) — The French political scene, so often in turmoil since the war, is comparatively calm this summer as the country enjoys its greatest prosperity in years.

Pessimists say that this may be the lull before a storm. Living conditions show a marked improvement and "people are beginning to feel we can afford a political crisis," one Frenchman said.

On the other hand, the coalition of "Centralist" parties under Premier Henri Queuille has held office for almost a year and gives no immediate sign of collapse. There are frequent disagreements among its members, but so far they have been patched up before reaching an open break.

Communist agitation, which brought strikes and disorders in 1947-48, has simmered down. The party appears to be in its weakest position since 1945, although it is deeply entrenched among the working classes.

Gen. De Gaulle, forthright opponent of Communism, has found less cause lately to rally the French people to his side. His lessened activity may be due in part to difficulties arising from internal squabbles in his organization.

"The real test will come this winter," said one observer. "Now food is plentiful and the tourist traffic is at its height.

"You may be sure the Communists are awaiting a chance to embarrass and if possible overthrow the government. As the Communists attack, so De Gaulle's cause flourishes."

A rift in the five-party coalition could come on any one of a score of issues—financial policy, foreign affairs, conduct of anti-guerilla activities in Indo-China among them.

Four Armed Bandits Rob Aga Khan's Party

NICE, France, Aug. 3.—(Reuters).—Four armed bandits today stopped the Aga Khan's car, slashed the tires and stole all the jewelry his party had.

The 72-year-old Aga Khan, his wife, a maid and their chauffeur were leaving their villa for Deauville to meet Prince Aly Khan and his wife, film star Rita Hayworth.

As the car passed through the gate of the villa, four men armed with revolvers jumped out. They forced the occupants to open the doors of the car and give up their jewelry.

Unconfirmed estimates placed the value of the haul at 200,000,000 francs ($729,200).

Farm Improvement Lapse Due To Assessment Boost

CHATHAM, Aug. 3—(CP)—Kent County farmers feel the present tax set-up, which calls for higher assessment on farms that have been improved, discourages farmers from making improvements. Delegates Tuesday told the Ontario Legislature's Select Committee on Soil Conservation that in farms with similar soils there was considerable variance in assessment; as farmers permitted soil or buildings to run down the assessment dropped.

The committee is making a four month province-wide tour and will make recommendations to the government for an extensive conservation program.

Soil Conditioning

At the meeting farmer John Wilcox of Essex County told committee members that clover crops and weeds plowed under rather than destroyed aided in soil conditioning.

The Kent county delegates suggested that consideration be given to a basic assessment in soil type and soil potential, with provision made by means of long-term loans, for soil and farm improvement in an effort to encourage better land use.

In both counties the main problem stemmed from organic matter in the soil. Neither Kent or Essex are big livestock producing districts and specialized cropping was blamed for much of the drain on their soils.

In Essex where a sub-experimental station has been set up at Woodslee, farmers have found plowing under clover crops every three or four years helps to maintain soil strength.

Representing the Essex county group, Mr. Wilcox told the committee how he was building up content of organic matter in the soil. It has been estimated that organic matter in Essex has dropped 50 per cent.

Make No Change In Committee

The following report of the manufacturers committee presented by Ald. Dick Raine, chairman, was adopted by the council Tuesday night.

"That no change be made in the name of this committee but that it continue as a sitting committee of he council to co-operate with the Industrial Commission, particularly in the purchase of lands suitable for industrial sites.

That the account from the City Clerk for his services as Industrial Commissioner from the first of the year until the formation of the Industrial Commission be paid."

Base Metals Show Continued Strength

TORONTO, Aug. 3—(CP)—Base Metals continued to strengthen in trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Golds were on the down-grade after yesterday's splurge and industrials were steady.

Higher in a steady industrial list were Aluminium New, up ¼, Burrard A, up ¼, Manitoba Sugar Preferred, a four point gainer, Imperial Oil, another quarter point winner. Canadian Food Products ahead by ⅛ and Craig Bit, which added ⅛. Among those lower were Argus Corporation, C.P.R., Canadian Vickers, a one point loser, McCabe B. Hayes Steel, Canadian Breweries and Bell Telephone.

Golds were beginning to slip after the previous session's 2½ point rise as many issues were depressed through profit taking. Teck Hughes dropped 10 cents in the senior group while losers in the junior list included Central Porcupine, Preston, Kirkland Lake, Malartic Gold Fields, East Malartic and Giant Yellowknife.

Renable was a bright spot in the juniors adding 25 cents in the initial three hours of trade.

Noranda, one of the big guns of the Base Metal industry, dropped ¼ but two other members of the big four, International Nickel and Consolidated Smelters, added ½. Osisko, a very active issue in recent sessions dropped eight cents. Higher issues included Labrador, Ventures, a holding stock, Quemont and New Calumet. Lower ones were Falconbridge and Sherritt Gordon.

Architects Advised To Prepare Plans

Preparatory progress of the plans for the new city hall is briefly reviewed in the report of the committee of the whole at the council meeting Tuesday night. It was read by Ald. Hugh Waddell.

"That plans submitted by Marani and Morris of the interior of the proposed city hall building be approved, and that the architects be authorized to proceed with the detailed working drawings of the building.

That the exterior of the city hall building be of suitable stone construction, and that the preliminary estimate of cost of approximately $650,000 by the architects be accepted, subject to later detailed estimates."

This report was accepted by the council.

MORE ABOUT—
Toronto Slaying

The young couple were last seen Monday night when they left a farm near Barrie, where they spent the holiday weekend.

An autopsy performed Tuesday night by Dr. Harold Gold revealed that McKay had been shot at point blank range. Any of the three shots which entered his body might have been fatal.

Scour Gully

While police investigated the slaying of Mrs. McKay, a force of North York police scoured the gully where her husband's body was found Tuesday.

He had been shot in the head, chest and back, police said. Blood found on the front and back seats of the car did not indicate that either the man or woman was killed inside the car itself.

Meanwhile, a huge police dragnet was spread over the Province in an effort to track down the slayer of 24-year-old Alfred Layng, shot and killed Saturday as he tried to capture an armed bandit in an east central groceteria.

Two of the five murders—all but one by shooting—occurred last Wednesday.

Phillip Gendron, 27, was charged with the pistol-slaying of his brother-in-law, Arthur Wickert, 38, following a seven-hour drinking party in a Toronto nursing home. Gendron is scheduled to appear in court tomorrow.

Harvey E. Sotherby, 21, formerly of Windsor, will appear in court Friday on a charge of murder in connection with the bludgeon-slaying of Leslie Hern, 38-year-old dining car steward whose half-naked body was found stuffed under a boardwalk at an east-end beach.

Mayor Hiram McCallum announced today that a special meeting of Toronto's Police Commission will be held Friday to discuss the five brutal slayings. He also said the reward of $2,000 offered for Layng's slayer would be increased if the groceteria-murder was connected with the McKay shooting. Otherwise, he said a separate reward will be offered for information leading to the arrest of the McKay slayer.

Canada Wants Bigger Museum

OTTAWA, Aug. 3. — (CP).—Plans to turn Canada's national museum into "one of the world's greatest museums" today were proposed in a brief presented to the Royal Commission of Arts, Science and Letters.

Headed by Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Chancellor of the University of Toronto, the Commission opened an investigation in Canada's cultural growth and needs for expansion.

Dr. F. J. Alcock, the museum's curator, said the big need at the moment to make the museum "one worthy of Canada" was more space.

The museum needed more money, too, he said. The presetn grant of $175,000 was not enough to prepare new exhibits and publish "the great volume of information collected at the national museum."

Arabs Accept Terms For DP's

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, Aug. 3 (AP)—The first major progress toward permanent peace in Palestine was made Tuesday after four months of negotiations.

Egypt, Syria Lebanon and Jordan said they are prepared to begin immediate discussion of the Arab refugee problem on terms proposed last week by Israel.

The Arab representatives told the United Nations Palestine Conciliation Commission they are ready to accept the conditions of the Israeli proposal without reservation.

July 29 Israel told the commission which is trying to work out final peace terms, it is prepared to readmit to Israeli territory a sizable number of the estimated 800,000 Arab refugees.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

POWDER FIGHTS INSECT BATTLE

Flies! Moths! Mosquitoes! They're all pesky nuisances. Thank goodness we now have powerful new insecticides to help rid us of all three!

Helping to fight this battle of the bug is Johns-Manville Celite, an important part of new insecticides. A light, fluffy powder, Celite's finely divided particles improve the dispersion of the poison. It makes the same amount of poison go further and kill more pests.

Johns-Manville research has made Celite a really valuable product. You'll find it in automobile and silver polishes, DDT and writing paper. It's used to filter sugar, wine, beer, fruit juices and other beverages. For complete details on Celite and how it can be used in your industry, write Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto.

Officers said everyone down to the youngest boy pulled his weight — and more—throughout the entire adventure.

The Communists claimed the Amethyst started firing first and demanded, but were unsuccessful in getting, acknowledgment.

They refused to allow the ship's company to land.

On the other hand, with the exception of messengers, no Communist boarded the ship, which was not molested. The Communists took precautions that the ship would not escape by putting a 105-millimetre gun on an overlooking hill.

Sniper Practice

"Occasionally a sniper had a crack at us with a rifle and we all ducked for cover," said Petty Officer John J. McCarthy.

"They were quite trigger happy in a way."

McCarthy said the Communists allowed them to get fresh food from ashore. First it was by barter and they exchanged sugar, rice, flour, soap, blankets, and cooking fat for vegetables and fruit. Later, when the ship was supplied with Communist money by British authorities in Shanghai, food was purchased.

Chinese contractors prices were pretty high, McCarthy said.

"We also bought some beer at 12 shillings ($2.40) a large bottle. They came aboard to sell us a second supply last Saturday night after we had been told we were leaving.

"That was a tricky moment. They stayed 20 minutes and we told them we would pay Monday morning.

"We drank that beer when we reached the Yangtze mouth, and I am afraid we have not paid for it yet."

Police Question Second Suspect

City police and Peterborough detachment of Provincial Police are playing their part along with other police departments within a wide radius of Toronto in the search for the bandit who killed the RCAF veteran on Saturday after robbing a groceteria. Monday's questioning of a Kingston visitor to Peterborough, who was found to be a lawful citizen, was followed Tuesday by questioning of a second suspect, who Chief Constable Garnet Samis of Lakefield arrested in a drunken condition Sunday night.

James A. MacKay, who told Chief Samis his mother-in-law lived on Sherbrooke Street, Toronto, near the spot where the bandit vanished, was too drunk to get out of the taxi when he arrived at Lakefield. He and his friend, William O'Halloran, Bancroft, were taken into custody by the Chief and was placed on the list of suspects.

MacKay was not altogether unlike the sketches of the murderer published in Toronto newspapers. Chief Samis was suspicious and contacted Toronto police for instructions.

Summing up MacKay's general demeanor, City Detective Bud Clarke did not take long to decide this was not the wanted man. "He is not the same type of guy —he would look all wrong in the clothes which the murderer is said to have been wearing," was Detective Clerke's opinion.

Unable to pay his $10 fine, and $2.50 costs, when he pleaded guilty to the drunk charge, MacKay was taken to the County Jail for 10 days. The hunt for the wanted man continues.

It was something of a coincidence when this morning a man also named McKay (different spelling) was reported to have been found shot in the North York district of Toronto.

Peterborough headquarters of the Provincial Police have also been supplying information to Toronto police.

Seaplane Makes Forced Landing On The Otonabee

Thunder and lightning forced a seaplane bound for the Lake of Bays in the Muskoka district to land on the Otonabee river within the city limits at 12.30 p.m. today.

Clarence F. Hall of the Consaul-Hall Co. Inc., Clayton, New York, landed his plane on the river a short distance west of Park St. and with his wife, took a bus from the end of Park St. into the city to make enquiries about weather conditions.

The plane, which is a Luscombe Silvaire on floats, made a perfect landing on the river, Mr. Hall told a reported.

"We tied it to the side of the river by someone's garden," he said as though he were as happy landing that way as any motorist drawing up to the curb.

Although a stranger in Peterborough, Mr. Hall had no difficulty in finding the bus to bring him downtown and in less than an hour from the time he landed, had bought a map and was becoming acquainted with the city. He was studying the map in a hotel lobby when the reporter saw him.

The Halls were on their way from Clayton, New York, to visit a Toronto doctor they met in Florida in the winter. They had hoped to reach the doctor's cottage early this afternoon and had planned to return home tonight.

Weather forecasts were not very encouraging but Mr. Hall was hoping to take off again after spending little more than an hour in the city.

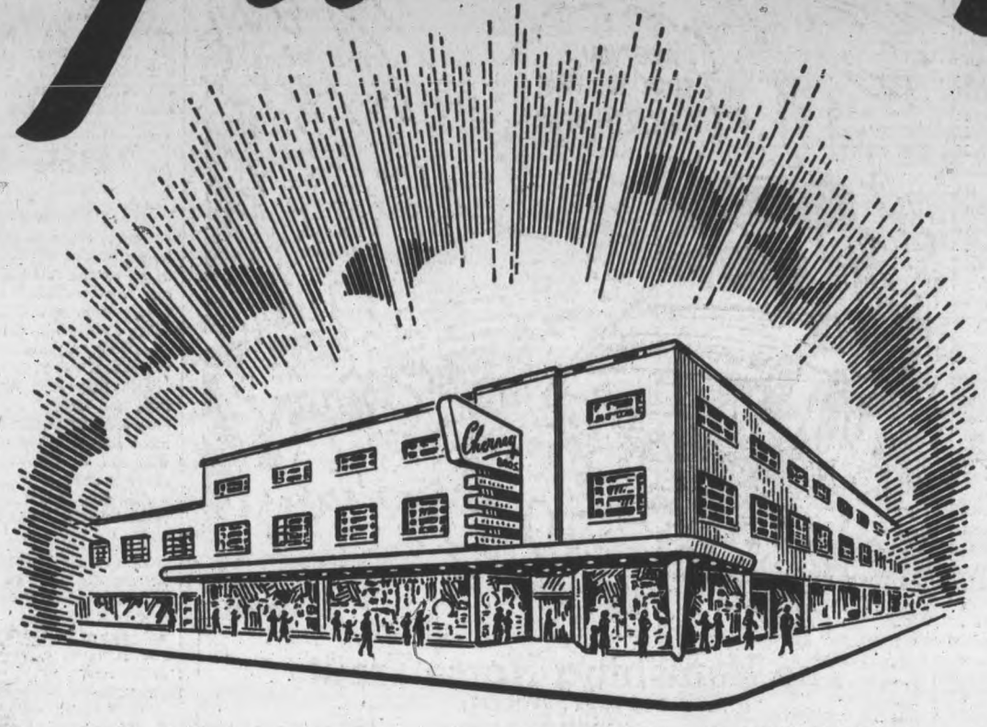
Grand Opening



Of Cherney Bros. New Store-- Tonight at 7.30

This evening Mayor Swanston will officially open your new Shopping Centre for homes. We say yours because it is truly yours--your support and your patronage made this building a necessity if we are to efficiently serve the number of people who favour us with their trade - - so this is it - - come one, come all, see what we think will be one of Peterborough's show places. Remember tonight 7.30 and Thursday and Friday evenings for inspection.

A STATEMENT - - May we, Harry, Myer and Louis Cherney take this opportunity of thanking the people of this community for their continued and constantly growing support since this business was founded - - in 1935. By 1941 we had outgrown our old premises, we had no elevator, everything had to be carried up or down stairs, many a customer had to dodge the freight coming and going through the front door . . . no back entrance . . . many a rainy day the aisles were filled with pails and washtubs catching the drip from a leaky roof . . . but we had something to offer . . . a community enterprise begun by men born and raised here--with a personal knowledge of the needs and problems of homemakers, and always the will on our part to offer MORE to our customers . . . more in service, more in selection, more in value . . . So, that's why this building was built. Modern methods of handling merchandise at lower costs . . . avoiding damage or breakages. All services, displays and warehousing under the one roof, enables us to offer you even more in service, more in selection and more in value, and if we do that we hope to still merit your continued and constantly growing support.

A HEARTY VOTE OF THANKS to the carpenters, painters, cleaners and all the rest who worked day and night these past weeks to meet our opening date, and bouquets, indeed to our own staff who worked day and night so that we could give service at the old location until the last moment and still have our floors ready at the new store in time for the Grand Opening.

A DRAW, BUT FREE - - To celebrate the opening we're giving away nearly a thousand dollars worth of furniture. A Living-Room Suite, Washing Machine, Radio Phonograph, and so on. Any visitor to the store can participate. No purchase is necessary - - as often as you come into the store you may drop a draw ticket in the box. The draw will be made in the store by Mayor Swanston August 25th at 10 a.m. Winners do not have to be present.

When Not To Stare

Driving on one of the highways near Peterborough over the weekend we passed the scene of a serious motor accident. The Provincial Police were on the spot; an ambulance was drawn up on the roadside; a man who was obviously a physician was working over the body of one of the injured people. We saw that there was nothing that we could do to help, and we drove on because we felt that it was the proper thing to do. But there were a great many many cars parked nearby, and a crowd of at least fifty people, including children, were as near the scene of the accident as the police would allow them to approach. As we passed two other cars stopped and several people, again including a number of children, leapt out and rushed to see what was going on.

• • •

We would not like to say anything which would deter people from lending a hand when others are in trouble, but we think that those spectators had no business to be where they were. The police and the ambulance crew were in complete charge of the situation; if they had wanted extra help they would have flagged down passers-by until they found what they wanted. The bystanders could only stare and make comments.

• • •

The central figure in the scene was a man who was clearly badly hurt, and might have been dying. Is it proper to join a crowd to watch a fellow-creature in distress? Particularly, is it proper to bring children to look at what may be a very shocking sight, and what might be the last few minutes on earth of an accident victim?

• • •

We are sure that most of the people in that crowd were kindly, and that they would not willingly do an indecent thing. But is there not a very real indecency in flocking to stare at a man who is dying, as if his death were a show which Fate had provided to make gossip for a holiday?

• • •

When an accident happens we are all bound by a sense of decency to give whatever help we can. And if we can give no help we are equally bound by a sense of decency to pass by.

If Roger Bacon Could Have Seen This!

For three thousand years, or more, men have sought a formula which would enable them to turn base metals into gold. These men used to be called alchemists; many of them were quacks, who fleeced foolish people whom they induced to subsidize their experiments; others, like the great Roger Bacon (1214-92) were primitive scientists, deeply curious about all the phenomena of nature. It now appears that the alchemists were not so silly as some people thought them; modern scientists have actually found a way of manufacturing gold. This is one of the offshoots of atomic research, and the original substance from which the gold is created is plutonium, which is not precisely a base metal. Wherever the soul of Roger Bacon may be, we hope that he is permitted to know this fact, and perhaps even to peep over the shoulder of Sir John Cockcroft, of Britain's Atomic Research Establishment, who does the transmutation.

The fact that scientists can make gold does not mean that they will do so to any extent. Gold, in our world, has a value which is chiefly fictitious. It is valuable, and somewhat rare, of course. But the great nations of the world have chosen to use gold as the basis for all their elaborate schemes of currency and value. If scientists began to make gold out of something else—particularly if they ever found a way of making it out of potato peelings or old newspapers—the world's economy would be entirely changed. That might be a very good thing, but great governments will take care to see that it never happens.

Now that an English scientist has discovered how to make gold it will be interesting to see whether Russia or the U.S.A. is quickest to claim that one of their men did it first.

Toronto's Opportunity

The city of Toronto is ready to begin work on the beautification of University Avenue, which has been considerable remodelled. The city itself has provided $30,000 for this work, and the Government of Ontario is contributing a like amount. This is fitting, for Toronto is the provincial capital and Queen's Park stands right in the middle of the Avenue.

We understand that the $60,000 is to be used to plant trees in the grassplots in the centre of the avenue, and to provide sod for the lawns. We really do not know why sod is needed; better lawns, in the course of time, would be grown if the lawns were seeded. The planting of the trees provides Toronto with a wonderful opportunity to show its skill and taste, and to set an example for hundreds of Ontario cities and towns. We do not know what sort of trees will be planted in the Avenue; there are those who suggest maples, but we hope that they will not prevail; the maple is a fine tree, but it is not the best tree for an avenue; neither is the oak. Chestnuts or elms would make a wonderful avenue in the course of time, and Toronto has plenty of time; the city and the trees will both be there in sixty years' time, and by then the Toronto chestnuts might be as famous as the lindens which used to grow in Berlin, or the famous chestnut trees of Paris.

Tree-growing deserves encouragement, both in cities and in the country. Nothing sets off a city to such advantage as streets lined with beautiful, well kept trees. Peterborough is lucky in this respect, owing to the foresight of planters during the last century, and more recently to the enthusiasm of the late Walter Stocker, who did so much fine work of this kind during his period as Chairman of the Parks Committee. A city which seeks a reputation for beauty—as all cities should—dare not neglect its trees, or relax its efforts to plant new ones.

A Kind Word For Civilization

We were reading an article about Sweden in the pages of a contemporary yesterday when we came upon this astounding sentence: "The Swedes, as we well know here in Canada, are a hardy race, not yet devitalized by civilization". Now what sort of nonsense is that? Who ever supposed, in a sane moment, that civilization was devitalizing?

Well, a great many people must suppose so, for the supposition keeps popping up in all sorts of ways. There is, of course, nothing whatever in it. People in civilized countries live longer, and live better, and are better cared for when they are sick and old, than people in uncivilized countries. Those races of hardy savages, living a healthy, outdoors life, that we occasionally read about in the cheaper adventure books, have no counterparts in reality. In the parts of the world where there are still genuinely savage people we find that they die young, have poor physiques, treat their sick abominably, and are in most ways greatly inferior to ourselves.

Civilization is not devitalizing. There are a lot of civilized people who are poor specimens, of course, but even they are capable of feats of endurance which would have staggered a Red Indian. And in our modern wars we are perpetually astounded by the courage, endurance and physical stamina of men who have never met with much in the way of hardship before in their lives.

The Swedes are not fine people because they have escaped the toils of civilization. They are fine people because they are one of the most civilized races in the world.

Let Us Keep An Eye On Lambert Lodge

Lambert Lodge is in the news again. It was bought by the city of Toronto from the Dominion Government last year, and it is to be converted into a civic home for the aged. Lambert Lodge, you will recall, used to be known as Christie Street Hospital.

When it was Christie Street Hospital it was sharply criticised; it was said to be an unhandy building, in an unsuitable district, where there was too little fresh air and too much noise. It was built before the First Great War and was used for some time as a factory. The Provincial Government will assist the Toronto municipality to turn it into a home for the aged, on the understanding that it is to be a temporary home, and that a new home, described as "adequate and proper" will be built as soon as possible.

We wonder how soon that will be. When it was a hospital for wounded and disabled soldiers this structure was "temporary", yet it served in that capacity for a good long time. How long will it be used for its new purpose, under its new name? The answer to that question, when we know it, should shed some new light on the meaning of the word "temporary".

A London Letter from Conrad Frost

THE only breeze that stirred a hot and humid London last week, has been one of indignation and disquiet. The Dock Strike has ended and a Railway Strike is threatened. The Government, which guaranteed industrial peace and quiet because it was to be the Government of the working man, has lost face. All this the ordinary citizen accepts and understands. But now a new and alien factor has arisen. Fifteen men walked into an East End bar and set upon two other men whom they left under wrecked tables, bleeding from wounds inflicted by broken bottles. The "beat up" has happened, in London. It is as fantastic and as frightening as would be gun warfare between police and gangsters in sober Oxford Street.

❖ ❖ ❖

OF course we have had incidents before. Just within this columnist's lifetime, there were riots in Welsh Tonypandy, when striking miners rioted in 1911. The police were stoned in Monmouthshire after the first World War. There were black eyes and broken noses during the General Strike of '26. But never before has a British industrial dispute had, as an incident, a deliberate and cold-blooded beating up. It is a topic of conversation everywhere, from the squeezed up passengers in hot and airless suburban trains even to the cottagers leaning over the garden gates in the little, 1,000 year old village of Singleton, as they watch the flow of traffic to Goodwood racecourse.

❖ ❖ ❖

IN blazing sunshine the summer season now reaches its peak. The gleaming limousines roll down to Sussex for the racing, the holiday making motorists make the most of their last five weeks of full-ration petrol and the gay caravans and fair ground trailers are on the move to their Bank Holiday sites. A fine moment this for Fuel Minister Gaitskell to tell us that the last seven pages of our current petrol ration books will only be worth half value. Reference to my coupon shows me that I shall have eleven gallons for the three months period ending in November! Ironically, the words are printed on my coupons "Valid . . . . until 30th April, 1950." In case I don't use my car much? Meanwhile we are making the most of it. The seaside towns report an unexpected "little boom." The Channel swimmers are out in full force, and once again it is an American lass who steals the limelight.

❖ ❖ ❖

JUST as Gorgeous Gussie Moran pinched all the publicity at Wimbledon with her lace frilled panties, so Shirley May France is on her way to try and break records for the swim and to create a precedent by making the attempt costumeless. Shirley will be no shock to us. Beach wear and river costume has never been so brief, and the briefer it becomes, the higher goes the price. A mere handful of feminine swim suit in a London store sells these days at around £4.

❖ ❖ ❖

FOR once it is cold comfort we want, and not to be told that the British climate is entering a phase of semi tropical summers, which may last between 25 and 50 years. Agriculturists are to experiment with imported trees which will tarive in conditions of long drought. Peaches and nectarines will grow in our suburban gardens. New fashions in clothing, housing and industrial design are forecast. Meanwhile we are not conditioned for long heat waves. In St. James Park, an elm tree has collapsed due to the hot, dry weather. In the Leicester cattle farming districts water-diviners are being called in to locate new wells. All over the country the firemen are anxious about heath fires, of which there have now been 16,000 this summer. In London, men in the stalls of theatres and the Albert Hall—where the first of the Proms has had a great success—have dared to unjacket and reveal themselves in braces.

❖ ❖ ❖

NO weather for crowds, except on the river and on the beaches, nevertheless Winston Churchill, on the eve of his Italian holiday, drew an audience of 40,000 to Wolverhampton Wanderer's football ground. Here the spectators usually go to see a ball being kicked around but, last weekend, they heard Churchill knicking the Labour Government about for a change. In fine fettle, the old warrior warned of the dangers if the Socialist wreckers are allowed to "finish the job." I'm told that the Tories will not fight the election this time on the strength of Churchill's name and popularity. The last election was fought that way and lost. This time they will fight on the lines that everything Labour touches turns to dross. So far every Nationalized industry has registered a loss instead of the profits it previously showed under private enterprise. Mr. Churchill's only definite opponent at the polls so far, is 38 year old Seymour Hills, Socialist, Oxford Undergrad, ex-Army Captain. The Independent Labour Party would also like to do a little windmill tilting, but the man they want for candidate, Bob Edwards, a Union leader, is crying off on the grounds that it would only be a waste of time and energy trying to dethrone Churchill.

THE party of the Goodwood Week is being held by the Duke and Duchess of Norfolk at Arundel Castle, with tickets at £3.3.0., including a champagne supper, the money going to charities . . . if the Socialists hang on until the last day of power, they will have to quit in exactly a year's time . . . Anachronistic address seen each week by millions of cinema goers is to be changed. The British Board of Film Censor's certificate, which precedes every picture here, gives their address as Carlisle House, Soho. But Carlisle House, built by Wren in 1670, was blitzed by Hitler in 1941. The new Oxford Street address is soon to be used . . . ! Free Beauty aids are to be available to women passengers on the State airliners. Powder rooms with free creams, powder and perfumes will appear on all long distance B.O.A.C. planes by arrangement made with a big beauty preparations firm. The firm is giving airline hostesses a special course in make-up treatment. . . . So far for export only, a Manchester textile firm has put on the market perfumed fabrics. The fabric is impregnated with perfume in the finishing process, and the scent withstands several washings. Lingerie rayon is the material made so far, and there have been big sales to South America.

The Vanishing Horse Trader

(FARMER'S ADVOCATE)

HORSE traders are, I must say, a vanishing race. It's rather sad to think about it, and yet it's the truth. It seems like only yesterday that a week never went by without a visit from someone wanting to "dicker" on horses. The trader usually had the latest news from the next concession and he could talk about the last time he took a load of horses to Toronto or Montreal, and the farmer found it quite pleasant to get a break in the day's work.

Perhaps you remember the days when the wife would look out the window and see a dejected looking old horse pulling a buggy and with a man leading three or four horses.

I can just hear Mother saying: "Well, there won't be much work done around here this afternoon". Then she would turn to father and say, "Don't bring that old . . old . . " and sputtering for the proper word she would end by saying "that old horse isn't going to eat his head off for supper here again tonight."

Father wouldn't say anything. He'd just light his pipe and put his hat on and go outside. He'd talk to the trader for a while and then they would look over the string of horses and soon they'd move on down to the barn. Usually they spent the afternoon there. At supper-time Father would bring him up to the house for a meal and Mother would glare at both of them.

However he'd start off by praising the biscuits and the meat, and he'd throw out a little gossip, and the first thing you know, Mother would be talking to him as if he were the most welcome guest that ever crossed the doorstep.

Horse-traders were, first of all, shrewd men. They lived by their wits and their ability to judge horse flesh. Some were not above doing a bit of doctoring to make a horse appear a little better.

Horse-traders have always been good sports. At various times they all were nipped in a deal. Many times it was a case of their selling a horse believing they couldn't get a worse one in trade, and ending up with a decrepit old nag that could hardly carry its own weight around . . . but usually they went back to get even.

Horse-traders knew everybody in the country with horses. When the occasion arose to ship a carload of horses they would pick out the names of the men with horses to sell. They'd call and pay a fair profit on the transaction.

Their times between such sales was spent in more or less "gypsying". Like all other professions there were those amongst them with dishonest tendencies but, as a whole, they were a good class of men. Ready and willing to do you a favour at any time, good talkers and well-travelled, their visits helped to break the general monotony of ordinary farming.

Today their numbers are fewer and in old livery stables you'll find them talking past times and making the occasional dicker on a horse. They drive cars now and they have to cover a lot bigger territory to buy a carload of horses. As a general rule they argue against tractors and they say, in a half optimistic way, "The day will come when people will be using horses again. You'll find more prosperity on the farms then".

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him. And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy. And Jesus answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day?

And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go; and answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day?

And they could not answer him again to these things. (Luke 14:1-6.)

Ye are the epistle written in our hearts known and read of all men: forasmuch as ye are manifestly declared to be the epistle of Christ ministered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the heart.

And such trust have we through Christ to God-ward: not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think any thing as of ourselves; but our sufficiency is of God; who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit; for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. (II Cor. 3:2-6.)

Letter To The Editor

COMMENDS NEIGHBORLY ACTION

Sir,—On Friday last, the citizens of Bailieboro and surrounding districts, witnessed a double tragedy which was painfully felt by all.

It is difficult on certain occasions to express in words these inner feelings of emotion and sympathy when tragedy occurs in our midst. It is, however, a pleasure for the writer of this letter to express his appreciation of the fact, that there still exists in this troubled world, the spirit of good neighbors.

When the residence of the Reverend and Mrs. Malcolm and son John was struck by lightning, the good neighbors from near and far, including our neighbors from across the line, responded to the call.

Minus good neighbors, life would be empty.

ALBERT J. J. STRANGE.

GLAD TO RECEIVE EXAMINER

Sir,—On behalf of the Peterborough and district patients here in the sanitorium, I want to express our gratitude for the Peterborough Examiner, which you so kindly directed to be sent to us.

In all, there are about ten of us and everybody meticulously passed it on to the next patient, as it is like a letter from home arriving every day. I might say that not only Peterburians read it, but also a large number of others who like the editorials.

So, again I say, "thank you" from all of us.

Sincerely,

W. I. BLAIR, Kingston

Canada Protests Persecutions In Red Countries

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 (CP)—Canada Tuesday formally backed up the United Kingdom and United States in demanding an investigation of alleged breaches of peace treaties by Hungary and Romania.

The External Affairs Department said the Dominion is "associated" with the UK and US in accusing the two Communist-dominated countries of denying their citizens "fundamental human rights," in violation of their peace treaties.

The UK and US took similar action about Bulgaria. Canada did not —she did not sign the treaty of peace with Bulgaria at the end of the Second World War.

The notes demanded that a commission—provided for in the treaties to mediate disputes—investigate the charges by the democracies.

It was the third in a series of diplomatic manoeuvres against the Communist countries, touched off by the trials of religious leaders and imprisonment of the Communists' political opponents.

Dispute Procedure

Under the treaties, disputes are to be settled between the heads of missions of the UK, the US and the Soviet Union in the countries concerned. If they don't settle the dispute within two months, the treaties call for a commission comprising a member of each party to the dispute and a neutral chairman.

The External Affairs Department said in a statement the Soviet government had taken no steps to meet the heads of the British and American missions to consider the dispute.

The democracies also charged the iron-curtain countries with denying their citizens religious and political freedoms, citing the trials of Cardinal Mindszenty in Hungary and of 15 protestant churchmen in Bulgaria.

Sidney S. McCumber, Bridge Authority chairman, said Tuesday this amount was 16.2 per cent. more than July, 1948.

Traffic over the Canadian-American span included 102,898 motor vehicles last month.

CBC Rejects Three Requests

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 — (CP). — Three requests by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters for changes in broadcasting regulations have been rejected by the CBC Board of Governors.

In a series of decisions and recommendations made public on Tuesday, the board:

1—Declined to change a regulation banning broadcast of spot advertising announcements between 7:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. and on Sundays.

2—Turned down a request for permission to make commercial spot announcements at intervals during network programs.

3—Refused a request that food and drug advertisements be made subject of approval of the Health Department only instead of both the Department and the CBC.

The decisions and recommendations resulted from representations heard by the Board at public meetings in Montreal last week.

In declining to increase the time for spot announcements — brief messages inserted in the midst of broadcasts— the Board said it was aware that the last Parliamentary Committee on Radio Broadcasting expressed itself against excessive commercialization of time on community stations.

Petes Defeat Trenton 7-6 Lakeshore Game

Young Petes, playing in Trenton, win 7-6 on Monday to wind up their road schedule in the Intermediate Lakeshore Baseball League. This win was impressive.

Brian Wade went the route for the McGuiness boys, coached by Art Pagett who also played in the game as the team was shorthanded. Manager Len Simonds replaced Hefferman who was painfully injured by a pitched ball, in the fourth inning.

Peterborough scored the winning run in the eighth as Floyd and Simonds walked and Coach Pagett singled to score Floyd.

Wade struck out 10, walked none and was nicked for eight hits. Mahoney also twirled nine for the Fliers, yielding 10 safe bingles and fanning eight. He walked three.

Thus, aside from a possible postponed game, the popular young baseball team concludes its regular season schedule playing in intermediate company. They will enter junior playoffs later this month.

Lumberjacks Must Win To Make Playoffs

With the Peterborough Lumberjacks being pushed further into the cellar by Weston's win on the weekend over the Mimico Mountaineers, the Petes will be out for a win in Mimico tonight. At the last meeting of the two teams in Mimico the Mountaineers trounced the Petes who were shorthanded due to the suspensions of Lou and Dootch Viterelli and a head injury to Em Creighton.

To make a playoff position the Petes will have to win two games out of their remaining 11. This is providing that the Weston Club loses all remaining games (10).

Friday night the second place Owen Sounders play the Lumberjacks in Miller Bowl while Saturday night the Lumberjacks travel to St. Catharines to play the Athletics. Three wins would place the Armstrong crew into the last play-off position.

Remember When—

Vince Dundee, world's middleweight boxing champion in 1933, retired from the game 13 years ago today. He held the title—won from Lou Brouillard, French-Canadian, on Oct. 30, 1933—until Teddy Larosz toppled him Sept. 11, 1934.

SUCCEEDS STRANAHAN — Dick Chapman, 39, of Osterville, Mass., is new Canadian amateur golf champion, succeeding Frank Stranahan of Toledo, who held the title for two years. Chapman, US amateur titlist in 1940, came from behind to defeat Phil Farley of Toronto, one up. They had to play two extra holes — 38 in all — to decide the championship final at Riverside Golf and Country Club near Saint John, NB.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Toronto's Vern Escoe, Canadian heavyweight champion, Tuesday at London appealed against a recent decision of the British Boxing Board of Control to withdraw him as chief contender for Bruce Woodcock's empire title.

Harry Levene, Escoe's British representative, sent a letter to secretary Charles Donmall protesting the "high-handed, arbitrary manner" of the Board. No reason has been given for the stewards' action.

"The first we heard of this was in the newspapers," said Levene. "We didn't get a letter from Donmall telling us of the change of opinion until 24 hours later. . . .

"The decision is a slur on the Canadian Boxing Federation," which supports Escoe's claims for an empire title match. It is a slur on Verne Escoe and it is a slur on Canadian boxing fans."

The memory of the late George Woolf, famed Alberta-born jockey will be honored at Chicago's Washington Park today with the running of the $20,000 added George Woolf Memorial.

Fifteen top-ranking two-year-olds entered the six furlong test. The field is topped by William H. Peavy's Wisconsin Boy, a $6,200 yearling purchase which has won $80,475 by victories in the Arlington Futurity and the Arlington Primer Stakes.

At Toronto, the Argonauts of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union were strengthened by arrival of two burly United States stars—Jerry Whalen and Marty Breen, both of Buffalo.

Whalen a 248-pounder played centre and back with Buffalo Bills in the American pro-conference last season. Breen, weighing 220 pounds, played with Canisius College.

The Chilean army's international jumping team left Santiago on Tuesday for New York where it will compete in the United States Horse Show at Madison Square Garden Nov. 1-8.

The Chilean team also will compete at the Royal Winter Fair Horse Show, Toronto, Nov. 15-23

Raymond Page of Montreal bowed out of the United States junior tennis championships at Kalamazoo, Mich., Tuesday when he dropped a third-round match to Charles Hickox of Berkeley, Calif., 6-2, 6-4. Earlier in the day Page defeated Charles Symington of Groose Point, Mich., 6-0, 4-6, 7-5 in a second-round match.

Other Canadians who fell by the wayside in the second-round clashes were Don Fontana of Toronto and Andre De Chavigny of Quebec. Fontana lost to Dick Squires of Bronxville, N. Y., 6-0, 6-3, while De Chavigny was eliminated 8-6, 8-6 by Tom Allen of Tulsa, Okla., after a stiff battle.

A hole in one on the golf links isn't an everyday occurrence but Ray Schilchter of Kitchener Westmount is getting his share. He registered his second Tuesday at Kitchener when his 140-yard drive rolled into the cup. The first was 10 years ago on the same course.

At Toronto, Maj. D. H. Gibson of Hamilton, son of Resources Minister Gibson, won the Gibson Memorial award — commemorating his grandfather's memory — for rapid fire Tuesday at the Ontario Rifle Association matches in suburban Long Branch. He scored 45 points out of a possible 50.

Niagara Falls Editor William Gaynor Dies

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 3 (CP)—W. J. (Bill) Gaynon, 54, sports editor of the Niagara Falls Evening Review for the last 25 years, died Tuesday night.

He was stricken with a heart attack at his home a few hours after attending a baseball school for Niagara Falls youths. He had written his daily column at noon, prior to attending the baseball clinic.

He was one of the originators of the Greater Niagara Baseball Association and a past president. He was one of the founders of the Niagara Falls Baseball Association annual banquet, which honored minor teams and brought prominent major league players here as guest speakers.

Syracuse Chiefs Upset Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3

By The Associated Press

The road back to the major leagues is a tough one, especially for a pitcher—as Bill McCahan, Bob Porterfield and Frank Shea will attest. McCahan, bothered with arm trouble, made his first start for the International League's pace-setting Buffalo Bisons Tuesday night since arriving on option from Philadelphia Athletics.

He drew Porterfield as his opponent. Porterfield is with the tail-end Newark Bears on option from New York Yankees, also because of arm trouble.

McCahan bowed out after three innings with the Bisons trailing, 4-2. Porterfield left after the fourth, leading 5-2. Shea took over.

McCahan issued five walks and allowed five hits during his stay and fanned none. Porterfield did a little better, walking three, fanning four and yielding three hits. Shea shut out the Bisons for two frames and then granted four runs in the seventh, including a three-run homer by George Byam.

The Bisons came back and took the second game of the doubleheader, 15-3, making the most of 16 walks doled out by four Newark pitchers.

Clem Hausmann stopped the Bears on six hits including Bob Thurman's second homer.

Trounce Orioles

The second-place Rochester Red Wings trounced Baltimore Orioles 9-3 to move to within a game of the Bisons. The Wings, trailing 3-1, scored eight runs in the seventh inning. Six hits, four walks and an error turned the tide for the Wings.

Montreal also went on a batting tear and crushed the Jersey City Giants 13-3. The Royals pounded three Giant tossers for 14 hits with George Schmees, Kermit Wahl and Charley Thompson getting three each.

Syracuse Chiefs upset Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3, coming from behind to win with a three-run, eighth-inning rally. The loss left the Leafs two percentage points behind the third-place Giants.

Trailing 3-2 going into the eighth, the Chiefs belted Lou Possehl for three runs, Frankie Drew's two-run homer being the big blow. Ed Sanicki slammed his 28th four-bagger for Toronto in the fifth with two on.

Conditions Bad At Riverside Manager Claims

Ed. Murphy, pilot of the Peterborough Outboard Marines C.O. B.L. team may be playing his last year for the Petes. The conditions under which the local ball club have been playing the last couple of years takes the fun out of playing baseball, he says.

"We are not going to battle next year as we have this year. If playing conditions do not improve, I'm planing to quit," Eddie said.

At the baseball game Monday with the Oshawa Merchants Larry Penell of the Brantford Nationals of the Inter-County League was present. He was surprised at the conditions under which the locals are playing, saying they were worse than 14 years ago.

In Brantford he said, the city paid $60,000 to put lights and a new stand up for this year's baseball games. The average crowd this year has been about 2,600. At present the Nats are in fifth place and have a possible chance of making the last play-off position.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

Playing down in Port Hope on Tuesday evening, in the first round of the Provincial playoffs for District No. 14, William Jeffries and Robert Gamble from our club came through with a nice win, 21 to 14, from J. MacLaughlin and V. Highfield of Port Hope. Just who our boys meet next we do not know, but it will have to be very soon as the zone playoffs are scheduled to take place here next Wednesday. On the first end our boys took the three point lead and increased it to 5 to 1 at the end of the fourth end. On the fifth end the Port Hope pair got a well earned four to tie up the game. They were clicking well and with a third game played they were leading 8-6. It was see-saw the next few ends with both pairs playing a beautiful draw game. At this stage of the game we saw some of the finest bowling we have seen in many seasons. On the eleventh end it was 11-8 for Port Hope. In the next five ends Peterborough not only tied up the game but forged ahead 15-11. Then Port Hope scored a one and a two to make the score 15 to 14 for Jeffries-Gamble at the end of the 18th end. Then came the local boys' big moment, by clever bowling they were successful in adding four to their score making it 19-14 in their favor with two ends to go. On the last two ends Peterborough scored one point each end and finished up a winner 21 to 14.

As we said before, it was a real game, well played, only two winning shots attempted during the entire 21 ends. From a spectator's point of view, we couldn't wish for anything more interesting. The greens were a little heavy but the boys lost no time and were all finished by 10:15 p.m.

Bill and Bob have teamed up in this competition for some years now and it looks as if it might be a winning pair.

In the rinks game Cobourg defaulted to Peterborough and the local boys will likely have to play Oshawa some night this week.

The Selkirk Trophy tournament continues Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Baseball Try-outs At Hamilton Stadium

Hamilton Red Wings will hold a three-day baseball try-out at Civic Stadium in Hamilton from August 11 to 13. The workouts which begin each morning at 10 a.m., will be conducted by Red Wing Manager George Kissell and the St. Louis Cardinal scout Joe Cusick.

All boys in this area, 17 to 23 years of age, who would like the opportunity to have their abilities appraised by major league scouts are urged to turn out. They are asked to bring their baseball shoes, gloves and uniforms if they have them. This type of equipment is not supplied at try-out camps. All players signing contracts will be reimbursed for any expenses in attending the camp.

Tadpole Rockets Whip Spitfires

Tadpole Rockets rocketed through the Spitfires in the Minor Lacrosse League Tuesday 7-5. The Rockets led throughout, having the edge for the first part of the game. They went into the last period with a 7-3 lead. Rich Anthony of the Rockets was the outstanding player, getting six goals and assisting on a seventh. Larry Hunt was best for the Spitfires with three goals.

The line-ups:

Rockets— F. Heffernan, R. Anthony, W. Anthony, I. Patterson, B. Stickle, B. Chapman, P. Chementi, G. Billingsley, K. Sloan.

Petes Win 7 to 4

Peewee Petes tangled with the Tigers with the Petes up 9-4. The Tigers went on up in the first, adding two more in the second with the Petes tallying three in the second. In the last frame the Petes scored six to the single reply of the Tigers. Gord Hunt with three goals, Paul Davis with a goal and two assists, and Larry Hunt in goal went well for the Petes. Ron Jay and Don Sutherland each had two goals for the Tigers.

The line-ups:

Petes — L. Hunt, G. Hunt, P. Davis, P. Murphy, A. Wilfong, L. Hill, R. Atkinson, A. Reid, P. Hickey, G. MacInnes.

Tigers—F. Heffernan, N. Lloyd, D. Sutherland, R. Jay, R. Macintosh, R. Keeting, K. Beck, B. Dubay, E. Hutchinson.

Terriers Win

In the other peewee game the Terriers waltzed through the Cyclones 15-7. The first and last frames were close with the Terriers cutting loose in the second for seven without a goal by the Cyclones. Ketcheson, Pace and Rowatt led the Terriers who passed the ball well. For the Cyclones, Grant, Simmons, and Pete Heffernan went best.

The line-ups:

Terriers — D. Houghton, T. Doris, L. Ferguson, R. Cavanagh, P. Heffernan, L. Hickson, R. Pace, T. Blodgett, J. Ellis, R. Drury, L. Pearl, B. Roode, C. Rowatt.

18 Pass Tests

Eighteen passed Red Cross swimming tests at the Inverlea Beach Friday morning while the weekly tests at Riverside were postponed due to the thunderstorm in the afternoon.

Those who were successful are: Senior, Sandra Duke, Beverley Gould, Bill Macklin, Junior; Calvin Nicholas, Mary Ellen Keith, Mary Moher, Nancy Dobson; Intermediate, Phyllis Willshaw, Norma Valois, Ronald Cooper, Joanne Tait, Shirley Keith, Mike Tunnicliffe, John McCarthy, Jim Brooks, Larry Gray and Myrna Van Der Voort.

Tigers Turn Back Yankees As Red Sox Edge Browns

By JOE REICHLER,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Watch out, New York. Shove over, Cleveland and Boston. Make room for another contender for the American League pennant—the bashing Detroit Tigers.

A week ago, the odds-manipulators had written off the pennant chances of the Tigers. Today, these same odds-makers are issuing a new line with Detroit given a chance to cop, albeit a slim one.

They hasten to add, however, that only a near-miracle can bring a flag to Detroit, but such miracles have happened before.

Tigers enhanced their chances considerably Tuesday night when they turned back New York Yankees, 10-2, in the league-leaders' back yard.

The victory gave the fourth-place Bengals a record of 13 triumphs in their last 18 games and moved them within 7½ games of the top.

Finally Makes It

Hal Newhouser, who had failed in six straight attempts to notch his 11th victory, finally made it with a 10-hit performance against the Yankees.

The Tigers backed Newhouser's pitching with a 14-hit attack which blasted Allie Reynolds from the hill and sent the righthander down to his second defeat of the season.

Cleveland Indians whipped Washington 8-1 as Early Wynn held his former mates to nine scattered hits for his ninth victory. Bob Kennedy, Joe Gordon and Dale Mitchell paced the Indians' 15-hit assault on Mickey Harris and Al Gettel with three safeties apiece. The triumph cut the Yankees' margin to 3½ games.

The third place Red Sox tallied once in the last half of the ninth to eke out a 4-3 victory over St. Louis Browns. Dom DiMaggio singled to open the frame, got around to third, and scored the deciding run when Vern Stephens rolled down the first base line.

End Losing Streak

Philadelphia Athletics ended a three-game losing streak and a 27-inning scoreless drought, defeating the Chicago White Sox 5-2. Carl Scheis went the route for his sixth victory.

St. Louis Cardinals retained their half-game advantage over Brooklyn in the National League race, coming from behind to defeat the Boston Braves 7-2. Red Munger finished with a five-hitter for his 10th victory. He has lost four. Glen Elliott was the loser.

Brooklyn Dodgers kept on the Cardinals' heels by downing the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2 behind the five-hit pitching of Rex Barney. Gil Hodges hit a home run and double to drive in three Dodger runs. Bob Chesnes lost.

Cincinnati Reds emerged from their run famine, exploding with 15 hits to stamp Philadelphia Phils 11-3. They had gone through 18 innings against the New York Giants Sunday without a run. Grady Hatten paced the attack against Ken Heintzelman and two successors with two doubles and two singles.

New York Giants shut out the Chicago Cubs 3-0 for their fifth consecutive victory. Sheldon Jones pitched a three-hitter for his ninth victory.

The triumph moved the Giants into third place, one percentage point in front of the Braves.

Seven Bombers Get Axe In Squad Cut

WINNIPEG, Aug. 3 (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bomber fans and players were aware today that new coach Frank Larson isn't fooling in an effort to field a winning combination in the western Inter-Provincial Football Union this season.

Tuesday night in one of the club's best workouts during the early training, the former all-American end who took over from Jack West cut his squad to 42. In so doing, he gave the ax to seven of last year's players.

And Larson plans further cuts this week.

Cast adrift were Rick Bergson, Jack Doanes, Elton Hobson, Ernie Williams, Ian McTavish, Jack Evanoff and George McQuarrie, all wearing the blue and gold last season when Bombers failed to represent the West in the Grey Cup final for the first time since 1936.

Import Johnny Gardiner will handle the quarter slot. The 26-year-old star played for the University of Minnesota in 1941-42, Purdue in 1945, and Montana State in 1947-48. He rates as a fine passer and plunger.

In the backfield for his third season of Canadian football will be hard-running Bob Sandberg. But with only Norm Geller, Joe Turner, Marv Bergson and Don Smith available from the 1948 backfield, Larson will have to rely on junior and intermediate graduates to fill the other spots.

The front wall shows great possibilities with Walter Edwards, 215-pound former Minnesotan, holding down the centre position. Doug Johnston of Ottawa, last year with Carleton College, and Moe Simoevich, with Bombers in 1945, probably will act as alternates.

Marmora Beats Norwood 12-3

MARMORA, Aug. 3 (ENS). — Marmora intermediate baseball team defeated Norwood in a five-inning exhibition game 12-3. McInroy, on the mound for the homesters, was in fine form, having eight strike-outs. Cousins obtained a fine triple in the first frame, scoring two of his teammates. For Norwood, Fennell pitched good ball, but as his team was weakened with the absence of several regulars, the support was ragged at times.

The team lineups were:

Norwood— E. Spencer ss, Kelly c, Frederick cf, Payne 2b, Brown cf, Fairfield rf, R. Spencer 3b, Monahan 1b, Fennell p.

Marmora — Auger lf, McInroy p, Cousins c, Gray ss, K. Trumble 3b, Hegadoren cf, E. Trumble 1b, Loveless rf, Brown 2b.

Score by innings:

Norwood	000	12—	3	4	4
Marmora	363	0x—	12	8	2

Umpires—T. Cousins at plate, R. Borland on bases.

Rifle Artists Match Skill For Big Trophy

LONG BRANCH, Ont., Aug. 2 (CP)—Rifle artists from Ontario and Western Canada vie today for the 40 places in the final stages of the Lieutenant-Governor's trophy, top event of the Ontario Rifle Association matches, at Long Branch rifle ranges, 10 miles west of Toronto.

Thirteen events are carded in the four-day matches which end Thursday. Many of the winners will go on to Dominion Rifle Association matches in Ottawa next week.

Sgt. R. S. Potter of Hamilton with 98 out of a possible 100, despite lowering skies which cut down visibility, won the City of Toronto Cup, Tuesday's top event.

Cpl. K. A. Bestwick, of Edmonton, with his first competitive possible—10 bulls-eyes—won the president's trophy and Maj. D. H. Gibson of Hamilton took the Gibson Memorial Trophy, which commemorates his late grandfather, former Ontario Lieutenant-Governor.

Open Some Eyes

Hamilton Central Collegiate's seven cadets continued to open the eyes of the experts with their unerring marksmanship. Their average age is 16.

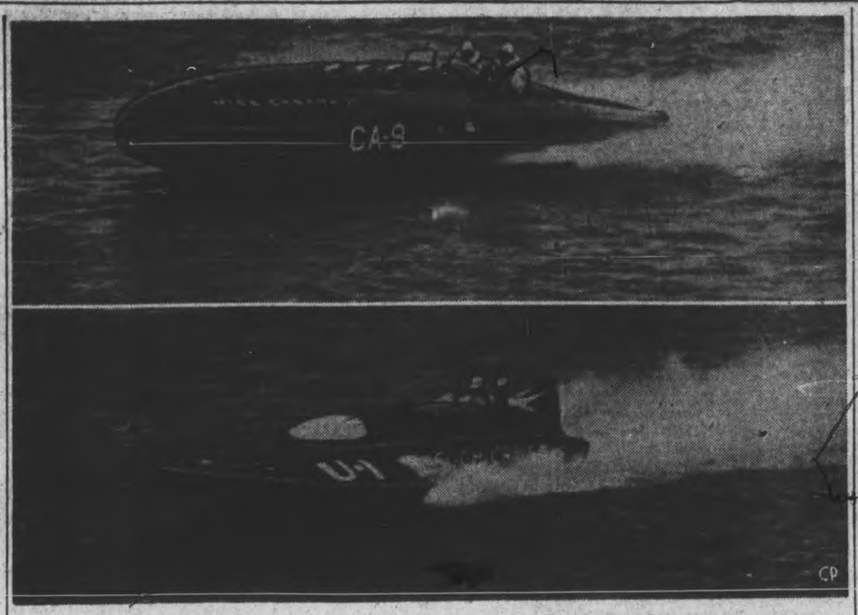
Cadets R. S. Burke and J. A. Hunt were tied for second in the City of Toronto with 97s.

Runners-up in the Gibson Memorial included Capt. J. H. Neate, of Kingston, tied for fourth with 42.

Cadet G. W. I. Oakes and Lieut. J. G. Gibson, both of Hamilton, and CSM L. J. Falkner, Toronto, tied for second in the President's match with 49s.

Tyros, who number almost half of the 180 marksmen, have been turning in excellent scores.

Sergeant G. O. Boast and F. H. Johnson, both of Toronto, with 36s, led the beginners in the Gibson Memorial. Four with 45s were tied for the top in the Tyros section of the President's Match: WO A. S. Ketter, Kingston; Cpl. N. R. Nicol, Toronto and Cadets N. R. Hollingshead and H. A. A. Elms, Hamilton.



DISAPPOINTMENT—Miss Canada IV, favored to win the 1949 Harmsworth Trophy Race, was forced out by mechanical difficulty and finished in last place in both heats. The sleek Canadian challenger is shown in top photo during the second heat on the Detroit River. Harold Wilson, Ingersoll, Ont., driver, announced prior to the last heat that it was only a token run. Lower photo shows Such Crust I owned by Jack Schafer of Detroit and driven by Danny Arena, winner of the first heat and fastest boat in the race. Such Crust set a lap record of more than 98 miles an hour during the second heat although Skip-A-Long, owned by Stan Dollar of San Francisco, won the heat when engine trouble hit Such Crust.

Winters Admits He's No Shakes As Tennis Star

HALIFAX, Aug. 3 (CP)—R. H. (Bob) Winters is no great shakes as a tennis player—he admits it himself.

You've never heard of Bob Winters? Of course you have. He's Canada's Minister of Reconstruction; he comes from Lunenburg, N. S., and, among his many accomplishments, in baseball he hits a mighty long ball.

A spry 38, he not only is the youngest member of the Federal Cabinet but the first to enter a national sports event—the Canadian lawn tennis championship now going on here. He also is vice-president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

One of the few men concerned with handling weighty affairs of state who can find time for active sport, Mr. Winters said he thought he would combine "some business" in Halifax with a little pleasure by entering the tournament.

"But tennis isn't my game," he said Tuesday after being knocked out of a second event. He started in singles and one of his constituents, Dr. Phil Cole of Chester, N. S., promptly knocked him out in the second round.

Then along came Jack Regan of Windsor, N. S., to coax him into playing doubles. The competitive spirit won out in Mr. Winters' argument with himself and he was back in action. This time he lasted two rounds before he and his partner weer ousted in three sets.

Don't Use Kisses In Chinese Movie Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 3 (AP)—"The amazing thing about Chinese films is that nobody wants to kiss anybody. Do they make love in China or don't they?"

This question was posed and answered in a copy of the Singapore Free Press received here. It explained that while an American kisss his girl anytime he gets the notion, "the average Chinese male prefers to do his petting in some inner sanctum."

"It just isn't done," reported Ralph Shaw. "And the average Hollywood clinch is considered to be lewd and degrading in the eyes of polite Chinese."

Age-old Kisses

Yale-educated playwright Yao Hsin-nung claimed kissing is no Western monopoly. The wily Chinese have been doing it for ages.

But love-making in China is an art, says Yao, and there is little of the boisterousness of the West in the intimate embraces of the East. The Chinese lover also uses his nose Eskimo-style, adds Yao, to collect fragrances of the damsel's cheek—plus the copious splurges of cheek rouge.

The Western influence has taken its toll, however, and it is not unusual in the big cities to see the boys and girls kissing openly "with a finesse that would make an American green with envy."

No Curves?

Sex appeal is different in China, reports Yao. While Hollywood has glamorized the leg, the bosom, and the sleek, svelte figure tottering on high heels, "the old type of Chinese does not like his women folk to expose their flesh or advertise their curves in any way." He likes them demure and not aggressive.

Some Chinese used to enjoy holding in their hands the bound feet of their sweethearts, but the custom of bound feet has died out.

The Manchus loved to hold hands—just that. "Quite exciting, what!" adds Reporter Shaw.

PAISLEY, Ont., Aug. 3—(CP)—Crushed under the large wheel of a backing tractor operated by his 13-year-old brother, Gary McLean, 2½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. McLean, was killed Monday eight miles north of here. The young boy apparently slipped and fell into the path of the backing machine.

Daring Jewel Theft

BEAUVILLE, France, Aug. 3—(AP)—Four masked men, armed with sub-machine guns, Tuesday held up the Van Cleef and Arpels jewelry store here and escaped in a waiting car. Newspapers estimated value of the 32 pieces lost at 50,000,0000 to 100,000,000 francs ($160,000 to $320,000).

Declares Romania Wipes Out Christianity

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 3—(AP)—The Vatican radio charged that Romania's Communist government is wiping out Christianity in that country.

Commenting on Monday's Romanian government decree abolishing Roman Catholic orders, the Vatican broadcast called it "another step toward the total de-Christianization of Romania." It added Romania is "at the vanguard of all the countries dominated by Russia in the implacable work of dechristianization."

Vice-admiral Sir Wilfred Patterson has been promoted to admiral and reappointed.

154 Refugees Reach Halifax From Sweden

HALIFAX, Aug. 3 (CP)—The 250-ton refugee ship Parnu arrived here Tuesday from Sweden with 154 Etonians and Latvians after a rough, 17-day dash across the Atlantic.

Officials of the immigration department tied up the ship and are awaiting instructions on what to do with the refugees.

The Parnu, built in Canada in 1922 and used as a mine-sweeper during the war by the Norwegian navy, sailed directly from Malmoe, Sweden, to Halifax. The refugees told Swedish port officials they were sailing to Norway.

It was the second small refugee craft to arrive in Halifax recently. Two weeks ago, 23 Estonians landed here on the 32-ton motor vessel W. E. Gladstone and were admitted to the country.

London's Clubs Much Same Under Victoria

By MICHAEL O'MARA

LONDON, Aug. 3 (CP)—Behind the facades of the Florentine Palaces and Greek Temples that mask London's clubs in Pall Mall and St. James' Street, members sip their port, scan stock reports, read the Times and discuss the events of the day.

Life in thes imposing edifices—except for menus and prices—hasn't changed much since the days of Queen Victoria. Membership, however, now includes a greater number of civil servants and business men and fewer gentlemen of leisure than it did in more spacious days.

Clubland Closely Packed

There are about 60 of these clubs within a one-mile radius, each with private premises and its own peculiar membership qualifications. Outside Clubland itself are many similar clubs, generally less pretentious in design, catering to a more specialized clientele. An example is Fleet Street's Press Club, a haunt of newspaper and publicity men.

Another is the Garrick Club, on Garrick Street near theatre-studded Charing Cross Road. This is for actors and men of letters and its most prized possession is a collection of paintings of the actor whose name it commemorates.

For Dominion and Colonial visitors to London, there's the world headquarters of the Overseas League in the heart of St. James' district. It's 60,000 members—many thousands of them Canadians—use its luxurious club facilities when they visit there.

The history of London's clubs dates from the coffee-houses of Dr. John's day, when men gathered to write a play, lose a fortune or build an empire while they drank cup after cup of the new beverage.

Ministries Rise and Fall

Here politics were talked a great deal and it's natural that as the clubs developed many of them were strongly marked politically. Some of the more famous have seen ministries fall and cabinets reformed within their precincts.

Suspend CSU Men

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 3 (CP)—After heated argument, the Port Arthur Trades and Labor Council Tuesday night voted "with regret" to suspend Canadian Seamen's Union delegates from its ranks. Despite the fact that the council itself was faced with suspension if it failed to observe instruction from the Trades and Labor Congress executive to suspend CSU delegates, some council members at first proposed to allow the seamen to take part in the meeting.

Byrd Plans Trip

NEW YORK, Aug. 3 (CP)—The New York Times says today the famed Polar explorer, Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd, plans a new expedition to the Antarctic next winter. Both Byrd and the United States Navy refused to comment on a similar report some weeks ago. The Times says 3,500 men and eight ships have been earmarked for the expedition, which hopes to map vast areas of the unknown Antarctic.

Secret U.S. Agreement On Uranium Ends

BRUSSELS, Aug. 3 (Reuters)—The secret United States agreement with the Belgian Congo Mining Company which supplied uranium for the Hiroshima and Nagasaki atom bombs will expire shortly, an official of the company said here Tuesday.

British investors hold some of the shares of the company, the Union Miniere, which since 1945 has reserved its entire output of Belgian Congo uranium ore for the United States.

The company official declined to confirm or deny reports that Britain has asked for a one-quarter of the output.

"This is a matter to be discussed between governments," he said. "We know nothing about it."

The Belgian Congo has the world's largest source of known uranium supplies, and the Shinkolobwe mines produce some 12,000 tons of ore a year.

Bandmasters Meet In City For Convention

Peterborough will play host on the weekend for the first time to the members of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association, which will hold its annual "summer convention" at the Empress Hotel from August 5 to 7, with 200 delegates and their wives expected to attend. An ambitious program of entertainment has been lined up for the delegates by a committee of the Peterborough Citizens' Band, headed by Bandmaster W. H. Peryer.

The general public of Peterborough will also derive considerable entertainment from the convention, as a parade to the cenotaph for the laying of a wreath is scheduled for 12.30 p.m. Sunday and a two-hour band concert will be held in Nicholls Oval Sunday afternoon.

The convention will open with registration of delegates Friday afternoon, which will be followed be a directors' meeting. Friday evening will be given over to a "get-acquainted" social evening.

Civic Dinner

Business sessions will open Saturday morning and continue until noon. In the afternoon there will be a number of addresses, including one by Jack Dane, director of the Peterborough Recreation Commission. At 6.30 a civic dinner will be tendered to the delegates by the City of Peterborough. It is planned to have the dinner over in time for delegates to attend the final performance of "Rebecca" at the Summer Theatre.

Two Bands To Play

The Sunday afternoon band concert will be presented by two bands, the first at 2:30 by the Peterborough Citizens' Band and the second hour by the Belleville Municipal Band, of which the director is Edward Robbins. In the event of rain, the concert will be given in the Brock Street Summer Gardens. Another concert by the Peterborough Salvation Army Band is scheduled for Sunday night at 8:00.

Among entertainment planned for the wives of delegates is a bus tour of the city on Sunday morning.

Other members of Bandmaster Peryer's committee are: J. Kokesh, band manager; Sherman Rowe, secretary; Gordon Myles, president; and Wallace Parnell, assistant bandmaster.

President of the association is Reg Hinchey, Belleville, well-known composer and former director of the Belleville Municipal Band.

Husband Jailed Wife Fined $50 Attacking Police

Provincial Constable A. Kellog described the language of Mrs. Helen Vilneff, Tweed, as the worst he has heard since joining the police force, when he testified in city police court Tuesday to a charge against Mrs. Vilneff of assaulting Constable Ray Bell of Havelock. Mrs. Vilneff pleaded guilty to the charge and her husband pleaded guilty to drunk driving.

The incident occurred at 12:30 a.m. Monday on highway 7 about a mile east of Havelock. Mr. Vilneff was sent to jail by Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, for 30 days and Mrs. Vilneff was fined $50 with $7.90 costs and a month in jail in default of payment.

Constable Kellog described how he and Constable Bell stopped the Vilneffs along the highway after the police cruiser had been pushed off the road to the shoulder by Mr. Vilneff. Constable Bell had stood on the running board of the cruiser calling to Vilneff to stop his car and had seen a bottle of wine thrown from the car before it stopped.

Constable Kellog told how Mrs. Vilneff had attacked Constable Bell after Mr. Vilneff had been put in the cruiser. Vilneff had then jumped out of the police car and both Mr. and Mrs. Vilneff were attacking Constable Bell.

Council Offered Road Allowance

Mr. E. Garth Braund offered the council Tuesday night a 66-foot road allowance immediately west of the Mendel Braund grocery store on the south side of Chamberlain St. as a means of opening a street on which he proposes to build three frame bungalows to cost approximately $6,100 each. The letter was referred to the board of works.

The property is to the southeast and west of the Braund store, and is 270 ft. by 145 ft. To proceed with the houses, Mr. Braund said sewer and water services south from Chamberlen St. would be needed.

After the council meeting it was recalled that Mr. R. C. Braund had years ago tried to give a block of property in that locality to the city for use as a children's playground. The council of that time rejected the Braund gift.

Lakefield Fair Plans Black And White Day

Howard Beavis, secretary of the Lakefield Agricultural Society, is becoming vocal again to tell about the Lakefield Fair on Wednesday, September 7.

Peterborough Holstein breeders are holding their Black and White Day again at the Fair, usually bringing out more than 100 entries. Ayrshire breeders are going to provide a Red and White breed exhibit. The Orono Band has been engaged with an attractive program for the afternoon, including horse races.

Mr. Beavis says Peterborough city is showing more interest each year in the Fair, but there is still plenty of room for others.

Results of the Fair Board's field crop competition in Beaver oats, sponsored by the Fair Board, were as follows, naming the eight prize-winners out of the 14 entries: Earl Rosborough 95½ points, Clarence Mann 94½, Elwood Dunford 93, C. W. Lee 90, C. V. Coons 89, Howard Beavis 88½, Roy Mullen 87, Roy Slater 83½.

Army Dump Explodes

SEGOVIA, Spain, Aug. 3 (AP) —An army munitions dump blew up near here Tuesday. No civilian casualities or damage was reported. The dump, in the Eresma river basin, is used for storage of projectiles for an artillery academy. Officially announced cause of the blast: high temperatures.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Council approved on Tuesday night attendance of Plumbing Inspector A. G. Metheral at the convention of Ontario Plumbers' Association at Belleville September 1 and 2.

FIRE LOSS $4,320.69

July fire loss was $3,883 on buildings and $437.69 on contents, as reported to the Council by Chief George Smith — total $4,320.69. Inspections during the month were 513.

SEARCH FOR DOLLARS

Mrs. A. W. Heckman, 595 Douglas Avenue, is looking for $140 which she lost during the week-end. Mrs. Heckman came into Peterborough from Deer Head Lodge to do some shopping, bringing the $140 with her. Driving back to the lodge, she discovered that she no longer had the money.

FREAK TWISTER

A freak twister roared along a narrow path nine miles north of Fenelon Falls Monday and toppled trees around a frail summer cottage on Balsam Lake while six frightened Toronto vacationists crouched inside. The cottage was undamaged, but shingles were ripped from the roofs of other cottages in the area and a motor car was smashed by a falling tree. The storm lasted only 10 minutes.

NO POLIO CASES

Distance lends enchantment is an old maxim which still holds good under some circumstances It was with anxiety and sympathy that Peterborough residents learnt today of the outbreak of polio in Oshawa and a natural instinct to be grateful that 60 miles separates this city from the place where four out of eight cases have been fatalities. Dr. R. A. Kelly, MOH for Peterborough, told the Examiner there are no cases in this city and the last incidence of the sickness was in 1947, when two residents and two visitors had polio. None of those was a fatality.

10-Lb. Brown Trout Sets New Record

Ald. Adam Sands' measure has been taken. His record brown trout of last year, which reportedly tipped the beam at 9 pounds, has been superseded by a German brown caught Sunday by Hector McLeod, Elizabethville merchant. The fish, taken from Jack Mercer's private pond three miles west of Elizabethville, went 10 pounds, 1 ounce.

The fish is being stuffed and mounted by Miss Isobel Elcome, Peterborough taxidermist.

Reports are the fish, which is 29 inches in length, was caught on a worm. Ian B. Wood, of 777 Water St., city, was with Mr. McLeod when he caught the big fellow.

Elizabethville is in Durham county.

Portrait Of Queen Offered London

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 3 (CP)— This city at least is getting some publicity over its interest in the statue of Queen Victoria which was ousted from a public square in Dublin, Ireland.

Some time ago, city council wrote the Lord Mayor of Dublin asking on what terms London might acquire the discarded statue. The query was referred to the Eire Government, and a reply still is awaited.

Tuesday night council received a letter from a woman in Ireland offernig to sell London an 1887 portrait of the Queen by the famous Sargent. She didn't mention a price, but aldermen figured it would be pretty expensive, anyway. They referred it to the library board.

Properties For New Homes Purchased By Council New School Site Suggested

Purchase for $23,650 of properties in the McFarlane Ave. and McKellar St. west sections of the city for 100 Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation houses for veterans and their families was authorized in a bylaw passed by the council Tuesday night. McFarlane Ave. is in Ashburnham, extending easterly from Armour Road toward the canal at the old Norwood Road bridge. McKellar St. lies between Monaghan Road and Erskine Ave. in the southwest end of the city.

Description of Properties

Summary of the information relating to this purchase, without the precise descriptions in their legalistic phrasing are:

McFarlane Ave. area land bought from Frank A. Montgomery and William F. Montgomery for $2,250; a parcel bought from Bruce W. Mills and Katherine E. Mills, 186 Edinburgh St., for $1,000; the Claude Rogers property in the same area for $5,000; part of the Erskine property for $5,400 from Mary Frances Burnham and Annie Erskine; and the George Rutherford ten acres for $10,000.

The George N. Rutherford house which he is keeping for his own use is on the west side of Monaghan Road. Mr. Rutherford is an employee of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company.

"Is all that land necessary?" Ald. Adam Sands enquired. "It seems like a lot for 100 houses."

City Clerk Outram, who had carried on the negotiations for options, explained that the objective was to get sufficient vacant property for the 100 Central Mortgage houses for which the Council had made application a month or more ago in the corporation's building program for this year. He said about one-third of the Erskine property was not suitable at present for housing, but that part could be filled and would be available later.

The McKellar St. land was 100 feet in depth on the south side of that street, from Monaghan Road to Erskine Ave., owned by George Rutherford, who lives in a house on the property and wished to retain the building for his home.

"We are actually getting more land than we can use immediately," Mr. Outram said, "but there is a maximum use for all of it."

Securing School Site

He said the Board of Education was considering the erection of a high school in the south end, and suggested that the securing of a site might be considered now, in consultation with the board.

Twenty acres are vacant south of the Rutherford land. Keeping that in mind, the combined area would furnish a site, if it was suitable to the board, and would leave part of it available for dwellings.

"You wouldn't want it too close to an industrial site," Ald. Dick Raine remarked.

"That property is 800 yards south of the nearest industrial site," Mr. Outram said. The mentioning of the 20 acres, which are not included in the Council's authorized purchase, was taking a view of the needs of that section of the southend tomorrow, Mr. Outram said.

Ald. Sands: "I am objecting to spending any more money than we need to."

Ald. Doug Miller: "What is the estimated cost of the services?"

Mayor Swanston: "We are allowed to spend up to $600 a lot for the land and the services. The Government pays us back $600 on that cost."

Advises Care

Ald. D. Miller: "Realizing that these 100 houses cannot be built this year, and there is no question about that, it seems to me that the subsidizing of houses has gone a long way for Peterborough. I am continually being approached by people who are paying $35 and $40 a month in taxes. I think the Council should go carefully, regardless of the number of applications there may be listed for houses. We should be sure we really need them next year before we buy land."

Ald. A. B. Burrows, chairman of the Veterans' Housing Committee of the Council, recalled that there were more than 600 applications at the time the committee was considering the new contract with Central Mortgage and Housing. "We felt that we should at least tentatively go ahead with the additional 100 houses."

Ald. Doug Miller: "Central Mortgage are not anxious about renting these houses to people with low incomes. They want to rent them to people with substantial incomes. People in low rental houses can't afford to pay more than $34 a month. Some of the Central Mortgage houses are rented to people who could pay up to $40 and $50 rent, but they are more than satisfied to get these houses at the corporation's rate. Those are the people we are subsidizing. Some of them could well afford to pay double the rent."

Ald. Waddell commented that the Council had applied to Central Mortgage for the additional 100 houses, and the company had agreed. "All that we are doing now is to buy the lots we need for that number."

Ald. Anglesey was chairman of the committee of whole Council for the second reading of the bylaw.

Alderman Sands and D. Miller did not raise their hands when the vote on the third reading was taken.

T. L. Kennedy To Open Show

Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, will open the flower show of the Horticultural Society at the armouries Friday, August 12 at 7:30 p.m. He will be introduced by Peterborough's member of the provincial cabinet, Hon. H. R. Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests.

Col. Kennedy has met Peterborough assemblies on various occasions, the last one having been at Grassland Day at the end of June, and has made many friends here. Directors of the show are hoping that there will be a large attendance to greet the Minister of Agriculture whose department also supervises horticulture, agricultural societies, improvement of school properties and so.

Place Exhibits Thursday

Wm. C. Wilks, secretary, is asking that all exhibits be at the armouries by 10 p.m. Thursday, August 11. Judging begins Friday at 9 a.m. Children should bring their flowers and vegetables before 10 p.m. Thursday. There is no special junior show this year. Parents can help the society and also the young people by encouraging their boys and girls to make up exhibits and take them on time to the armouries.

The secretary is asking for a special effort by flower growers of the city and district, chiefly because the summer was adverse to gardens in lack of moisture. To stimulate interest, Mr. Wilks said flowers for which there were no classes in the list would be welcome and would have classes made for them.

Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser is president of the Horticultural Society. Door prizes include a CGE de luxe model electric refrigerator, with five other prizes including Lucky Strike baits worth $10; and Canada Packers ham.

Red Cross Swim Awards Presented To 49 Children

The first results of this season's swimming instruction at Inverlea and Riverside Parks brought about the presentation of cards, pins and badges to 49 city children at the two pools on Tuesday afternoon. Thirty-nine more children who were eligible to receive their tokens were not present. Sponsored by the swimming and safety division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, Peterborough Branch, its division chairman, Mrs. W. A. Hinds, made the presentations to junior and intermediate groups. Alderman Adam Sands, in absence of His Worship Mayor Max G. Swanston gave the tokens to the senior group. Is City Interested In New Causeway?

Mayor Swanston flew a Gannons Narrows causeway kite at Tuesday night's council meeting, in a feeble breeze. He said there was a movement on foot to remove the old floating bridge at the Narrows because it was in "bad shape" and replace the short span with a fill similar to the Gifford causeway at Chemong. Both Harvey and Ennismore people are especially interested.

"Reeve G. Elliott of Harvey is wondering whether he would help them financially if the Department of Highways is willing to help," Mayor Swanston said. "The Minister, Hon. George Doucett was out there with Hon. Harold Scott at the time of the Ennismore causeway opening. I'm just passing it on to the council."

"We could at least say we would consider it," Ald. Adam Sands remarked.

"Also because of the high cost of new hospital accommodation for city and county patients that we are short of causeway money, but we are behind them morally" said Ald. Doug. Miller.

92 Degrees Hottest

Another fact about figures of records and statistics is that no matter how correct they may be they lack color and the reflections of human experience and reaction.

For example here is the July weather report which at various glances looks much the same as the statement for any other July. Probably it wasn't the hottest on record. No one was noticed sleeping in Confederation Square seeking escape from heat, one of the certain signs of summer at its hot and humid worst.

Most people are going around with the conviction that this has been a long siege of torridity since May 24. So, as a check and damper on those notions, the July thermal summary as received from James Harrison is worth noting:

Last month: Maximum temperature 92 deg. on the 3rd; minimum 45 on the 15th; average mean: 68.7 deg.; rainfall 2.46.

July 1948: Maximum temp. 90 deg. on the 10th and 11th; minimum 46 on the 2nd; average mean 65.3 degrees; rainfall 1.66.

Prisoner Damages Plumbing Fixtures

"It was enough to try anyone's temper" Donald Wesley McNaughton, Young's Point, told Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, at city police court Tuesday when he pleaded guilty to damaging plumbing fixtures at Peterborough county jail. "I was put in jail without being told why" McNaughton claimed.

Breaking plumbing fixtures is not way to settle an argument the magistrate told McNaughton as he fined him $10 and $6 costs and gave him a month to pay $25 for repairs to the damaged fixtures.

Believe Alberta Has Great Future In Oil

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Competent opinion considers it a not unreasonable guess that at least 5,000,000,000 barrels of oil may be found in Alberta in the near future.

The current monthly review of the Bank of Nova Scotia makes this statement in an outline of the dramatic story of western oil, under the heading, "Black Gold in Alberta."

"Today Alberta has some 860 producing oil wells—more than twice as many as in early 1947," the publication says. "Nearly a dozen new oil pools have been discovered, of which at least two, Leduc-Woodbend and Redwater (both in the Edmonton area), now are established as major fields.

"To assure a sustained rate of production large enough to take care of total Canadian needs, 'proved' reserves of at least 2,500,000,000 to 3,000,000,000 barrels would be necessary. Proved reserves in Alberta now are estimated at something less than 1,000,000,000 barrels.

Need Pipelines

However:

"Until long-distance pipelines are constructed to carry Alberta oil beyond the prairies, the oil industry in Alberta must pass through a painful period when production will have to be strictly regulated and when the inability to reap returns on the big investment involved may cause difficulties for many companies. This is a phase common in the history of new oil fields, and one which, in the past, frequently led to acute market disorganization."

The review concludes:

"Even present production is considered sufficient to justify the projected 20-inch pipeline to Regina (from Edmonton) and serious consideration of the extension to the head of the Great Lakes.

"It does not follow, of course, that Eastern Canadian refineries would receive all the Alberta oil shipped down the lakes. Duluth (Minnesota) is being spoken of as a possible terminus for the pipeline . . . giving access to the big middle-western United States markets.

"The prospect of a sharp reduction and possibly in time of a cessation in net imports of oil has in itself important implications for Canada's balance of payments position. Last year aggregate oil imports cost $300,000,000, which had to be disbursed almost entirely in United States dollars since the United States and Venezuela supplied the major part.

"The prospect of reducing United States dollar expenditures substantially makes Alberta oil one of the most important and encouraging recent developments in Canada's economic life."

Trying For Pulp Deal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—The Economic Co-operation Administration promised Tuesday to try to help American pulp and paper producers secure some of the business of the British government now going to Canada. Paul Hoffman, administrator, told a group of Washington State members of Congress he would present to Britain their request that Canada's contract for supplying the United Kingdom with pulp be modified. Under the present arrangement Britain purchases all of its pulp requirements from Canada and the contract has PINPOINT LANDING—In one of the trickiest blasting jobs ever done in Montreal demolition workers felled this 75-year-old, 127-foot smokestack at the CNR Point St. Charles yards near Montreal, laying it accurately in the only open space available among the clustered buildings. Twenty pounds of high explosives in four separate blasts were needed to do the job on the stack, which contained 100,000 bricks and weighed 200 tons. Explosive experts acted as advisors. This photo shows the giant stack crumbling as it fell.

Billiard License Issued W. C. Cuppy

Issuance to Wm. C. Cuppy of a license for billiards in a vacant store on Park St., south of Braidwood Ave., was authorized by the council Tuesday night.

Mr. Cuppy told the council he intended to have two business departments on the ground floor, one a soda refreshment bar and the other for the sale of tobacco, and to set up four billiard tables upstairs.

"I am interested in the people who live in that area, and not in the people uptown," Mr. Cuppy said. If granted the license, he said, he would conduct the billiard room in a manner satisfactory to everybody. He was for several years proprietor of a tobacco stand in the front of the Centre theatre.

Coldwater Pair Start 45th Canoe Trip

COLDWATER, Ont., Aug. 3 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. James Lazonby of Coldwater start out today on their 45th annual canoe trip—a celebration of their wedding Aug. 3, 1904, that has brought them international recognition.

Both in their 70s, the Lazonbys will paddle their 56-year-old basswood canoe down the Coldwater river from this community, 73 miles north of Toronto, to Georgian Bay and follow the shore eight miles to the Port Severn locks. They will then spend several days along the Severn river, stopping at Six-Mile Lake and the Big Chute marine railway.

The elderly couple, tailors by trade, took their first canoe outing as a honeymoon. They started at Gravenhurst and went through the Muskoka Lakes to Bala, then down the Musquosh river and through to Honey Harbor.

Oak Lake, near Stirling, was chosen as the site for the 1950 reunion which will take place between July 1 and 4.

The gathering comprised descendants of James and Margaret Whitton, originally of Yorkshire, England, who temporarily settled at Kingston in 1839 and later took up permanent residence in Seymour Township. A large family of fifteen sons and daughters all grew up and attended the Presbyterian Church at Burn Brae, Seymour Township.

Those attending from Havelock were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ketchen, Mrs. William Copp and Mr. and Mrs. George Sisco.

Report $1,500 In Layng Fund

TORONTO, Aug. 3 — A fund to aid the wife and child of Alfred Layng, who was shot dead while trying to stop a fleeing holdup man Saturday night, has been set up by Mayor H. E. McCallum and the Ward 2 Businessmen's Association.

On Tuesday night directors of Loblaw Groceterias swelled the fund with a donation of $1,500. Layng was killed outside a Loblaw store on Parliament Street by a gunman who held up the store.

First contribution was a $100 cheque handed over to City Treasurer Arthur Lascelles by Harold T. West, secretary of the Ward 2 Club. This was followed by donations from the Mayor, City Hall workers, Hydro Commissioner Robert Saunders, and Controllers John Innes and Allan Lamport.

All money turned over to the fund will be used to provide for the widow of the 24-year-old RCAF veteran and their four-year-old daughter Patricia.

"I am glad to make a contribution to a fellow-member of the RCAF who had shown all the attributes of a good citizen, and in doing so had died a heroic death," said Con. Lamport.

Con. Innes, who was active in setting up the fund, said many citizens had offered assistance to Layng's widow and child. "This young girl and her daughter have nothing in the world," he said. "How is the mother going to take care of her child?"

Plan Royal Salute

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 — (CP) — Canada will fire a royal salute of 21 guns Thursday to mark Queen Elizabeth's 49th birthday. Army headquarters said Tuesday the salute will be fired at noon in each of the provincial capitals and at Ottawa and Vancouver by active and reserve force artillery batteries.

OUTSTANDING SWIMMER—Allan Gilchrist, 20-year-old swimmer from Ocean Falls, B.C., who broke 14 Canadian records last year, was presented with the Sir Edward Beatty Trophy as Canada's outstanding swimmer. Presentation was made at Vancouver where Gilchrist won two Dominion titles in the Empire Game trials.

Use Viscount Auctioneer To Push Dogs Or Cars

By MICHAEL O'MARA

LONDON, Aug. 3 (CP)—Viscount Malden, 42, and dressed in the height of fashion, ran a finger around inside his impeccable white collar and cried feelingly into the microphone before him:

"Really, gentlemen, two guineas is a ridiculous price for a dog like this!"

Packed into a garage in northwest London were 300 bargain-hunters hoping to pick up a future greyhound Derby winner for a few pounds.

The Viscount, auctioneering Lot 7, a two-year-old dog named Shaggy Darkie, skillfully edged the bidding from the opening two guineas ($8.40) to 390 guineas, mopped his aristocratic forehead and started in on Lot 8.

He explained to reporters afterwards: "I've been in this business for 20 years. Our firm has been established a couple of centuries. We also auction cars and furniture."

Despite the auctioneer's skill, a buyer sometimes gets a four-legged gold mine cheap at the annual sale—only one of its kind in London.

Bridget O'Rea, sold there for 10 guineas, recently won a race worth £260 at New Cross Stadium.

The Marylebone Cricket Club—governing body of the game—is to bestow honorary membership on a select number of former professional players who have distinguished themselves in county and Test matches.

Hitherto membership has been restricted to amateurs.

First list of pros who will be so honored has not yet been published. Meantime the Evening Standard ran a poll among its readers to determine who should get first selection.

Heading the poll was Jack Hobbs, former opening batsman for Surrey and England. Only one vote behind was Herbert Sutcliffe, his old first-wicket partner.

Billy (Last Race) Cook, Australian jockey who burned up British race tracks for a time this spring, has gone home again. His wife's ill health is the reason, but Cook hopes to return to Britain for the 1950 season.

When he left, he was holding down fourth place in the winners list, with 42 successes to his credit. He lived up to his nickname by gobbling up the final event on the card 11 times.

Kidnapped Cabbie Pays For Drinks

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—(CP).—Taxi-driver Rene Gauthier of Montreal, described in Enquete Court Tuesday how three men took over his car, forced him to go with them as a passenger and ordered him to pay for "refreshments" they had on the way to Lancaster, Ont.

Gauthier's testimony come at the preliminary hearing of Emile Prevost, 29, Herve Prevost, 23, and Ovila Perron, 50, all of Montreal, charged with automobile theft.

The diminutive cabbie said he had picked up the trio at the corner of Beaubien Street and St. Lawrence Boulevard in Northern Montreal.

Gauthier said he was ordered to drive to the west end, where he was seized and forced into the back seat.

They drove to a night spot in suburban Lachine where Gauthier said he paid for the drinks.

The car then headed west with several stops at different hotels where he again had to pay for refreshments, he said. When they arrived at Lancaster, Gauthier said he managed to escape the trio in a hotel.

The accused were ordered for trial at the next session of the Court of King's Bench.

Has Stolen Bibles

TORONTO, Aug. 3 — (CP) — When John Williamson, 22, was convicted Tuesday of receiving 22 stolen Bibles his counsel said: "Give him 16 days your honor, they're good books.' The magistrate's reply was: "Too good for him." Williamson got six months in prison.

40 More Lieutenants

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 — (CP) — Canada's Active Army will have another 40 lieutenants by the end of the week. Army headquarters Tuesday said the 40 will be those who have completed a seven-week common-to-all arms course at the Royal Military College, Kingston. They now will be able to step into active army jobs.

5 Injured In Crash

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 23—(CP).—Five persons were injured, one seriously, late Tuesday in a two-car collision at the treacherous "Devil's Funnel" underpass at the Wabash railway near Strathburn on No. 2 highway, about 25 miles west of here. Most seriously hurt was Gordon Salter, 61, of Oshawa, driver of one of the cars. He is in hospital with head injuries. Mrs. Mae Brady, 53, of Detroit, and driver of the other car, suffered a fractured knee. Others injured: Mrs. Gordon Salter, 59, leg cuts; her daughter, Eleanor, 17, cuts and shock; Mrs. Brady's husband, Harry, 59, facial cuts.

Tito Expects Company

BELGRADE, Aug. 3.—(AP).—Premier-Marshal Tito predicted Tuesday that both Albania and Bulgaria will repudiate the Cominform and join Yugoslavia in a crusade for developing Communism at home. Albania and Bulgaria are members of the Cominform, the Association of Eastern Communist States from which Yugoslavia was expelled for allegedly failing to hew to the true Marxist-Lenin line. Tito spoke at Skoplje in Yugoslav Macedonit before an audience estimated by Yugoslav officials at 350,000.

New Zealand Votes On Conscription Issue

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Aug. 3 — (CP)—New Zealanders voted today in a national referendum to decide whether the government should introduce compulsory military service.

The conscription proposal calls for all youths of 18 to serve 14 weeks in a camp followed by shorter periods of training during the next three years.

A lively campaign preceded the referendum with Prime Minister Peter Fraser and opposition leader S. G. Holland touring the country speaking in favor of conscription.

Most observers believe conscription will be voted but the government hopes for an overwhelming majority to give it a strong mandate to build up a strong effective defence organization.

Playing On Yacht Picton Boy Drowned

PICTON, Aug. 3 — Missing for five hours, 6-year-old Jerry Dunn was found drowned in 14 feet of water in Picton Harbor late on Tuesday afternoon.

The lad had been playing on a yacht owned by his uncle, Dr. Charles McWilliams of Newburgh NY, in the morning, then had started for the home of his mother, Mrs. Martha Dunn, John Street. Apparently he had changed his mind and returned to the vessel, only to plunge into the water at the edge of the Canada Steamship Lines dock.

Dragging operations were begun at about 4:30 p.m., and within five minutes the body had been recovered. Artificial respiration carried out for more than an hour, proved futile.

Deny Railways To Sell Liquor

MONTREAL, Aug. 3 (CP) — Spokesmen for both the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways said here Tuesday night they knee wnothing about a report that both railways were applying for permission to sell liquor on their trains in Ontario.

A Toronto report Tuesday said applications from both railways would be heard Aug. 22 at a special meeting of the Onario Liquor Licence Board.

The CNR spokesman said the application may have been submitted by the railroad's Toronto office.

He added that the application might be routine ones as the Ontario Liquor Act, which provided for the establishment of cocktail lounges in Ontario, granted permission to the railways to serve liquor on trains running in that province.

However, no railroad has previously taken advantage of the provision.

At present liquor is not served on any trains in Canada, although wine, beer and porter are served on many runs in the province of Quebec.

Music Colony Created By Spinster In South

By TOM CHASE.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Musicians' Club of America has opened a unique home for music lovers here where the aged may retire in comfort and the young compose in quiet.

Set in surroundings of tropical splendor on the Douglass Gardens estate, the home is designed to provide:

A place for young musicians to work; quiet retreat for retired men and women of music; sanctuary for needy musicians; vacation headquarters for people who wish to spend a holiday in Florida amid musical surroundings.

The home is the brain child of Miss Bertha Foster, founder and president of the Musicians' Club of America, founder of the Miami Conservatory of Music and for 18 years dean of music at the University of Miami.

"I decided something had to be done to provide security for aged, retired musicians," Miss Foster said. "So I started the musicians' club. It's the first one in this country and comparable to the one founded by Giuseppe Verdi in Milan, Italy, many years ago."

Open To All

Membership in the club is open to recognized musicians in all categories, including performers, composers, conductors, teachers, writers and lecturers.

The club is a non-profit organization incorporated under Florida laws and managed by a board of directors. Miss Foster said annual dues are paid by about 3,000 members over the country.

Miss Foster said at first it was hoped dues and contributions would be sufficient to finance the home.

Accommodates 110

"That didn't work out," she admitted. "So we finally evolved the present plan. I'm glad now, for we have a large house for our headquarters, a music hall, a number of cottages, a swimming pool, and the seclusion provided by seven acres of beautiful grounds."

"We can put up 110 people right now," Miss Foster said, "and hope to be able to take care of many more in the future. Our idea is to create a colony where American music will have a chance to develop in a congenial atmosphere."

She emphasized the two-fold purpose of the home. Musicians and those interested in music who are members of the club will pay nominal rates to stay there. Needy cases will be provided for with money obtained from these rentals and from club dues and contributions.

Teachers Help

The Florida State Music Teachers' Association helped in working out details Miss Foster said. Both the Florida and the National Federation of Music Clubs is assisting, and the state federation has made the club its project for this year.

Miss Foster said rooms in the home could be given as memorials to individual artists.

She said it costs $3,000 to give a room. "The plan resembles those used in hospitals to provide free beds in memory of individuals," she added. "We do not want to emphasize the financial aspect. Our primary objectives are to encourage music and take care of needy artists."

Holds TB No Bar To Having Babies

HARROGATE, England (CP)—Women suffering from tuberculosis should marry and have children if they want them, British medical men say.

Recovery chances of those who marry are found to be better than those who stay single, one specialist told the British Medical Association conferences here.

Dr. Jean Hallum of Birmingham reported on a survey of tubercular women who had babies. She said they gave birth to healthy children but with more risk of having them prematurely.

In a discussion on the question, one specialist said tubercular mothers ought to be allowed to feed their babies naturally for at least three months after birth.

Others were not certain of this, because of the risk of the mother infecting her child or of overtaxing her strength.

On the question of having children, the specialists agreed that couples would be well advised not to have children while the infection was active or until two years after the women's tubercular condition had become quiescent.

131 Descendants Keep Granny Gay

LONDON (Reuters)—Eighty-four-year-old "Granny" Henrietta Carrington of East Ham, has recently had another gala day—the christening of her 131st descendant.

"Granny" Carrington often has these celebrations. She herself was an only child, but today she has 50 or 60 of her descendants around her whenever there is a wedding or a christening in the family. The latest celebration marked the christening of a new great-grandson.

"Granny" married at 18, had 12 children. Now she has 65 grandchildren and 54 great-grandchildren.

"We have great difficulty in deciding which of the great-grandchildren will be pageboys and flowergirls, because there are so many to choose from," she said.

Selfish Parents Unfair Daughter Needs Diversions

DEAR MISS DIX: I am an intelligent and attractive young girl of 18. My dad likes to step out, and my mother, who is really very domestic, goes with him to keep him out of mischief. I have to stay home to take care of my two small brothers. I never get to go anywhere except to an occasional matinee with my girl friends and I feel that I am missing the joy of youth by having to stay at home all the time. I had a talk with my parents about it, but their argument is that since they are in their early 40s they want to have every joy possible because their time for pleasure is short, while I am young and will have a long time in which to enjoy myself. But I feel if I don't have any pleasure now and can't go out with boys and perhaps meet the ONE and ONLY that I will lose out altogether. What do you think?

T. R.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: I think your parents are very selfish in sacrificing you to their own pleasure. The younger children are their responsibility, not yours, and the have no right to make you stay at home and take care of them while they are out enjoying themselves.

Young parents, the parents who won't settle down and be their age, invariably make old children, for somebody has to bear the burden of family life, and when those who should shoulder the load duck it, it falls with crushing force on the youngsters they have brought into the world and makes them old before their time.

I have known a lot of these dancing mothers and fathers who were out every evening disporting themselves in night clubs, who would gayly go away on long trips together, who would spend their days on the golf links and who spent their money in indulging themselves in any extravagance that they fancied and everybody said how wonderful they were that they kept the keen enjoyment of youth and that they didn't let their children be a burden on them as so many people did and so on and so on.

And all of us know dozens of men and women dependent on their children in their old age who could have been independent if they had only been willing to deny themselves and lay up something for their old age. But they prefered to eat, drink and be merry and to indulge themselves in every luxury while they were young and could enjoy things and to leave it to their children to bear the burden of their support when they were old.

Nothing could be more cruelly selfish than these parents who sacrificed their children to their own pleasures. They have no right to evade their responsibilities, no right to lay their burdens on weak young shoulders. They have had their youth, their playtime and they should not rob their children of theirs.

The Peter Pans who never grow up are only admirable in fiction. In real life they are contemptible quitters who are too cowardly to assume a man's or woman's obligations. And they are doubly contemptible when they steal from a young girl her playtime and her chance of perhaps marrying a man on whom she could depend more than she can on her father.

DOROTHY DIX.

❖ ❖ ❖

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a woman more than 30. Shall I follow my present career which insures me a modest, steady income and remain single, which would mean a lonely future, or shall I marry a man who makes less than I do and who will probably never earn a comfortable living, but with whom I might have companionship and perhaps motherhood. There is no other chance and not likely to be any.

DAILY READER.

ANSWER: I think the answer to that question depends altogether on how much you care for the man and how congenial he is to you. Sometimes a luxury is more vital to us than a necessity and we really need white hyacinths to nourish our souls more than we do bread to sustain our bodies, and I think there are cases in which a woman is justified in marrying a man for whom she has a great and absorbing passion, even if she knows beforehand that she will always have to work to support him. He may be no good as a money-maker, but he may be all to the good as a tender, fascinating, understanding companion.

As you are a business woman, of course, you appreciate the value of money and know just how far it will go and how much is required to run a family. Also you know how hard is the lot of a wife and mother who has to work and struggle and strain to make both ends meet on an insufficient income, but love can make all of that worth while, and better is a half loaf shared with the husband you adore than a feast eaten alone.

But in making your decision chiefly consider whether the man really will give you companionship or not; whether you think alike; whether you are interested in the same subjects; whether you like to do the same things; whether you never talk out; whether you never bore each other.

Not all husbands and wives are chummy, and no people in the world are lonelier than those married people who do not even speak the same language, who cannot even make a remark without starting something and who spend their evenings in a silence you could cut with a knife.

BOWS OUT—Nurse Bette Dennis, 23-year-old beauty queen, has withdrawn from the "Miss Vancouver" contest on orders of her superiors at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver. The order was issued when hospital authorities learned she was slated to appear with 11 other bathing-suit-clad beauties in a theatre. Msgr. Francis Chaloner, chaplain, said the hospital did not object to beauty contests—only to bathing beauty contests.

BONNY BABES — The youngest braw highlanders at the big Glengarry Highland Games were three-year-old Patricia Walsh and four-year-old Boyd Chisholm, both of Cornwall, Ont. The games, held at Maxville, 45 miles south of Ottawa, attracted some 12,000 persons from Canada and the United States.

Orillia Mental Patients Develop Artistic Talents

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP)—On the cool shore of Lake Simcoe is a unique institution whose gates are never locked.

The Ontario Hospital School houses 2,300 mentally deficient "children" ranging in ages from five to 85. They are called "children" by the staff because their intelligence will never grow beyond that of a child, regardless of their chronological age.

Average chronological age of the patients is 16.8 years but the average mental age is much lower. The children are divided into five classes when they enter the school. Th largest group (42 per cent) is in the imbecile class and 32 per cent are idiots, lowest on the mental scale.

Morons, in a slightly higher bracket than imbeciles, make up 25 per cent and the other one per cent of the inmates are in the top two classes, the borderline and the dull moment. These fall into the 70 to 89 I.Q. category, with 100 considered normal.

Go To Primary School

The two lowest groups go to primary school and are taught occupational work on a simple level. The three higher groups learn reading and writing, a little geography and some simple arithmetic.

Even spastics, those with normal mentality but who suffer from lack of physical co-ordination, are admitted to the school and their condition is much improved through habit training.

About 300 new students enter the school every year and about the same number leave, to go to selected jobs or homes where they can lead useful lives.

Natural Talent Grows

While intelligence growth may be halted at an early age, artistic talen may develop normally. Many examples of this are on display at the school. The manual training room contains beautifully made chairs and tables and detailed models. And in the sewing room are displayed several abstract finger painting sketches, in addition to intricate samples of crochet and needle work.

The school occupies 600 acres and has its own farm. More than 100 cows supply milk for the 6,000 meals served daily. Twelve thousand bushels of grain are harvested yearly and the school bakery uses the flour to make 1,000 loaves of bread a day.

Mobile Clinics Aid Australians

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP)—Life on the open road appeals to Australian nursing sisters who travel hundreds of miles in mobile infant welfare caravans in the state of Victoria.

The caravans equipped as complete infant welfare clinics, operate in most of Victoria's 88,000 square miles. They go to many remote settlements to help country women and advise them how to look after their babies.

There are five permanent government-subsidized circuits at present, as well as a temporary one run by the Victorian Baby Health Centres Association.

Most of the mobile infant welfare clinics are single unit caravans. They do a weekly mileage of about 200 miles, and carry one nursing sister.

Dr. Barbara Meredith, director of infant and maternal welfare in Victoria, hopes to extend the mobile services so that mothers in even the most remote parts of the state will have the benefit of the free service.

Sisters who staff the mobile units are fully trained in infant welfare work. They are friends, advisers and medical practitioners to the mothers they attend in the outback.

The fine work of these nurses is held to be at least partly responsible for the drop in infant mortality figures in Victoria during the last few years. Latest reports give these figures as 23.93 per 1,000 as compared with 41.6 per 1,000 seven years ago.

QUESTION: Print recipe for Mustard Bean Pickle as soon as you can will you? I have canned 40 quarts and my garden is so overrun with them I am going to invite my neighbours in to pick them for themselves to get rid of them.—Over-Ambitious Gardener.

❖ ❖ ❖

ANSWER:

Mustard Bean Pickle

(These quantities are for 6 quarts prepared wax beans which have been washed, ends snipped, and cut in 1 or 1½-inch pieces.)

Cook beans in water to barely cover until they are 2-3 tender. Drain. Prepare Sauce: Mix together ¾ quart white vinegar, ¾ quart water (or if you like pickles very "sharp" use 1 quart vinegar and ½ quart water), 2 or 3 cups sugar, 9 inches stick cinnamon, 2 tablespoons mixed pickling spices tied in bag. Bring this to boiling point and stir into it 1¼ cups flour, 1 tablespoon tumeric, ¼ to ½ cup mustard, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, which have been mixed together dry and then made into a paste by adding 1½ cups water. Stir this until thick, then add the prepared and cooked beans, bring to boiling point and seal at once. This should be made so that sauce is boiling and beans are just cooked and drained all at one time, so that beans do not have time to cool, while waiting for sauce preparation

DIMPLED PIPER — Connie Kippen of Maxville, Ont., won two awards for piping at the Glengarry Highland Games which attracted over 12,000 people to the eastern Ontario community. Her strathspeys and reels won her the MacPherson trophy and the second award was the Montgomery cup for the junior pipe march event.

Swimming Pool Closed 12 Hours

LAKEFIELD, Aug. 3 (ENS) — The public swimming pool here on the shore of the Otonabee river was closed for 12 hours on Tuesday by local health authorities after a quantity of "Shell No. 3," a mixture being used to kill poison ivy further upstream, had seeped into the water. The solution caused a white scum to form on the water and a gate in the pool's enclosure was opened to let it proceed downstream.

Charles Young, in charge of the work of exterminating poison ivy along the riverbanks for the town said that the mixture was not harmful to human beings, but that it was considered advisable to close the pool to calm the fears of parents of children using it.

The solution got into the river when an intake hose was placed in the water in order to make a new supply. Apparently some of the residue of the previous supply trickled out through the hose before the water for the new lot could be sucked up through the hose.

When the substance began to appear on the surface of the pool mothers of several children who were paddling around in it took their offspring out immediately. Shortly after Jim Parkin, swimming instructor, ordered everyone out until he could get in touch with the health authorities.

The scum first began to appear on the water around 3:30 p.m. and spread out to a width of six feet or more.

Music Plan Gets Public Support

Considerable interest is being shown in a plan, now in the formative stage, to set up a circulating record library in Peterborough, William Graff, librarian at the Public Library, said today. Mr. Graff mentioned the project at the two record-film concerts held in Nicholls Oval during July, and he has received a number of letters and telephone calls since endorsing the idea.

Under the plan music lovers, both "long hair" and otherwise, would be able to borrow records from the library at the rate of three cents a day. They would be responsible for breakage and only records that could be replaced would be loaned out.

Peterborough is about the only city of its size in the province where the plan has not yet been put in operation. It has proved popular in such cities as London, Windsor and Hamilton for some time.

Mr. Graff hopes that, if a sufficient number of residents express interest in the plan, it may be possible to introduce it here soon. Main advantage is that it tends to meet the desires of music lovers who cannot afford to lay out money on purchases of the more expensive classical records.

Several groups, including the Teachers' Federation and members of Music Appreciation organizations have offered strong support of the scheme, Mr. Graff said.

The Library Board turned down at the last annual meeting Mr. Graff's suggestion to start a circulating library of records.

Nationalization Under Attack

HAMILTON, Aug. 3 (CP) —Sir Charles Goodeve said today that nationalization of the steel industry in Great Britain would be a retroactive step. It is purely a political move, he added.

Sir Charles, director of the British Iron and Steel Research Association, is here for two days during a tour of Canada and the United States.

In an interview he said the British iron and steel industry without nationalization has been breaking all records of production and maintaining high quality. During May and June steel was being produced at the rate of more than 16,000,000 tons a year, a record achievement.

Sir Charles said he believed the Canadian steel industry could well do with some co-operative research, such as that accomplished by his own organization.

Sir Charles said Britain must export in greater quantity to Canada to alleviate its dollar shortage, and added that steel had to play its part in that export.

Can Fool Public But Not Children

WINNIPEG, (CP) — Which is the better school principal — the man who laughs and slaps pupils on the back, or the man who is reserved and doesn't laugh easily?

A debate on that question brought forth differing opinions at a meeting of the school board of suburban St. James.

School inspector E. D. Parker advised the trustees that children soon "got on" to the type which laughed and slapped them on the back. That makes an impression on the public — but you can't fool the youngsters.

"They size a man up, and soon know just how far they can go," said Mr. Parker, who favored the "reserved type".

Trustee A. Conklin took the opposite view. He complained of a "lack of zip" among principals in St. James.

He explained that he meant principals — with exceptions — did not show enough interest in extra-curricular activities.

"Experience doesn't cut much ice with me," he said.

Chairman T. B. Findlay feared a "reserved type" was not suitable. "In the long pull, the extrovert is the man we want." A reserved man, true, was better in dealing with complaints of parents. He woud listen to them patiently.

In such circumstances, even the public did not want to be slapped on the back, another trustee suggested to Mr. Parker.

When Mr. Parker remarked that one teacher was "good in dramatics", Trustee R. H. Funnell said, "that is just the trouble with him; he dramatizes himself all over the field."

After the discussion, the trustees referred to the staff and management committee the appointment of a principal.

CCF To Demand Social Security Promises Kept

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 (CP) — The national executive of the CCF tipping the main lines of attack the party will follow in parliament this fall, Tuesday called on the government to fulfill "its lavish promises" on social security and charged that the Canadian economy is being unwisely shackled to that of the United States.

In making public three resolutions adopted at a post-election meeting here July 30-31, the party's board of strategy:

1. Urged the government to reconvene the Dominion-Provincial conference on reconstruction and present it with "new proposals on taxation and social security."

2. Accused Finance Minister Abbott of echoing the Wall Street Journal in declaring that the United Kingdom's trade crisis is an internal British problem and that international conferences won't help.

3. Called for an immediate "bold, comprehensive program for subsidized low-rental housing initiated and financed by the Federal government."

The executive said "Liberal spokesmen made lavish promises regarding full employment, national health insurance and improved old age pensions" during the election. Their huge house majority now imposed an obligation "to take swift action."

Stewart Horse In Nassau Pace

WESTBURY, N.Y., Aug. 3 (AP)—The largest field ever to start at Roosevelt Raceway—17 horses—is scheduled to contest the $50,000 Nassaue two-mile pace Thursday night.

The strong field of "side-wheelers" includes such top pacers as Grattan McKlyo, the probable favorite, Dr. Stanton, Forbes Chief, Royal Man, War Master and Scottish Boy.

This third edition of the Nassau classic, won last year by Goose Bay, will require three tiers at the start, with eight horses in the first line, eight in the second, and one in the third.

The three three-horse entries are Royal Man, Jerry the First and Hodgen, trained by Eddie Cobb, of Washington Court House, Ohio, and a string trained by Clint Hodgins, of Clandeboye, Ont., consisting of Mr. Morris Scot, Stewart Direct and Dick Erls.

Stewart Direct is owned by Hugh Stewart, Peterborough. The Cobb entry is expected to be about 7 to 2, with the Hodgins trio about 10 to 1.

Strong support also will be given Dr. Stanton, strapping bay gelding owned by another Canadian, W. L. (Lindy) Fraser, of Forest, Ont. Dr. Stanton, third in the National Pacing Derby, earned $50,550 last year to top his division. He is quoted at 5 to 1. Fraser will drive.

The Perfect Servant

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Aug. 3—(AP)—Ellen Nearly tried to be the perfect servant.

When fire broke out in her upstairs bedroom, she was careful not to awaken her mistress, Mrs. Anita N. Hazard, or guests.

The maid crept softly down to the kitchen—bypassing the nearby bathroom—and filled a pitcher with water at the sink. Then she padded back upstairs and threw the water on the flames.

Fifty times Miss Nearly repeated this procedure in a three-hour period, Firemen said.

Finally others were awakened by some smoke and called firefighters to put out the blaze.

When firemen came they found Miss Nearly still carrying the water through heavy smoke.

Her nightgown was scorched and her legs were slightly burned. Damage to the bedroom was estimated at $500.

Wooler Blasts Hastings 21-5

HASTINGS, Aug. 3.—(ENS).—Wooler taught Hastings the finer points of baseball last night, blasting out a 21-5 victory in a TVL game played in Trenton. Rosenplut, on the mound for Wooler, was ahead all the way, allowing but 4 hits, taking out 11 via the strikeout route and givin up 7 walks. McCall, with 4 for 6 and Radcliffe with 3 hits, were the big guns for Wooler.

Don West for Hastings worked hard but was given no support. This leaves Hastings still up in the air, having to win at least one of the remaining 2 games to cinch a spot in the playoffs.

New Zealand Will Vote On Conscription

WELLINGTON, NZ, Aug. 3. (Reuters)—New Zealanders this week vote in a referendum to decide whether or not 18-year-olds in the dominion should have compulsory training. The referendum takes place Aug. 3.

If the answer is "yes," New Zealand's defences will be increased within the next three years by one non-regular infantry division, one armored brigade, certain fixed defence forces and increased navy and air force components.

There is no disagreement between political parties in the House of Representatives concerning the principle of compulsory military training. But members of the opposition do disagree with the government's decision to put the question to the country in a referendum. They believe that it should have been introduced without any such measure and reproach the government for its "unwillingness to govern."

Up To People

The government, on the other hand, accepting guidance from the decision of the recent Labor Party conference in Wellington, has taken the line that the compulsory military training issue is for the people to determine.

While both political party leaders, Prime Minister Peter Fraser, and opposition leader Sidney Holland, have publicly asserted that they will do all in their power to ensure an overwhelming "yes" vote, a fair measure of opposition to any system of compulsory military training has been expressed by the Communist party and other anti-conscription groups.

The government has been attacked by some of its supporters who believe that one of the Labor party's never-bending planks —"no conscription in peacetime" —should be rigidly observed. At the same time, there has been a noticeable swing the other way by former staunch supporters of that principle.

Two Sweethearts Killed By Car

POWASSAN, Aug. 3—(CP)—A holiday weekend highway tragedy took the lives of 19-year-old Robert Purdon Jr. and his sweetheart, 21-year-old Inez Violet Heasman.

The youthful Powassan couple were instantly killed by a car as they strolled along Highway 11 early Monday after a visit at the home of Robert's uncle, John Purdon. The double fatality occurred about half a mile south of here.

A car, driven by Kenneth Sweet, 30, of Belleville and La Cave, struck down the two, killing them instantly, police said.

Sweet told provincial police that he was returning from a weekend in southern Ontario and was travelling north to North Bay and his job at the La Cave Hydro development when the accident occurred. He said that a southbound car suddenly loomed up in his headlights and that it was travelling on his side of the road. In order to avoid striking the car, Sweet said he swerved sharply to the left and in so doing crashed headlong into the strolling couple.

The other car did not stop, and police have not been able to locate it.

They said that no charges had been laid against Sweet.

Senate Has No Time Have Seaway Hearing

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3 (AP)—Senator Millard E. Tydings (Dem. Md.) said Tuesday he saw "absolutely no opportunity" to hold hearings at this session on legislation to authorize the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Tydings, chairman of a five-man senate foreign relations subcommittee on the seaway, told reporters the reason the seaway consideration could not begin now is because too great a volume of business is before the senate.

The sub-committee, named during the week-end by chairman Tom Connally (Dem. Tex.) of the full committee, was described by one of its members—Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.)—as "stacked and packed" against the seaway proposal.

The Seaway Bill, introduced in the House of Representatives and Senate, would make the St. Lawrence River navigable to ocean-going shipping from the Atlantic to the head of the Great Lakes. It also calls for the construction of a 2,200,000-horsepower hydro-electric development in the river's International Rapids section.

Suspended From Duty

OTTAWA, Aug. 3.—(CP). — Constable Russell Buchanan of the Ottawa police force, was suspended from duty Tuesday following the wounding of 17-year-old Robert Bonner, an alleged shop-breaker. Const. Buchanan, seven years on the force, shot Bonner in the thigh early Monday as Bonner and two other companions vaulted a backyard fence in Ottawa's residential Sandy Hill district.

Ford Warning Against Strike

DETROIT, Aug. 3—(AP)—Ford Saturday told its 106,000 production workers they are likely to be out "a long time" if they carry out their strike threat.

The warning was in a company publication urging all 80,000 Michigan Ford workers to vote "no", in a state-conducted strike poll starting a week from Monday.

The United Automobile Workers (CIO) countered with a charge that Ford is trying to "scare" and "threaten" its employees.

Granting the UAU's pension, insurance and wage demands would raise labor costs, and this would "boomerang swiftly," said the Ford house organ, Rouge News in a page-one editorial.

"Increased costs now mean increased prices, and increased prices mean fewer sales," the editorial said. "That means fewer jobs."

The Union reply was contained in a leaflet entitled "More purchasing power means more security," distributed Monday among Michigan Ford workers.

Color Combinations Enhance Whole Store

Refreshing is the only word that can adequately describe the interior of the new Cherney Brothers' store. Color has been contrasted and blended throughout to bring you furniture shopping at its most pleasant. An hour or two can be enjoyably spent just browsing through their three floors of wonderful things for the home.

Color is the keynote in the many model rooms set up to suggest furniture arrangement and choice of accessories.

Flamingo and lemon-yellow walls, keyed to the splash of a bold print, highlight the ebony laquered furniture by Snyder in one model room.

In direct contrast you will find soft, muted grays and pinks which form the backdrop for deep-seated sectional furniture that is truly functional and flexible. Here the subdued color scheme suggests a quiet retreat.

For the man in the family Cherney Brothers present "a brown study" that is truly a study in brown. The warmth and texture of knotty pine is combined with the fresh reen of pine needles. . . chocolate brown walls emphasize that this room is truly HIS own.

Completing the main floor display rooms at Cherney Brothers is the flexible living-dining area finished in lemon-yellow and deep-in-the-forest green. Fresh and vital are these colors, forming a perfect background for the bleached woods on display, bleached woods which are so new, so practical, si distinctive.

The second floor at Cherney's features dove grey walls with the warmth of a soft pink ceiling enhancing the beauty of the many furniture treasurers. Again on the second floor model rooms have been set up to help you visualize the various pieces of furniture in their proper settings.

"Constipation was my bogey for years and harsh laxatives made things worse. Since eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, I am regular as day, more alert in my work. Publish this letter, it may help others," voluntarily writes draughtsman A. Mc. C. Little, 114 Sixth St., Midland, Ont.

Furniture Firm Great Expansion; New Store Ready

Steady, solid growth has characterized the development of the business of Cherney Brothers, a leading Peterborough furniture store, since its founding by Harry and Myer Cherney 15 years ago. When these two enterprising young business men opened their first store at 178 Hunter St. in 1935 they themselves constituted the complete staff; they added varied lines and services and the business expanded over the years to its present staff of 35 people. The firm is now spread over three separate stores and five warehouses. All of these premises will come together under the one roof when the ultra-modern, new Cherney store is opened early in August.

At the outset the business only occupied one-half of the present main floor of the Hunter St. premises. It kept on bursting at the seams until by 1943 it had outgrown this location, making construction of a new building imperative. However, the war forced postponement of start of building operations.

Other Premises Acquired

Several additions were made to the Hunter St. store, including doubling of the main floor space and expanding into the basement and second floor. Still later it was found necessary to open a trade-in store at 383 Water St., and an electrical appliance store at 213 Charlotte St. In addition, warehouse space was rented in buildings on Simcoe St., corner of Brock and Water Sts., at 389 Water St., Brock St., and Louis St. The Charlotte St. store was opened in 1945, when Louis Cherney, youngest of the Cherney brothers, took charge after his return from serving overseas in the armed forces. Louis is now a member of the firm.

The Cherney brothers expect to reduce operating costs considerably after moving into the new building because of being able to consolidate all the ramifications of their growing business in the one building. Their customers will share the benefits of these savings.

First expansion of the business outside of the original Hunter St. store took place in 1940 with the opening of the trade-in store on Water St. The original partners, Harry and Myer, carried on by themselves for the first two years, the first addition to their staff being made in 1936.

When the Cherney brothers first started in business, they were limited to a few lines only, due to the small amount of space available in their original premises.

In the new building they will be able to present every type of merchandise required in the home, and to offer services comparable with the best available in any city of similar size in Canada.

Canada Pleased With Exchange Of U.S. Labor

OTTAWA, Aug. 3 — (CP) — Arthur MacNamara, Deputy Minister of Labor, said Tuesday Canada is "very happy" over the mutual arrangements for the exchange of seasonal labor between Canada and the United States. He saw no reason for any change in the system.

The Deputy Minister was commenting on a Washington dispatch in which Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep. Me.) said she is discussing with labor and agriculture department officials the question of importing seasonal labor from Canada.

She said there had been a growing number of complaints from Maine residents suggesting that Maine unemployed be hired for lumbering, food processing and potato harvesting before labor immigration is permitted.

Under current arrangements between the Canadian and U.S. departments of immigration and labor, Canada brings in some American workers to help harvest her crops and sends some of extra help to the U.S. when the U.S. needs additional seasonal labor.

For example, said Mr. MacNamara, during Ontario's tobacco harvest some experienced tobacco curers are brought in from the U.S. Canadian potato pickers have been sent from Quebec to Maine and from Saskatchewan to the Dakotas. In the winter, Quebec lumberjacks help out the Maine industry.

"The system works very well," the deputy minister added. "It reached its height during the war when the Americans wanted us to send more workers than we could spare. Since the war the movement of seasonal workers has returned to normal."
